Principals and Head Masters are required to be careful not to give permission to any student who is not moderately proficient in gymnastics, and whose performances are not likely to be up to the average of representatives of other schools.

 The Rig-Veda, the oldest book of Indian literature, has very properly been made one of the principal class-books for those who study Sanskrit in the schools and colleges in India, and though at present a scholar-like knowlege of the Vedic hymns is in the examinations required of the more advanced students only, yet, as soon as editions, translations, grammars, and dictionaries shall have rendered the study of these ancient documents more accessible, I doubt not that the time will come when no one in India will call himself a Sanskrit scholar who cannot construe the hymns of the ancient Rishis of his country.—Extract from Preface.

REGISTRATION OF MAHOMEDAN MARRIAGES AND DIVORCES.

THE HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the voluntary registration of Mahomedan marriages and divorces. He said, as it was so long since this Bill had been in any way before the Council, and as some of the members present were not in the Council when the Bill was introduced, perhaps he would do well to read over to the Council the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating to the Bill:—

"The attention of the Government has for some time past been drawn to the increasing number of offences against marriage shown in the criminal returns, especially in the Eastern and Mahomedan districts. The remarkably small number of convictions obtained in such cases, taken together with their increasing numbers, seemed to indicate the existence of a grievance which the criminal courts are at present unable to redress. Inquiry has proved that this is in fact the case. The loose notions regarding the marriage tie prevalent among the lower orders of Mahomedans lead to the frequent institution of criminal charges; while the absence of any authorized system of registration of marriage and divorce (since the office of kazi ceased to be recognized by law) makes it difficult to furnish the amount of proof which the criminal courts require to warrant their taking action.

"It appears to the Government that the legal recognition of an authorized system of registering Mahomedan marriages and divorces will go far to supply the existing want, and this Bill provides such a system. The Registrar will, as regards such registration, take the place which was filled by the old kazis, and certified copies of extracts from his register are made primâ facie proof of the facts recited therein. But the registration of marriages and divorces is left optional with the parties concerned, and all questions of remuneration are left to be settled between the Registrar and the parties who avail themselves of his services."

On those lines the Bill was laid before this Council and referred to a Select Committee in November 1873. Since then the famine had caused all legislative work to be suspended, and it was only lately that the Select Committee had been sitting and considering this Bill. To-day he had the honor to present their report. He should not move to-day that the Report of the Committee be taken into consideration, because it had not yet been placed in the hands of the members; but at the next meeting of the Council he proposed to make that motion. The Report had not yet been printed, and he would only now mention the principal points as to which the Committee proposed to make alterations in the original Bill. The Council would see that the Committee proposed to adhere to the name of "kazi." There was some little discussion upon this point, but upon the whole the Committee agreed that it would be better to keep a name which was familiar to the Mahomedan population; the great object of the proposed measure being that it should be a popular one. The Committee had empowered the Lieutenant-Governor to grant a license to any person to perform the functions of a "kazi" under the Act, and in the interpretation clause had defined a "kazi" to be any person who was duly authorized under this Act to register Mahomedan marriages and divorces. None of the other functions of the old kazis were to be vested in them by this Bill, although he (MR. DAMPIER) had little doubt that a custom would grow up under which the people would resort to them amicably for other social purposes. Still the Act would not vest in them any authority, except for the registration of marriages and divorces when application was voluntarily made to them for such registration. The Committee had provided that not more than two kazis might be appointed for one tract of country; and that, where two kazis were appointed, one of them should be a member of the Sunni, and the other of the Shiah sect. That, MR. DAMPIER believed, would be a popular arrangement.

The Committee had particularized the parties by whom applications for the registration of marriages and divorces might be made, and the persons who should sign the entries in the register. A good deal of care had been necessary in the framing of this part of the Bill, because, for instance, a marriage might be made by minors, in which case their guardians might appear for the parties, or the bride might be a purda nasheen woman who could not appear before the kazi, and then she would have to be represented by a vakíl. The Committee had therefore had to specify in some detail who were the persons authorized to apply for registration, and who should be the signatories under each of those cases. In these matters the Committee had to rely mainly on the knowledge of Moulvie Abdool Luteef.

As to divorces, there was one class in which the husband divorced the wife, at the same time paying to her so much of the dower as was termed "deferred" in the English translations of the Mahomedan law books; that was to say, the portion of the dower which was not claimable until the marriage was dissolved by death or divorce. In these cases it was unnecessary for the wife to appear before the kazi. The husband had only to appear and say he had divorced his wife, and to bring forward the witnesses to the divorce. Then there was the other class of divorces called "khula," in which the husband and wife agreed to separate, the wife giving up all right to the marriage portion and all other claims on the husband. In these cases the application must be made by both husband and wife jointly, as the wife voluntarily gave up certain rights. Perhaps the subject might be a new one to some of the members of the Council. Their colleague, Moulvie Abdool Luteef, had printed a lecture on the subject, and before MR. DAMPIER asked the Council to let the Bill be read, he would cause the lecture to be circulated. He thought it would be found both interesting and useful.

The Select Committee had provided that copies of entries in the registers should be given without charge at the time of registering the marriage ordinance. They had empowered the Lieutenant-Governor to make such rules as might be required for the working of the measure. One point to be provided for by the rules was important, namely, the attendance of kazis at marriages. It was sufficient under the Act to register a marriage after the ceremony was over; but it was understood that the more respectable members of the Mahomedan community would like to have the kazi personally in attendance at the ceremony as well. This would afford a double security as to the proof of the marriage; and to meet such cases the Committee had empowered the Lieutenant-Governor to make rules as to the remuneration of kazis for their attendance at marriage ceremonies and for regulating such attendance. They had fixed the fee for registration at one rupee. As mentioned in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, it was intended originally to leave it absolutely to the kazi and the parties to arrange between them what fee should be paid. But since then the Committee had received from the Bengal Secretariat papers containing a mass of opinions of the leading Mahomedan gentlemen in the mofussil. A great preponderance of opinion was in favor of some fee being fixed, on payment of which it should be compulsory on the kazi to register. They had, therefore, fixed one rupee as the fee, but had added a section providing that nothing in the Act should render it illegal for the kazi to accept a gratuity in addition to the fee if voluntarily offered. The more respectable Mahomedans would probably consider it a point of honor to make the kazi a suitable present on these occasions. Another important innovation made in the Bill was, that the Committee had considered it necessary to place kazis and their offices under some control, and on this point there was some discussion in Committee. But they had come to the conclusion that the District Registrars of Assurances would be the proper controlling authority, i.e. practically the Magistrate and Collector in mofussil districts. The Committee had provided that, when a kazi refused to register a re-marriage or divorce, he should record the reason of his refusal. The only reason for such refusal would be a question of identity,—a question whether a person who appeared (whether as a principal or witness) was not the person whom he or she represented himself or herself to be. The kazi would have no right to refuse registration on any other ground; and the Committee had provided that in case of such refusal there should be one appeal to the Registrar of the district, whose decision should be final. They had provided forms for three registers to be kept by the kazi—one was the register of marriages, the second a register of divorces not being khula, and the third a register of khula divorces. As to the forms of the registers, the Committee had not been able to arrive at unanimity. At the request of their colleague, Moulvie Abdool Luteef, the majority of the Committee had put in the forms in the schedule annexed to the Act certain columns requiring specification of details of the dower for the sake of bringing the point before the Council. The majority of the Committee (Mr. Schalch and Mr. Dampier, for they had not the advantage of the learned Advocate-General's assistance) thought it would be better to omit these columns from the registers, because they would be touching on difficult questions which were beyond the scope of the Act. In this Act the Council were not attempting to deal with the difficult question of titles to Mahomedan property, but merely to provide trustworthy evidence as to the fact of the marriage or divorce having been effected; and therefore it seemed to the majority of the Committee that any specification of the particulars of the dower in the registers would be going entirely beyond the scope which the Council had desired to give to the Bill. With these remarks MR. DAMPIER laid on the table the report of the Select Committee which would be printed and circulated to the members with the Bill as revised, and at the next meeting he would move that the report of the Committee be taken into consideration.

RECOVERY OF ADVANCES MADE BY GOVERNMENT.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said that the next motion in his name was to move that the Bill for the recovery, by summary process, of advances of money and grain in the course of the relief operations be read in Council. This Bill was circulated, and had been, he believed, in the hands of members for three days, as was required by the rules of the Council. At the last meeting His Honor the President had said almost all that should be said at this stage of the Bill, and MR. DAMPIER had now only to remind members of what they knew very well already, that the Government had advanced something like three quarters of a million sterling to ryots during the famine; that sometimes money was advanced on no security whatever, sometimes on the security of zemindars, and sometimes on the joint security of villagers. He supposed that no one would deny that after what the Government had done, it was in a position to ask that this Council should give it all the assistance it could in recovering the advances made. Of course the Collector, in making these advances, entered them in his book; and in the simple case in which the Collector was to recover from the person to whom the advance was made, no one could be in a better position than himself to know that the money was due. He had only got to look at his own accounts and so satisfy himself. It had therefore been provided in the Bill which MR. DAMPIER had the honor to lay before the Council, that arrears due on account of advances should be "demands" under the provisions of Act VII of 1868 of this Council; the consequence of which would be that the Collector, being satisfied that the amount was due, could make a certificate declaring the amount to be due, which should be filed in his office according to the certificate procedure. After the certificate was made, it was open to the person affected to come forward and make any objection he might wish to offer, and the Collector would then give him time, or amend his order if he should consider it necessary to do so. The certificate, as confirmed or modified by the Collector on such objection, would have the force of a decree passed in the civil court against this particular debtor. This Council had once formally accepted the principle of these certificates by passing Act VII of 1868. It was considered better for all parties that in cases in which the Collector was in a position to judge that an arrear was due, he should be trusted to pronounce the amount to be due without carrying the ryot to the civil court, which in the end would double and treble the debt, as Hon'ble Members well knew: therefore Mr. Dampier had no doubt that the Council would see the propriety of extending that principle to the arrears now in question which were within the knowledge of the Collector.

Next, as to the cases in which zemindars and communities of villagers had stood security for advances. When they had to pay any money for the repayment of which they had stood security, it was only fair that the Government and the legislature should give them the same assistance in recovering their dues from the real debtor that they gave the Government in recovering the[illegible] debts due to them. Here again the amount of the debt was absolutely directly [illegible] in the knowledge of the Collector. No one knew that the money had been advanced to the ryot better than the Government officer who advanced it, and the Collector also had the best [illegible] means of knowing that the money had been repaid, not by the person who received [illegible] but by his security for him. It was nothing but fair that after the sureties had paid money for the ryot under such exceptional circumstances, they should be given exceptional facilities for the recovery of their dues.

The Bill provided that the zemindar should give in an application to the Collector specifying the amount due and requesting him to issue a certificate. The Collector would then issue a certificate. The ryot might come forward to make his objections; and when the Collector was satisfied, he would confirm or modify his certificate, which would then have the effect of a decree. Here again the object was to save the worry and expense of a civil suit as much as could possibly be done.

The HON'BLE MR. RIVERS THOMPSON said he wished to submit to the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill whether it was not desirable that these balances should be recovered as arrears of revenue instead of as demands under Act VII of 1868. It would be in the knowledge of the Council that claims adjudged to be due as a Government demand under the Collector's certificate could afterwards be contested in a regular suit in the civil courts; whereas in cases decreed as arrears of revenue no civil suit would lie. The procedure under Act VII of 1868 was much the same in both cases; and if the object of the present legislation was to prevent the harassment and expense of civil actions, it seemed clear that the process of recovery as arrears of revenue would at once secure the object aimed at without opening the door to subsequent litigation after the Collector had issued his certificate..

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he particularly omitted the consideration of that point, because he hoped to have the advantage of the opinion of their colleagues in committee. He had, however, in the Bill made the debt an arrear of demand only. What his hon'ble friend had said was very true, that it would be better to make the certificate of the Collector final, and not contestable in the civil court; and it would be very desirable to do so if the committee who were appointed to consider the Bill saw fit.

THE HON'BLE BABOO DIGUMBER MITTER SAID—"I must confess that I do not see how the provisions of Act VII of 1868 can be made applicable towards the recovery of loans in money and grain which the Government had advanced to the ryots during the late scarcity, if, as I presume, it is the intention of the Hon'ble Mover that the ryots' tenures should be held primarily liable for these loans. That Act contemplates the recovery of the revenue demand by the sale of tenures held directly under Government, and which, by the customs of the country, are transferable. I am afraid that the majority of the ryots who had taken such advances, even if they held any land at all at the time, are either tenants-at-will, or at best have only a right of occupancy in the land they cultivate. The holding of the first, I need not say, is not saleable, and that of the latter, even where saleable, is not likely, in many instances, to fetch a price at all sufficient to cover the advance made: indeed, I feel doubtful if any ryotee tenure held under the zemindar without a registered mowrossee lease will obtain purchasers when offered for sale to the highest bidder at a public sale, inasmuch as the purchaser has no likelihood of obtaining possession of what he purchased without much litigation, and without the active co-operation of the zemindar under whom the tenure is held. In fact it will be difficult, if not in many instances altogether impossible, to obtain the necessary information, without which the tenure intended to be sold cannot even be notified for sale. I mean the boundaries of the tenure, the quantity of land comprised in it, the rent payable in respect thereof, and the terms and conditions under which it is held of the zemindar. The proposed measure does not make any provision to that effect, and I do not see what means can be devised towards obtaining correct information on the points in question, except through the intermediation of the zemindar under whom the tenure is held, and I cannot guarantee that many zemindars will volunteer such information, especially when there are no means of testing their correctness. The same objection will apply to the recovery of these loans by the sale of the tenures of the sureties, where the sureties are a collection of villagers. The difficulties alluded to are not likely to be met with in the sale of tenures held directly under Government, and hence it is that the Act in question has worked smoothly in the recovery of the Government demand from its own tenants; but I am afraid it cannot, by any possibility, be made applicable to the purposes of the proposed measure. I am fully alive to the sacred character of the debt, and to the necessity of enforcing its speedy repayment in justice to the general tax-payer. The sum covered by these grain loans, though large in itself, represents but a small proportion of the vast outlay which the Government has incurred in affording relief during the late scarcity. Nothing will therefore afford me greater satisfaction than to render such assistance as lies in my power in devising some project of law for the recovery of these loans; and if I am permitted to offer a suggestion towards that end, I would respectfully submit that, instead of proceeding against the holding of the ryot, it would be much more safe and effectual to proceed against his crop. I do not deny that my proposal is open to many objections; but they do not appear to me to be of such a nature as might not be overcome by fair and equitable means. The great objection which might be taken to it is, that such a proceeding would deprive the zemindar of the best security which by law he now possesses for the punctual recovery of his rent, inasmuch as both by prior and the existing laws the produce of the land is held to be hypothecated for the rent payable in respect thereof. But this difficulty, I respectfully submit, might be very equitably met if the repayment of these loans were spread over a number of years, say from three to five, according to the condition and means of each debtor, as in that case the debtor's crop would, I think, be quite sufficient to meet each instalment as it fell due, after fully satisfying the zemindar's claim. It must not be lost sight of that to pay the Government cla m the ryot will have to sell two and a half times as much rice as he had received in advance; for there is little doubt that rice will sell for thirty seers the rupee this year, whereas the ryot had to purchase it at twelve seers the rupee from the Government stock. Their case is a hard one, and is well deserving of the kind and indulgent consideration of Government The measure which I have taken the liberty to propose, while affording greater facility and certainty in the recovery of the Government dues, might, I humby think, be the means of saving the ryots from certain ruin, as I am afraid such would be the case if the Government demand were enforced in one payment."

THE HON'BLE BABOO JUGGADANUND MOOKERJEE said, the summary power proposed by the Bill to be given to the Collector seemed to him to be a reasonable mode of procedure, because he thought the Collector was the person who ought to know what was the condition of the ryot, and what were the means by which the debt which was incurred should be paid. The Collector, no doubt, would do his best to save the ryot, and at the same time he would also take care that the Government money should not be lost. For these reasons, BABOO JUGGADANUND MOOKERJEE thought that the summary power proposed to be given to the Collector was proper and good. But there were certain difficulties in dealing with these matters The Act which was to be made applicable was Act VII of 1868, and the principal of those difficulties appeared to him to be that in that Act no discretion had been left to enable the Collector to deal with leniency if, in his judgment, he thought leniency was required. And therefore BABOO JUGGADANUND MOOKERJEE proposed that some sort of discretion should be left in the hand of the Collector by which, if he thought that certain difficulties would arise, or that the ruin of the ryot was imminent, he might, in such cases, exercise that discretion. If that were done, BABOO JUGGADANUND MOOKERJEE thought the objections raised by the hon'ble member who last spoke would be met entirely; because the whole of his objections referred, not to the summary procedure, but to the proceedings which would be taken after the certificate was made, and after the Collector had declared that such and such money was due. Therefore his hon'ble friend's objections referred to the proceedings after the making of the certificate The difficulties which had been brought to notice by the hon'ble member would be met if a discretion was vested in the Collector; and because that discretion was wanting in the Act of 1868, he thought some discretion should be given to that officer to deal with cases under this Bill.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said, as he understood the objection of the hon'ble member on the right (Baboo Digumber Mitter), it appeared to him to be founded to a certain degree on misapprehension. He understood the hon'ble member to speak as if the realization under the Act could be made by the sale of the tenure of the debtor, and by no other means. But that was not the case. The certificate of the Collector simply had the force of a decree; and amongst the things that might be sold in execution, tenures were included. It gave the power of selling them, but it also conferred the power of proceeding against the personal property of the debtor By Section 24 it was enacted that every certificate made by the Collector might be enforced by all or any of the ways and means mentioned and provided in and by Act VIII of 1859 for the enforcement of decrees for money. The certificate being nothing more than a decree for so much money due to the Government, the Collector, as agent of the Government, would of course be able to exercise the discretion which another hon'ble member (Baboo Juggadanund Mookerjee) had suggested should be given to him. The Act said that the certificate "may" be enforced; not that it "must" be enforced at once. From what hon'ble members had seen to be the action of the Government during the famine, they might fairly assume that the Collector would treat the debtor with all possible leniency. When the Government had helped the tenure-holder with a loan of food or money, it was hardly to be supposed that the Government officers would sell their tenures and reduce them to pauperism immediately. Speaking personally (for he had not had the advantage of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor's views upon the subject), MR. DAMPIER felt that the Government officers might be relied on to treat the ryot with all forbearance, especially as regards the sale of his tenure. No doubt, however, this was a point for the consideration of the Select Committee, on which he should ask the hon'ble member on his right (Baboo Digumber Mitter) to sit, and very likely some provision of this sort might be introduced, that a tenure should not be proceeded against until less ruinous measures had first been tried.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG said he agreed with the hon'ble member opposite, that the power of the Collector should be well considered and carefully defined, for it would be hard to proceed summarily against tenures. In the absence of information as to the conditions under which loans had been made, it was impossible to consider the merits of the Bill before the Council. The loans had, he presumed, been made to the poorest classes of the people,—to those who had been absolutely destitute, having no means whatever to support life or cultivate their land. Accepting that to have been the principle on which the loans had been made, it seemed to him somewhat questionable whether summary powers ought to be given to the Collector to levy from those ryots, who being destitute at the time they availed themselves of the Government advances, must necessarily be in straitened circumstances a few months hence. It must be conceded by the Council that all those to whom advances were made should, as soon as their circumstances admitted, be called upon to pay. But, on the other hand, the Government should not press their claims too rapidly. He thought, therefore, there should be some provision in the Bill, to the effect that when these men were not in a position to pay the whole at once, they should be allowed to pay by instalments, and their property should not be sold up in the summary way which appeared by the Bill to be contemplated.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER believed that it was out of order for the hon'ble member to speak after the member in charge of the Bill had made his final reply, but MR. DAMPIER had nothing to add to the remarks which he had already made.

The motion was then carried, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee, consisting of the Hon'ble the Advocate-General, the Hon'ble Mr. Schalch, the Hon'ble Baboo Digumber Mitter, and the Mover.

REGISTRATION OF JUTE WAREHOUSES.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG said that this Bill dealt with the law for the registration of jute warehouses, and also made provision for the establishment of an efficient fire-brigade. The attention of Government had been called to the necessity of some slight amendment in the law, owing to very strong representations received from the owners of jute warehouses, especially those residing in the suburbs, which were supported by the Suburban Municipal authorities and the Chamber of Commerce. Act II of 1873 of this Council imposed many very stringent provisions for bringing under efficient control jute warehouses. The provision of the law which was chiefly objected to was that found in Clause 1 of Section 7, which provided that no jute should be combed or dried save within a building, the walls of which should be of burnt bricks, and so on. The memorialists represented that jute was often received in the warehouse in a damp, wet state, and to dry it it was absolutely necessary that it should be exposed to the sun and air; that in jute warehouses, especially in the suburbs, there would be no danger if a relaxation of the restrictions in the existing law were granted by the Council. He was quite prepared to admit that there was much force in the arguments brought forward by jute warehouse proprietors and the Chamber of Commerce. However, in dealing with a question of relaxation of the existing restrictions, the peculiar circumstances which called the Act into existence should be borne in mind. In 1871, in the very heart of Calcutta, there had been some disastrous fires, which caused great loss of property, and which also endangered all property in the neighbourhood. This caused universal alarm throughout Calcutta, and all the influential public bodies—the Chamber of Commerce, the British Indian Association, the Trades Association, and the Municipality—came forward and urged on the Government the absolute necessity of taking stringent measures for bringing under strict control the jute trade, which was then growing fast into importance. Urged by these authorities Act II of 1872 was passed, and the Council availed itself of the opportunity of providing for the establishment of an efficient fire-brigade. Fortunately, since the passing of that Act there had been no serious fires; but because we had been relieved for a time from the fear of fires, the cause which called the Act into existence should not be lost sight of; and the Council should bear in mind the very great risk which must necessarily follow the storage of jute within the town and suburbs. He thought the request made by the Chamber of Commerce and the jute warehouse proprietors might, in a measure, be conceded by relaxing the restrictions in regard to those jute warehouses which were situated away from crowded localities, but the law should not be relaxed in regard to warehouses which were situated in crowded localities in Calcutta or the suburbs. He proposed also, if permission were given to bring in a Bill, that we should deal with a few other points which seemed to require amendment. Recently certain decisions had been arrived at by some of the Magistrates in connection with Section 14 of the Act. That section provided that—

"Whoever, in contravention of the license, shall introduce or use in any jute warehouse, in which jute or cotton is kept or deposited, any fire or lucifer matches, or shall smoke therein, and whoever shall violate any of the conditions or restrictions under which the said license is granted, shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding fifty Rupees for any one such offence"

Nearly all the Magistrates held that the penalty could be inflicted on the person or persons who were in responsible charge of the jute warehouse. Some Magistrates, however, and notably one who decided a case only a few weeks ago, held that the actual offender, that was to say, the coolie who deposited the fire, could alone be brought under the section. That seemed to him to be a narrow view of the law; but it was well to remove the possibility of a recurrence of such a decision by an amendment of the law. Again, there was another point which related specially to Calcutta, which demanded attention, and that was the prevalence of the practice of loading and unloading jute carts on the public roads. When licenses were granted for the establishment of jute warehouses, the proprietors should, he considered, be compelled to have arrangements within their own premises for loading and unloading. The Council were aware that the streets in the native portion of the town were very narrow; and when a string of forty or fifty carts were brought to a warehouse situated in that part of the town, the thoroughfare was completely blocked. This point, he thought, was worthy of consideration when the Bill was brought before the Council. With these few remarks he begged to move for leave to bring in a Bill to amend Act II of 1872 of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council (an Act to amend the law for the registration of jute warehouses and to provide for the establishment of an efficient fire-brigade).

The motion was agreed to.

IRRIGATION WATER-RATES.

THE HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said the Council were aware that a project for canals in Orissa was undertaken first by a Company under a contract with the Secretary of State. A law was passed, Act VIII of 1867 of this Council, for the general working of irrigation and facilitating the recovery of water-rates, and the mechanism of the arrangement was that the Secretary of State was supposed to purchase from the Company all the water used for irrigation, and that the money due by those who used the water was due to the Secretary of State. The law made provisions such as these, making it legal to stop the supply of water if the persons who took the water failed to pay the rate due, prescribing penalties for the waste or theft of water, giving permission to the officers of the Company to enter upon any land in order to detect surreptitious irrigation, and so on. When the Company sold the irrigation works to Government, Act VI of 1869 of this Council was passed, which re-enacted the provisions of the former law and adapted them to the new state of things. It empowered the officers of Government to do the things which the officers of the Company were empowered to do under the former law. But from the preamble of the two Acts, it would be seen that they applied only to the supply of water in the districts and deltas of the rivers Mahanuddy, Byturny, and Brahmany, and their affluents, the rivers in Orissa. The irrigation works had, however, been opened with very great success in the district of Midnapore, and would be extended no doubt to other districts gradually. The existing law did not extend to Midnapore or other districts, nor was there given to the Government power to extend it. The object of the Bill he asked to introduce was simply to make the Orissa Irrigation Law applicable to other districts of Bengal to which the Lieutenant-Governor might think proper to extend it. Of the existing Acts, the second repealed certain sections of the first. He should propose to repeal both of those Acts, and to re-enact the whole law in one Act of a few sections, and such amendments as experience had shown to be necessary could be made at the same time. He had, therefore, now the honor to ask leave to bring in a Bill to provide for the recovery of rates for water supplied for purposes of irrigation in Midnapore and elsewhere.

The motion was agreed to REALIZATION OF ARREARS IN GOVERNMENT ESTATES.

THE HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said that to explain the object of the next motion on the List of Business, he must review the history of the law on this subject. Regulation VII of 1799 was, as the Council were aware, passed as the result of much tentative legislation. Several Regulations had been passed, and were successively modified, and at last the law settled down into Regulation VII of 1799. The provisions of that Regulation, with which the Council were now concerned, remained in force for more than sixty years, until Act VII of 1868 of this Council made a change, which rendered this Bill necessary. Section 25 of Regulation VII of 1799 contained the law as it then stood.

"When lands are attached by a Collector, or other officer of Government, under the present Regulation, or become subject to a khas collection on the part of Government under any Regulation authorizing the same, or by any means come under the immediate management of the officers of Government, so that the rents are collected by them from the ryots, jotedars, dependent talookdars, under-farmers, or other descriptions of under-tenants, the Collector, in addition to the power vested in him, and in the officers employed under him, by Section 19 and the preceding sections of this Regulation, is authorized, without any previous application to the Dewanny Adawlut, to proceed against defaulting under-renters, of whatever denomination, from whom arrears of rent may be due, and their sureties, in the same manner as he is authorized by Section 23 of this Regulation to proceed against sudder farmers paying revenue immediately to Government, and their sureties, if he shall consider this mode of procedure more likely to be effectual in causing payment of the arrear due from them: and in such cases he is authorized to issue the process directed in Section 5 of Regulation XIV, 1793, on the report of the tehsildar, or other officer employed to make the collections, as in cases of arrears due from proprietors or sudder farmers whose revenue may be made payable to a tehsildar, or the tehsildar or other collecting officer may, in particular cases, where he may have reason to apprehend the elopement of the defaulter or his surety, himself arrest and convey him to the Collector."

The effect of this section was that the Collector might proceed against ryots in the same way as he might proceed against farmers of revenue. Briefly, it meant that the Collector might attach his holding, arrest him, place him in the custody of peons if he showed any inclination to settle, then send him to the civil jail to be kept there until he paid the amount due; even a tehsildar might arrest a defaulter and send him in to the Collector. The point to which he wished to draw the attention of the Council was that ever since 1799 the law had given the Government the power of levying arrears from its tenants without previous application to the Civil Court. That law having been in force for upwards of sixty years, Act VII of 1868 was passed by this Council, and Section 29 of that Act repealed Section 25 of the old Regulation. It was evidently the object of the Act to substitute the certificate procedure for the old procedure of arrest and keeping under pyadahs, and so on. But in re-enacting the provisions of the law, Act VII of 1868 was so framed that ryots who did not possess transferable tenures slipped out of it; the old law was repealed as regards all tenants, whether holding tenures of a transferable nature or not, and powers of realization were only re-conferred as regards those tenants whose tenures were transferable. Under the interpretation clause, arrears due from "tenures" only were "demands" within the meaning of the Act, and the definition of "tenure" under the Act included only all interests in land other than estates which, by the terms of the grants creating the same, or by the custom of the country, were transferable; so that the Act in no way applied to arrears due from tenants who had not a transferable right in their tenures. It was obviously inconsistent that the lower degree of tenants should be more protected in respect of the realization of the demands of Government than those tenants who held the right of transfer. Therefore, in proposing this Bill, Mr. Dampier only asked that the Government be restored to the possession of the power, exercised by it for nearly seventy years, of recovering arrears due to it from tenants who had no right of transfer, without going through the forms of a civil suit. The want of this power was much felt, because of late the policy of the Government had been to keep large estates under the management of the Government officers, instead of farming them out in blocks, and he thought that policy had met with success.

He had already that day described the certificate procedure, and would say no more than to ask leave to bring in a Bill for the realization of arrears of rent due from ryots, other than tenure-holders in Government estates, by declaring such arrears to be demands within the meaning of Act VII of 1868 of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council.

The motion was agreed to.

CALCUTTA MUNICIPALITY.

The Honble Mr. Hogg said the present municipal law of Calcutta was created under the provisions of Act VI of 1863 of this Council. This Act had been in work for over nine years, and on the whole it had worked satisfactorily. By it the Chairman of the Justices had the executive control of the municipal affairs of the town, and he had associated with him an influential body of European and Native gentlemen to assist him in the discharge of his duties. In the working of the Act during the last nine years many defects had from time to time been found to exist in the law, which had been amended by special legislation. Consequently we had now fourteen Acts by which the municipal government of the town was regulated. The Acts referred to were now in some instances difficult to interpret, and the provisions of all the Acts were not quite consistent; and it was thus difficult for the public to understand the rules and laws by which the Municipality were guided. It was now proposed to consolidate the Municipal Acts into one, and to take this opportunity to make some slight amendment which the practical working of the law had proved to be necessary.

The most important amendment required was one in connection with the water-supply, as the law now imposed obligations on the Justices which, under existing circumstances, they could not carry out. The water-supply works were designed for the supply of six million gallons daily, but unfortunately that quantity was not found to be nearly sufficient; the consequence was that, as the demand for water was in excess of the supply, the Justices were unable to keep up the pressure on their mains required by the Act, viz. a pressure sufficient to deliver water throughout the town at a height of fifty feet from 5 A.M. to 8 P.M. daily.

As the consumption of water was greatly increased, owing to defective fittings and careless waste, a great saving in water would be effected by relieving the Justices of the obligation of maintaining high pressure on their mains during the whole day, and he thought that this might be done without causing much inconvenience to the public.

However, he merely threw this out as a suggestion, as some other remedy might be found.

Besides the water-supply question, other amendments of a trivial character would be proposed, with the details of which he need not now trouble the Council. With these remarks he asked leave to bring in a Bill to consolidate and amend all the Calcutta Municipal Acts.

The motion was agreed to.

POSSESSORY TITLES IN LANDED ESTATES.

THE HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER moved for leave to bring in a Bill to provide for the compulsory registration of possessory titles in landed estates. In doing so, he said the obligation on zemindars and proprietors of estates to register their names in the Revenue Office was nearly as old as the Regulations themselves. Regulation XLVIII of 1793 and the other Regulations quoted in Regulation VIII of 1806, as well as Regulation VIII of 1800 itself, prescribed that the Collector should keep up registers of landed proprietors. Section 21 of the last-named Regulation more distinctly imposed the obligation on the zemindars of reporting their possession. The section ran as follows:—

"The Collectors may be regularly informed of all future changes in the property of malguzary estates or lakheraj tenures within their respective zillahs for the purpose of entering the same in the prescribed registers. All persons succeeding to the property of any malguzary estate or lakheraj tenure, whether by inheritance, purchase, gift, or otherwise, are required to notify such succession, immediately after the same may have taken place, to the Collector of the zillah in which the estate or tenure succeeded to may be situated, and to furnish such information as may be necessary to enable the Collector to make the prescribed entries in the public registers."

The obligation to report to the Collector was to be enforced by such fine as might be imposed by order of the Governor-General in Council on a report of all the circumstances of the case being submitted to him.

It would be seen that this was a cumbrous procedure even in those days, when the chain of authorities between the Collector and the Governor-General in Council did not consist of so many links as now existed. Before the Collector could enforce registration or inflict any penalty, the whole of the details of the case had to be sent up to the Governor-General in Council. In 1837 the Board of Revenue represented that the provisions of the law were very laxly acted upon by the Collectors on the one hand and the zemindars on the other. The Collectors allowed dakhil-khárij cases to hang on their files, and such zemindars only as chose to do so reported their succession to the Collector. The Board recommended that the cumbrous mode of enforcing the penalty should be done away with; that the application should be enforced first by a summary fine to be imposed by the Collector, and, secondly, by imposing upon proprietors who had not registered their names the disability to recover rents by any legal process. The Government of India did not altogether agree in the appropriateness of the second of these measures, the imposition of the disability he had mentioned, and there the subject rested till 1852. The question was then again raised, and officers were consulted throughout the country. The opinions they gave contained almost every possible variety of view as to the necessity of enforcing registration, the best mode of doing it, the amount of vexation and harassment which such a measure would entail, and as to the penalty by which it should be enforced. The Board were unanimous as to the benefits that should ensue from registration. But one member of the Board, Mr. Gordon, held that good as the result might be, they were not worth the vexation, trouble, and discontent which any such measure would cause. Mr. Ricketts and Mr. Currie, on the other hand, considered that the harassment and vexation were over-rated, and that the advantages would very far outweigh the disadvantages of the proposed measures, and they submitted a draft Bill to provide for compulsory registration. But that was a very ambitious draft, one of its objects being to give greater security to titles. It went up to the Legislative Council of the Government of India, and there the measure was shelved, owing mainly to objections recorded by Sir Barnes Peacock. MR. DAMPIER would read to the Council a portion of that gentleman's Minute, and he begged them particularly to observe that the objections did not apply to the measure he was now asking leave to introduce. Sir Barnes Peacock wrote:—

"I do not thoroughly understand upon what grounds the majority of the Board of Revenue, Mr. Ricketts and Mr. Edward Currie, recommend the passing of the proposed Act for the registration of mutations, but I collect that they intend it to be a registration of rights, and not merely of the persons in lawful possession."

Here MR. DAMPIER begged to point out this radical difference between that measure and the one he was about to introduce. The Minute went on:—

"It is stated in the letter from the Secretary to the Board of Revenue of the 20th April 1852, that the Board are unanimously of opinion that the introduction of a correct system of registry would be attended with the best and most satisfactory results; and the Board observed 'that by rendering land a surer investment for money, it could not fail to give rise to an immediate increase in the value of landed property; it would for the same reason decrease the usurious interest at present demanded for money advanced upon land; it would facilitate, and in consequence diminish, the cost of obtaining sureties; it would tend to decrease litigation; and whilst for all these reasons it would not prove otherwise than acceptable to every honest, well-intentioned landed proprietor if unattended with undue inconvenience and expense, it would also be of assistance to Government in the administration of all matters connected with the fiscal, judicial, and police arrangements of the country.' If it is intended that the registration shall be a registration of rights, it appears to me that the system proposed will entirely fail in its objects.

"If it is intended that any reliance shall be placed in the register by persons about to purchase land or to lend money upon the security thereof (and unless the register is to be so used I do not see how it can render land a surer investment for money), I think it will be worse than useless, as it will frequently record persons to be the owners of rights which do not belong to them, and may thus be made an instrument of fraud."

MR. DAMPIER would again repeat that he had read this portion of the Minute for the purpose of showing the Council that the objections which led to the project of 1852 being set aside did not apply to the measure which he was asking leave to introduce.

Then, in 1854, Mr. Sconce, Judge of Chittagong, irrespective of anything which had gone before, came up of his own motion, and asked the Government to pass an Act for the registration of the names of the landed proprietors, and it seemed to MR. DAMPIER that this draft should form the best model for the one which he proposed to introduce. Again, the subject was dropped until 1872, when the Board of Revenue, now represented by Mr. Schalch, again strongly pressed the necessity of passing such a Bill. HIS HONOR the President read extracts from this letter at the last meeting of the Council, but MR. DAMPIER would run over them again:—

"The Member in charge called on the several Commissioners to report whether or not the requirements of that section, as well as of Section 21 of the same Regulation (regarding notices of succession to estates), were generally observed; and from the replies to this call it would appear that the practice enjoined by both sections has in the case of the first altogether ceased, and in that of the latter is only observed whenever it may suit the parties to obey the law, and that the penalty for disobedience prescribed by the law is never inflicted."

MR. DAMPIER had omitted to say that on Mr. Sconce's draft the Board, on being consulted, held a different opinion. They said that no doubt strong reasons had existed for such a measure, while the law required that revenue due to Government from landed proprietors should be levied by process against the person, but that the reasons had lost much of their weight since the law had been altered so as to provide that such arrears should be realized by sale of the estate, without reference to the proprietors as individuals. Mr. Schalch, however, had now written as follows:—

"Since that period the legislature of Bengal has imposed many new duties of importance on zemindars, and obedience to the law is, in most instances, to be enforced by pecuniary penalties, the levy of which is dependent on a knowledge of the persons in actual possession of the estates in question and responsible for the discharge of the duties imposed upon them. Under former laws similar penalties being recoverable by the sale of the estates themselves, it was a matter of comparatively little importance to know the person in possession; but since the passing of Act VII (B.C.) of 1868, such penalties, even when recoverable as arrears of revenue, can be levied only by the process of certificates having the force of decrees of the civil court for money, and consequently when the person in possession of the estate to which the discharge of the duties imposed by law attaches is not known, the recovery of the penalty becomes certainly a matter of great difficulty, and in most instances practically an impossibility.

"Under these circumstances it appears to the Member in charge that it has now become absolutely necessary to enforce a registration of the names of the parties in possession of estates, in view to their being held the parties responsible for the discharge of the various duties which the law imposes on them as proprietors; and the Member in charge is of opinion that an endeavour should be made to devise a practical scheme for the purpose."

As to Sir Barnes Peacock's objection, Mr. Schalch said—

"But such objections could not, the Member in charge thinks, be urged against a law the object of which would be solely to determine summarily the question of possession, in view to fix the responsibility of persons holding actual possession of estates for the discharge of certain duties imposed upon them by the existing law, which would leave such decisions open to the final determination of the civil courts, and would in no way interfere with the existing law in regard to the prosecution and decision of all questions of right and title in the civil courts."

The Government had now very carefully considered this subject, and had come to the determination that a law of this kind was required, and that the Council should be asked to pass the measure. The Council were aware of the difficulties and vexations to which the ryots were exposed where they had to pay rent to a number of joint shareholders in estates. The Government had very carefully considered whether it would be desirable to enact that every proprietor should not only register his succession to possession, but also the share to which he had succeeded. On mature deliberation, the Lieutenant-Governor had come to the conclusion that this could not be done. It was hoped that another measure, to be presented to the Council hereafter, would provide that relief to the ryots which would have been afforded by the registration of shares. In some cases it would be very difficult, even if it would be possible, to register succession with specification of shares; for instance, some places in which the Mitakshara law was in force.

The existing law already provided the procedure which would fit into the measure which was now proposed. Act XIX of 1841 provided that whenever a person might leave "property, movable or immovable, it shall be lawful for any person claiming a right by succession thereto, or any portion thereof, to make application to the Judge of the court of the district where any part of the property is found or situate for relief, either after actual possession has been taken by another person, or when forcible means of seizing possession are apprehended."

The Judge was then to determine summarily the question of possession subject to a regular suit. The Act gave the Judge power to make arrangements for preventing waste of the property pending the decision of the suit, either by taking security from the party in possession, or by appointing a Curator, who might be the Collector. Section 18 of the same Act provided that the decision of the Judge upon the summary suit under the Act should have no other effect than that of settling the actual possession, but that for this purpose it should be final, and not subject to any appeal or order for review. If the measure Mr. Dampier proposed were to vest the Collector with jurisdiction to decide summarily the question of right to succeed to an estate under any circumstances, as some of the draft Bills which had been proposed were intended to provide, it would be necessary to bar the jurisdiction of the Judge under Act XIX of 1841; for it would never do to have the Moonsif trying summarily a question of right which the Collector had just decided summarily; the Moonsif's decision again being followed by a regular suit to reverse his decision. Mr. Dampier proposed to follow the model of Mr. Sconce's draft of 1854. That draft was in this wise.—Application was to be made to the Collector by any person claiming to have succeeded. If there was no opposition, the Collector, after giving due notice, would admit the applicant to registration. If his succession was contested, the Collector would try whether either party was actually in lawful possession on a colour of right, and, if so, the Collector would register accordingly. If he should find that neither party was in such possession, he would not make any registration, but (instead of simply throwing out the application for registration, as was now the practice,) he would certify to the Civil Court that such a case of disputed or uncertain succession had come to light, and would call upon that Court to try the case under Act XIX of 1841; whereupon the Judge would be bound to proceed exactly as if an application had been made to him by one of the parties under Section 1 of Act XIX of 1841. To provide against waste during the pendency of the suit, Mr. Dampier would authorize the Collector to exercise all the powers with which the Act vested the Judge in that behalf. To put it briefly, the Collector would decide the question of possession if no opposition was made good. If it were otherwise, he would still carry out the law for keeping his register correct as far as lay in his power. Instead of merely refusing to comply with the application for registry and leaving it to the parties to settle the matter as they might think best, he would say:—"I cannot decide this case on possession, and I call on the Civil Court to decide it by the summary procedure which the law has provided for the summary trial of questions of right." That was the scheme of the measure as far as it had already been sketched out, and he hoped that the Council would allow him to introduce the Bill.

The motion was agreed to.

INSPECTION OF STEAM-BOILERS AND PRIME-MOVERS.

The Hon'ble Mr. Hogg said that steam-boilers and prime-movers, working in Calcutta and the suburbs of the town, were now brought under inspection by Act VI of 1864 of this Council. It was found from experience that the use of steam machinery was greatly on the increase, and that native proprietors employed coolies unacquainted with the working of machinery to take charge of them. This matter had been brought to the attention of Government some time back, and they consulted the leading bodies and individual proprietors of steam machinery as to the expedience of amending the law so as to empower the Lieutenant-Governor to pass such rules as it might think fit for testing the qualification of the persons to be placed in charge of steam-boilers. The preponderance of opinion was very much in favour of amending the Act. In fact all the European firms and persons, and also the public bodies consulted, were of opinion that some such measure as was proposed was urgently required. The Native gentlemen consulted, however, did not seem to admit the necessity of the proposed legislation; they urged that now that the use of steam machinery was so much on the increase, it was inexpedient to restrict the use of it by calling upon the proprietors of such machinery to put qualified Engineers in charge: they urged that immediately an examination was required there would be a considerable rise in the wages of the managers of engines. Mr. Hogg concurred with the Native gentlemen in question, that it was not at all expedient that we should impose an unnecessarily stringent examination. But he could not admit that because the use of steam machinery was greatly on the increase, therefore legislation should not be resorted to in order to protect life and property in the town and suburbs of Calcutta. It was not intended, he was sure, that the test should be high, but that the Inspector of steam-boilers should be bound to ascertain that the person to be placed in charge should have practical experience of the management of steam machinery. Such a test was not only desirable, but absolutely necessary, when the use of steam was resorted to in so large and important a city as Calcutta. He should therefore ask for leave to bring in a Bill to amend Act VI of 1864 of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council (an Act to provide for the periodical inspection of steam-boilers and prime-movers attached thereto in the town and suburbs of Calcutta), with the view of enabling the Lieutenant-Governor to pass such rules as he thought fit for testing the qualification of persons to be placed in charge of steam-boilers, and to prevent unqualified persons being so placed in charge.

The motion was agreed to.

BOUNDARY MARKS.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier said that before touching upon the next motion which stood in his name, he might be allowed to give a little relief to the strain which he had put on the patience of the Council by saying that he would not proceed on that day with the last of the measures on the list regarding the law of butwarrah, and therefore the present was the last Bill with regard to which he should have to ask their attention. He asked leave to bring in a Bill to provide for the execution of surveys and for the erection of boundary marks. The Council were aware that the revenue survey of the districts of Lower Bengal had been completed; but the survey of the districts of Hooghly and Midnapore had been condemned. Hooghly had since been resurveyed; of Midnapore about half had been surveyed and half remained to be done. By the revenue survey of Bengal, in all save a few exceptional districts every acre of land had been assigned to the revenue-paying estate or lakhiraj tenure to which it appertained; every village boundary had been demarcated, some being settled after elaborate inquiries. The results had been carefully and scientifically recorded in registers and maps. Unfortunately there had been one omission, which went very far to detract from the benefits of the survey. The boundary lines, after having been demarcated, after having been settled judicially, had not been marked on the ground by any permanent pillars, and the result was that the boundaries could not afterwards be identified with any certainty. The officers of the professional branch of the survey had persistently and consistently urged on the Government what advantages were being lost by not securing the boundaries by permanent marks as soon as they were surveyed. Colonel Thuillier had said:—

"It is most difficult, if not altogether impossible, for any one, either professional or civil, to identify and trace out boundaries on the ground from the old maps, or to settle disputes with any degree of certainty where there are no natural boundaries."

The Council would understand that the difficulty consisted in relaying on the field from the map any given boundary line or point which had once been laid on the field, and then represented on the map. If no marks for identification were left on the ground, it was most difficult to recover the exact boundary with the help of the map only at a future time. Sir William Grey had written in 1868:—

"The Lieutenant-Governor was aware that many cases had occurred in which Revenue officers had found considerable difficulty in identifying on the ground the tri-junction points shown on the map, and that occasionally this was the subject of obstinate dispute. While considering it unnecessary to go to the expense of erecting pillars or platforms as a matter of course at every bend of a boundary, or at every tri-junction point, he thinks that a certain number of such marks would be advantageous. Colonel Thuillier advocated even a few pillars from each district to serve as leading points of departure in any investigation."

The Council were aware that where one point even was precisely identified, the professional surveyor would be able without difficulty to lay down the boundary from that starting point. The letter of the Government of Bengal went on to say:—

"And this view was also held by Colonel Dickens in paragraph 27 of his report on the reorganisation of the Survey Department, where he wrote:—'It is not necessary to have the points of tri-section of boundaries marked by permanent pillars or platforms; but a sufficient number should be constructed in all cases in which these cannot be easily fixed by reference to existing permanent buildings.'

"With advertence to these views the Lieutenant-Governor recommends that in future surveys permanent boundary marks be constructed at selected tri-junction points of villages, and that the selection of these points should be left entirely to the discretion of the professional revenue surveyor."

The Government of India at once accepted this view, and not only accepted it, but had very urgently pressed it on the Government of Bengal. It was obvious that the landed interest was the one which benefited directly by the survey and demarcation. Accordingly in every other part of India the cost of erecting and maintaining boundary marks was thrown upon the land. In 1869 the Government of India wrote:—

"The reports furnished by the Local Governments and Administrations shew that Lower Bengal is the only province in which no measures have been taken for securing the permanent marking of village boundaries; everywhere else masonry platforms or pillars are built to mark triple junctions or disputed boundaries, and the work both of erecting and maintaining them is carried out at the expense of the landholder."

Thus more than six years ago the Governor-General in Council, in concurrence with Sir William Grey, urged the introduction of such a Bill as was now proposed. Different circumstances led to its postponement from time to time, but the soundness of the principle had not during that time been called in question. Sir George Campbell held a strong opinion on the waste of power and expense which had occurred through not securing boundary marks. The last postponement of the measure was on account of the famine; and now a letter, as His Honor told the Council at the last meeting, had been received from the Government of India declaring that the Governor-General in Council had most decidedly made up his mind to the adoption, in future operations in Bengal, of the same system which prevailed in all the other provinces, and that the interest which benefited by the measure, and not the general tax-payer, should pay for it.

Sir William Grey wrote in the same letter—

"But if the boundary marks be erected on the principle now proposed, it is evident that they would be for the general benefit of all landholders in the neighbourhood; it would not be equitable to charge the cost of erecting each plantform entirely to the zemindar or zemindars between whose villages it might chance to be erected. The fairest arrangement would probably be to pass a law authorizing the Collector to erect such marks as may be considered necessary, and to call on the landholders to erect them if necessary, or to assist in erecting them, in the first instance, at the cost of Government; the aggregate cost incurred in constructing all the marks of one season being made recoverable as an arrear of revenue from all the landholders whose lands are included within the operations of the season, in proportion, perhaps, to area. Some similar arrangement may be made for the preservation of the marks after their first construction. The details will be best considered when the Bill is introduced."

The Government now proposed to spread the incidence of the cost over more interests even than Sir William Grey did; it proposed that the owners of land, and those having beneficial interests in land, the holders of all tenures (exclusive of the ryots who had only rights of occupancy), should contribute to the Member in charge was requested to consider whether items of demand not recoverable during the year ought not properly to fall within the rent-roll of the year during which they are legally realizable and are ordinarily collected. Subsequently, the Board submitted a proposal, which has received the approval of Government, by which these balances will be eliminated from the returns of the year, and the current demand will be confined to the amount of which the recovery can legally be enforced. The effect of this alteration will be seen in next year's report, which may be expected to show a somewhat diminished demand, and a somewhat larger percentage of collections.

8. Excluding districts in which the great bulk of the balances consisted of these nominal arrears, the principal districts in which the collections fell considerably below the average were those noted in the margin. In the 24-Pergunnahs a large amount was due from railway lands, and the Member in charge has called for an explanation from the Railway Deputy Collector. In Moorshedabad almost the whole balance was due from estates under the Court of Wards. In Pubna the arrears were on Government estates, and will be noticed hereafter. The explanations given of the balances in Backergunge and Tirhoot are not satisfactory. In Purneah a large part of the arrear is due from an estate which belongs to the Durbhungah Raj, and it does not appear why the amount could not be paid from other funds belonging to the minor, though the collections on this particular estate had to be suspended on account of the scarcity. The arrears in the Sonthal Pergunnahs were almost entirely due to suspensions arising from the famine.

9. The demands and collections on account of forest and miscellaneous revenue fell considerably short of the amounts shown last year, but no explanation of this is given in the report.

10. In Orissa the collections amounted to less than one-half of the total demand, but the balances were almost wholly nominal. Nearly the whole of the current balance was not realizable by law within the year, and the arrear balance consisted of demands suspended on account of the famine of 1866. The principle to be adopted in dealing with these suspended demands has been laid down by Government. The arrears will be written off the accounts in the case of those zemindars who are shown to have extended a corresponding indulgence to their ryots: in the case of other zemindars, inquiries are being made to ascertain that the accounts with their ryots have been duly adjusted, and that the concessions made by Government have been participated in by the classes for whose relief they were intended. It was hoped that the arrangements would have been finally completed during the year, but a few discrepancies in the statements still remain to be reconciled. The remissions in Orissa, amounting in all to Rs. 18,509, were mostly granted upon Government estates in Pooree, on account of loss of crops by inundation.

11. Of the current revenue demand in Assam, 98·24 per cent. was collected. The punctuality with which the land revenue is realized in Assam, though the demand per head of population is much larger than in adjoining permanently-settled districts, is very remarkable, and has, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, an important bearing on the argument so frequently advanced, that the stringency of the Sale Law in Bengal is indispensable to the security of the land revenue It is, however, to be noticed that the collection charges in Assam are 12·48 per cent.—a rate which is more than double of that which prevails upon Government estates in Bengal under khas management.

12. In estates the property of Government, the collections amounted to less than two-thirds of the current demand, and the explanations of the arrears are not in every case satisfactory. In Midnapore, Jessore, Pubna, and Shahabad, considerable balances are reported as being under recovery, but it is not stated how the arrears occurred, and why the amounts due could not be realized within the year. The large percentage of balances upon these estates, which forms a strong contrast to the regularity with which the demands of Government are ordinarily met by zemindars, appears to show either that Government estates are more highly assessed than others, or that the collecting agency employed upon them is less efficient. Under the arrangements now in progress for appointing regular tehsildaree establishments in all districts which contain any considerable Government estates held under direct management, the Lieutenant-Governor will expect to see this portion of the land revenue more punctually realized.

13. Thirty estates, the property of Government, with an average area of 100 acres each, were sold during the year, and fetched about 10 years' purchase of the Government demand. It is presumed that these sales were made subject to a revision of the revenue at the end of the term of settlement, but it is not stated in the report that this was the case. The whole question of the policy of selling estates of this kind is still under the consideration of Government: but the Lieutenant-Governor is inclined to think that eventually it will be found desirable to sell all estates which are not of sufficient value and importance to pay for the cost of a tehsildaree establishment.

14. The adoption of this principle would afford a solution of the difficulty stated in the 47th paragraph of the report to have been felt by Commissioners in carrying out the orders of Government, regarding settlements with village headmen and ryots. The Lieutenant-Governor has already said that he does not wish to insist on money security being taken in such cases, and that he is prepared to accept a certain amount of risk. But it appears that, even with this concession, it is not always practicable to effect settlements with ryots, and where this is found to be the case, the estate must either be sold, or be taken under direct management. It must be understood that there is to be no return to the practice of concluding farming settlements with persons possessing no permanent interest, and such settlements should only be made under very special and exceptional circumstances.

15. The most important settlements made during the year have been in the district of Midnapore, in which a special Settlement Officer is employed. Some large estates have also been under settlement in Noakholly and Shahabad, but in the Lower Provinces generally the transfer of officers to famine work has necessarily been a great hindrance to settlement operations. In Midnapore, the area traversed by Mr. Price's measurement parties was smaller than was anticipated, but satisfactory reasons are assigned for this, and the Lieutenant-Governor accepts the conclusion of the Member in charge that the amount of work done has been fairly good.

16. The deficiency of the rainfall had the natural effect of stimulating the demand for irrigation leases. This was especially the case in Midnapore, where the revenue of the year from irrigation rose from Rs. 21,876 to Rs. 78,378. In Orissa, in which the circumstances of the year were different, leases were taken for only 12,571 acres of land, and the people generally evinced little eagerness to avail themselves of the advantages of irrigation. But even in Orissa the development, though slow, is steady: though the area irrigated was small, it showed a considerable increase over the returns of the previous year; and the leases already executed for 1874-75 afford a pledge that the present year will display still more favorable results. In the Patna Division, the manner in which the Soane Canal works were made instrumental in arresting the progress of the famine has been noticed by the Lieutenant-Governor in his Minute upon the services of Famine Officers.

17. The operations of the year under the Land Acquisition Act present some exceptional features, which must prevent any comparison with other years, as regards the cost of acquisition estimated in proportion to the area acquired. The land taken up amounted to 20,615 acres, of which 19,500 acres were munificently presented as a gift by the Maharajah and the Maharanee of Burdwan for the improvement of False Point Harbour, and the establishment of a port station at Jumboo in the district of Cuttack. The area of lands for which payment was made was thus only 1,115 acres; but 8 lakhs of rupees had to be paid for two plots of land taken up for public offices in the city of Calcutta. The revision of the rules connected with the working of the Act is still under the consideration of Government.

18. The Lieutenant-Governor has noted the unfavorable opinion expressed by the Commissioner of Dacca of the utility of the new subordinate executive establishments. But it is satisfactory to find that this opinion is not shared by other Commissioners, nor is it endorsed by the Member in charge. It is, no doubt, the Lieutenant-Governor observes, very important to remedy the defects which the Commissioner points out. The Lieutenant-Governor agrees with Mr. Schalch in thinking that Canoongoes and Sub-Deputies, if properly selected in the first instance after due testing of their education and qualifications, and then if properly trained and supervised, can be made very efficient and valuable assistants of the District Officer, and that there need be no difficulty in finding them continuous and useful employment.

19. The proposals of the Commissioner of Orissa for remedying, by an application of the principle of compulsory partition, the evils which attend the present practice of paying rent in fractional portions, have been separately laid before Government. The Lieutenant-Governor, however, is inclined to believe that the excessive sub-division of estates, which the acceptance of these proposals would involve, would prove an evil at least as serious as that which it was sought to remove, and that the remedy is rather to be found in such a modification of the law of rent as will give the shareholders a strong inducement to concur in the appointment of a joint manager. The question is now under consideration with a view to the introduction into the legislature of a Bill framed upon this principle.

20. It would seem that in the opinion of Divisional and District Officers the working of the Sale Laws does not lead to hardship or injustice, the stringency of the law being tempered by the exercise of a judicious discretion in the application of it. At the same time cases of hardship occasionally come to light, and it appears to be generally believed that estates are sometimes brought to sale with the object of cancelling the tenures of subordinate proprietors. The Lieutenant-Governor feels some doubt whether it might not be possible, under certain safeguards, somewhat to relax the rigour of some portions of the present law, and to provide that notice of an arrear shall be given to those proprietors whose names are registered in the Collector's books.

21. The transfer of rent suits to the Civil Courts has, throughout the greater portion of the Lower Provinces, withdrawn this important class of cases from the direct supervision of the Revenue authorities. The Lieutenant-Governor has been sorry to find that there is much difference of opinion both among our officers and the people as to whether this transfer is proving satisfactory in its effects. Notices of enhancement and relinquishment are still served through the district Collector, and the number of these affords some index of the state of the relations between landlords and tenants. The Commissioner of Dacca has remarked that in those districts of his Division in which rents are highest, notices of enhancement have been most numerous, and he attributes this to the fact that the ryots of those districts are more inclined than others to resist the payment of irregular cesses, and that consequently landlords are driven to raise their rents. But the facts appear to admit of a simpler explanation. Where rents are low, it is probable that there is much unoccupied land, and landlords are ready to bid down to the terms which the ryot will accept; but in a thickly populated district the competition for land is keen, and the ryot is forced to bid up to the terms which the landlord may demand. The Lieutenant-Governor believes that the zemindars in Eastern Bengal have some justification in demanding a moderate share in the growing increment in the profits of cultivation. It is to be hoped that the ryots will remember the reasonable right of the landlord, and that the landlords will be scrupulously moderate in their demands, and that so any approach to an agrarian dispute may be avoided, inasmuch as the springing up of such disputes is greatly to be deplored as being sure to cause mischief to both parties concerned.

22. Of the Divisions in which rent suits are still tried by the District Officers, there was an increase in the number of cases in Orissa and Chota Nagpore, but not of a nature or extent to call for special remark. Throughout the country generally the pressure of the severe trial which so many districts have undergone has postponed the adjustment of the rent question, and when the matters in dispute again come under discussion, the Lieutenant-Governor hopes and believes that the forbearance which landlords in general have shown during the late period of difficulty will not be forgotten, and that both parties will approach the subject with mutual feelings of kindliness and moderation.

23. Revised rules for the sale of waste lands were issued during the year, but their practical working has not yet been tested, and the districts in which the principal transactions in waste lands occur have now been transferred to the Chief Commissionership of Assam. The Lieutenant-Governor has lately directed that the Western Dooars of Bhootan shall be excluded from the operation of the Sale Rules, and he has approved a scheme for granting leases in that tract under conditions which will afford an adequate security of tenure, while they give no encouragement to mere land speculation.

24. The Lieutenant-Governor observes with satisfaction that the Commissioners generally have conducted their duties during the year under report in a manner to merit the commendation of the Member in charge. Messrs. Ravenshaw and Bayley, Lord H. U. Browne, and Colonel Dalton, are noticed with special approval, and the subordinate officers mentioned in paragraph 111 of the report are also stated to have rendered valuable assistance. The Lieutenant-Governor desires to acknowledge in the fullest terms his sense of the value of Mr. Schalch's services in the Department of Land Revenue, and to offer his thanks to Mr. Money for his efficient administration of the business connected with partitions and with the acquisition of land for public purposes.

25. It is with great regret that the Lieutenant-Governor has learnt the untimely death of Mr. D. J. McNeile, late Secretary to the Board in the Land Revenue Department. In Mr. McNeile the Government has lost an officer of the best promise, whose career was distinguished by high abilities, by unflagging industry, and by a conscientious maintenance of principle.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

H. J. REYNOLDS,

Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

BOARD'S STAMP ADMINISTRATION REPORT, 1873-74.

RESOLUTION.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT—STAMPS.

Calcutta, the 31st December 1874.

READ—

A Report from the Board of Revenue, dated 12th October 1874, on the Administration of the Stamp Department for the year 1873-74.

THIS report has not been submitted until very late—it was not received by Government till the 10th November—and the Member in charge does not furnish any explanation of the delay in its submission. The Lieutenant-Governor desires again to impress upon all officers the importance of the prompt submission of their yearly reports.

2. The statement below shows the comparative results of the sale of stamps, other than postage and telegraph stamps, in the several Provinces and Administrations supplied by the Calcutta Stamp Office :—

	Rs.
Bengal	86,19,924
North-Western Provinces	36,76,252
Punjab	23,22,404
Oudh	9,13,767
British Burmah	3,86,544

3. In Bengal the comparative receipts from judicial and non-judicial stamps for the last four years are as follows :—

	1870-71.	1871-72.	1872-73.	1873-74.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Judicial and Court Fees ..	48,66,168	54,03,150	58,28,717	60,12,581
Other stamps, exclusive of postage and telegraph labels	25,11,116	25,15,675	25,62,030	26,07,341
Total ..	73,77,284	79,18,825	83,90,747	86,19,922

4. There continues to be a progressive increase in the stamp revenue which is mostly attributable to judicial receipts, but the general receipts also indicate a steady improvement. The largest stamp revenue is of course realised in the town of Calcutta, where the receipts amount to Rs. 15,29,303; in the 24-Pergunnahs the receipts amount to four-and-a-half lakhs; in Tirhoot and Mymensingh to more than three-and-a-half lakhs; in Jessore and Dacca to more than three lakhs; and in Backergunge, Burdwan, Tipperah, Chittagong, Midnapore, Patna, Nuddea, Bhagulpore and Moorshedabad, according to the order named, to between two and three lakhs of rupees.

The Board of Revenue have discussed fully the reasons given by the different Collectors for fluctuations in sales of stamps. The increase on account of general stamps is for the most part attributed to the failure of crops and scarcity, which obliged zemindars and cultivators to incur fresh loans; and His Honor observes that this explanation has been to some extent corroborated by a reference to the annual statements prepared by the Inspector-General of Registration. On he other hand, in such districts as Cuttack, where the season was one of great prosperity, and money was poured into the province in return for food-grains exported, fewer mortgage bonds for loans and the like were executed, and the receipts have fallen off. In Tipperah a similar result is attributed o the same cause. In Calcutta the sale of general stamps has increased, and the increase is doubtless correctly attributed by the Superintendent of Stamps to the impetus given to trade by the Government demand for rice.

5. The sale of adhesive receipt stamps has diminished from Rs. 43,247 n 1872-73 to Rs. 23,839 in 1873-74, but the reason for this large decrease is not very apparent. The Lieutenant-Governor observes the remarks made by Mr. Money on the difference between the English and the Indian Stamp Law, n respect to the mode by which stamps affixed to a document are required to be cancelled so as to be incapable of being used a second time. The English law specifies the precise mode of cancellation, viz. by the cancelling parties writing on or across the stamp his name or initials, or the name or initials of his firm, together with the date of his signature; but under the Indian Act persons are left to adopt any method of cancellation they may please. His Honor, however, is not inclined to think that any alteration of the law is necessary, as he does not believe that the fraudulent use of receipt stamps a second time is at all a common practice. What it is of more consequence to check is the systematic way in which the use of receipt stamps is evaded in small business transactions among natives, where the risk is apparently very small, and where the parties, as a rule, will keep the acknowledgment unstamped, or as long unstamped as possible. The remedy for this evil lies almost exclusively in the hands of the Civil Courts. Sir Richard Temple cannot but agree with the following remarks quoted by the Commissioner of Dacca from the report of one of the District Collectors in connection with this subject:—

"It is often difficult to distinguish between a deliberate evasion of the law and a mere omission arising from ignorance; but I have no doubt that evasion is very largely practised, and I think the Civil Courts are extremely lax in allowing documents to be stamped after execution. I was struck with a case which came to my notice a few months ago. A money lender in the town had lent Rs. 4,000 to a zemindar, taking an unstamped bond, which the Court of Wards had to defend. In this case there was not the shadow of any excuse for the bond not having been stamped in the first instance. Both parties must have been perfectly well acquainted with the law, and the transaction had taken place some years ago, so that there was plenty of time for a proper bond to have been drawn up. The moonsif, however, permitted the bond to be stamped on payment of a penalty of Rs. 400.

"The moonsif possibly thought he was doing better for the "sircar" in exacting the payment of this considerable amount than if he simply dismissed the suit, by which course nothing would have been credited to the revenue; but if he did think so, he was wrong! Infinitely better would it have been for the true interests of the revenue, that the suit in question should have been dismissed, and a notable instance placed on record of a man forfeiting irretrievably his indefeasible claim to a considerable property, as the penalty of his deliberate attempt to defraud the revenue."

6. The revenue from the sale of court fee stamps amounts to Rs. 60,12,581 against Rs 58,28,717 in 1872-73, which is a smaller increase than might have been expected in consideration of the known increase of litigation during the year. The receipts of court fee stamps are largest in Calcutta, where they amount to Rs. 8,60,506; in the 24-Pergunnahs,

Rs. 3,01,194; in Jessore, Rs. 2,72,339; in Mymensingh, Rs. 2,61,160; in Tirhoot, Rs. 2,51,945; in Backergunge, Rs. 2,08,091; and in Tipperah, Rs. 2,06,621. 69·8 per cent. of the whole stamp revenue is derived from judicial or court fees, and 30·2 per cent. from general stamps, as against 69·5 and 30·5 per cent. in 1872-73. The wide differences between the proportion borne by the two branches of the stamp revenue in different districts was shown in last year's report, and the same results are generally noticed this year also. The largest percentage of increase is in the town of Calcutta; and the recent disturbances in Pubna and Eastern Bengal have led to a large increase in the districts of the Rajshahye and Dacca Divisions.

7. There is a small increase in the receipts from postage and service stamps. The total revenue from postage stamps is a little over 15 lakhs; but though this is not a very large total for the population and size of the province, the increase for years past has been steady, and the percentage of increase is now larger than has previously been the case. Telegraph stamps amount to Rs. 14,30,620—an increase of Rs. 1,32,000 over last year's receipts, which is attributable to the new telegraph offices that were opened in the famine districts.

8. The total charges of the Department, and refunds, were less by 20·1 per cent. than they had been in 1872-73. The total cost of the process-serving establishment, which is debitable against the revenue derived from judicial stamps, was Rs. 6,52,359 for the whole of Bengal. The total charges and payments for the Department amounted to Rs 9,66,121; the total realisation to Rs. 86,82,545, leaving the net balance in favour of the Stamp Department at Rs. 77,16,124, or Rs 3,16,042 in excess of the previous year 1872-73.

9. During the year many cases of fraudulent abstraction of court fees stamps have been reported from the records of moonsifs' and sub-judges' courts. In Rajshahye, Jessore, Tipperah, Backergunge, Dacca, Ranchee, the Sealdah Small Cause Court, and in the 24-Pergunnahs, these cases have been brought to light, and there is reason to fear that a searching investigation would elicit similar cases in almost all the districts in the province. The question of the best mode of cancellation of adhesive court fees stamps, so as to prevent the fraudulent use of them a second time, has been under the careful consideration of Government. It is obvious that if these adhesive labels are to remain in use, the duty of defacing them must be carefully and thoroughly performed, and that the records should be inspected from time to time by a supervising authority to make sure that no room has been left for fraud by laxity. Officers have been desired, before passing orders on petitions or other documents presented to them, to see that the stamps affixed have been properly cancelled by punching out the figure-head, and the piece destroyed. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that all concerned will see the necessity of acting up to these orders.

10. The experimental scheme for the retail vend of court fees stamps through official instead of licensed vendors on the discount system was attended with difficulties and inconvenience, and has now been given up. The old system of selling through stamp vendors has been again resorted to, but a reduced discount of 1½ per cent. only is allowed.

11. The Lieutenant-Governor notices the approbation bestowed by the Board on the Commissioners, Messrs. F. R. Cockerell and R. L. Mangles, for the excellence of their stamp reports, and on Mr. J. B Roberts, the Superintendent of Stamps, for his careful and intelligent attention to the management of the Stamp Office. To Mr. Money His Honor's acknowledgments are again due for the efficient supervision he has devoted to the affairs of this important Department.

Acting Junior Secy. to the Govt of Bengal.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CHITTAGONG PORT FUND FOR THE YEAR 1873-74.

RESOLUTION.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.—MARINE. No. 3926.

CALCUTTA, THE 31ST DECEMBER 1874.

READ—

The Annual Report on the Chittagong Port Fund for the year 1873-74.

1. The form in which this report has been furnished is inconvenient, as it involves the necessity of continual cross references between the Conservator's report and the Commissioner's covering letter. The Commissioner is requested in future to submit a report as from himself, embodying in it those portions of the Conservator's report which he may consider worthy of reproduction or of comment.

2. The famine diverted to Western Bengal rice (produced in Tipperah, Backergunge, and other districts) which would otherwise have been brought to Chittagong for export both to Home and Foreign Ports. The number of ships visiting the port, and with it the receipts of the port during the year 1873-74, therefore fell considerably below the very high figures of 1872-73; still the receipts of 1873-74 show an increase over the average of the preceding five years, and the development of the port is steadily progressing.

The figures for the year under review, and for the two preceding years, are as under:—

		Receipts. Rs.	Disbursements. Rs.
1871-72	Port Fund	18,924	13,542
	Pilotage	9,585	3,806
	Total ...	28,509	17,348
1872-73	Port Fund	29.455	12,919
	Pilotage	19,760	3,306
	Total ...	49,215	16,225
1873-74	Port Fund and Pilotage ...	33,841	23,929

The alteration in the form of the accounts is owing to the recent amalgamation of the Port and Pilotage Funds which were previously kept separate, the surplus of the latter fund being absorbed, at the end of each year, into the general revenues of the country. The large increase in the disbursements was owing to expenditure on account of the Kootubdea Light-house, and Norman's Point Beacon protective works.

3. The year closed with a cash balance of Rs. 60,057 in favor of the Port, which had besides Rs. 27,800 invested in Government securities, as shown below:—

	Rs.
Cash balance at close of 1872-73	55,004
Government securities	27,800
Receipts during 1873-74	33,841
Interest on Government securities	1,109
Total ...	1,17,754
Disbursements during 1873-74 as detailed in the general statement annexed to the Commissioner's report	23,929
Ditto not entered in general statement	5,968
Balance in cash	60,057
Ditto Government securities	27,800
Total ...	1,17,754

The disbursements not entered in the general statement, but included in the balance sheet, consist of two items—one on account of dockyard charges not charged in 1872-73, and the other a contribution for the construction of a road.

4. The following table exhibits the number and tonnage of vessels engaged in the trade of the port during the last three years :—

	European vessels.		Mail and other steamers.		Country vessels.		Balam boats
	No.	Tonnage.	No.	Tonnage.	No.	Tonnage.	No.	Tonnage.
1871-72	47	21,898	68	22,385	154	25,731	710	11,293
1872-73	107	50,825	58	31,212	155	27,642	1,153	14,630
1873-74	66	30,424	62	34,820	154	26,531	1,611	24,529

This table shows an abnormal increase in 1872-73, by which the number of European vessels visiting the port was more than doubled, owing to a temporary increase in the demand for rice, as shown in the following table of exports of grain for the past three years :—

	To Foreign Ports.		To Home Ports.		Total
	Tons.	Value in Rs.	Tons.	Value in Rs.	Tons.	Value in Rs.
1871-72	32,962	13,61,451	23,639	9,76,771	56,601	23,38,222
1872-73 . .	66,427	26,94,209	37,284	14,19,857	1,03,711	41,14,066
1873-74	11,531	27,96,369	27,155	16,33,849	71,686	44,30,218

5. The imports of salt and earth-oil for the same period were—

	Salt.		Earth-oil.
	Tons.	Value in Rs.	Tons.	Value in Rs.
1	2	3	4	5
1871-72 ...	5,577	{ 7,59,100 Duty included. { 2,65,685 Exclusive of duty.	1,523	2,06,217
1872-73	9,457	{ 12,87,217 Duty included. { 4,50,525 Exclusive of duty.	1,953	2,79,968
1873-74	7,745	{ 10,51,229 Duty included. { 3,68,980 Exclusive of duty.	1,893	3,25,136

the year 1872-73 showing, in this case also, an abnormal activity in the trade of the port as compared with the preceding and the succeeding years.

6. The falling off in the export of rice as compared with the preceding year, has already been explained in paragraph 2 above.

7. The requirements of the port, referred to in the 11th paragraph of the Commissioner's letter, have already received the attention of Government. Application was made in the first instance to the Government of India for a loan of Rs. 50,000 on the security of the port revenues, and this was sanctioned in July 1873. It appeared, however, that this sum would be insufficient, and in July of the present year a further application was made to increase the loan to Rs. 90,000, but the reply of the Supreme Government to this reference has not yet been received. The amount of this loan, supplemented by a further sum from the balance standing to the credit of the Port Fund, will be sufficient to supply all that is at present needed. A further outlay would be required to meet the cost of laying down moorings in the harbour; but though the Conservator represents moorings as necessary, the Commissioner does not consider the urgency to be so great. The cost of 10 sets of moorings would amount to about three times the present annual receipts of the port; and under these circumstances the Lieutenant-Governor appre-hends, to his great regret, that it will be impossible to find the means out of revenue, and that these important appliances cannot be provided unless their cost can be provided for by loan.

8. The unsafe condition of the present jetty is noticed in paragraph 55 of the Conservator's report. Provision for the construction of a new jetty was made in the original loan of Rs. 50,000; but it has been ascertained from the Public Works Department that the commencement of the work has been delayed in consequence of the plans having been mislaid. Instructions have been given to prepare at once a fresh indent of the materials which it is proposed to procure from England.

9. The question of constructing a bonded warehouse, and of building or purchasing a buoy vessel, must await the decision of the Government of India, on the application submitted to them for the grant of an increased loan. The Lieutenant-Governor has noticed the remarks made in the 74th paragraph of the Conservator's report regarding the prevalence of cholera among the shipping, and he requests that the Commissioner will call upon the Civil Surgeon to draw up a full report on the subject. His Honor observes that it is not sufficient to frame rules for the treatment of those who may be attacked by the disease. If there is any ground for the opinion expressed by the Conservator that the sanitary condition of the shore in the neighbourhood of the port is the exciting cause of cholera among the shipping, measures should at once be taken for removing the evil.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

H. J. S. COTTON,

Offg. Junior Secy. to the Government of Bengal.

THE REPORT ON THE INSANE ASYLUMS IN BENGAL FOR 1873.

JUDICIAL.

Calcutta, the 5th January 1875.

The report on the Insane Asylums in Bengal for 1872.

THE Lieutenant-Governor has much pleasure in acknowledging the complete manner in which the statistics of the insane asylums in Bengal for the past year have been dealt with by the Surgeon-General in his report. The results of a series of years past have been subjected to a careful and exhaustive analysis; and the value of the usual annual returns has been much enhanced by the assistance thus afforded in contrasting those of one year with those of another, and in arriving at a just appreciation of the true significance of the figures they contain.

2. The subject which calls for the most prominent remark, is the rapidly progressive growth of the numbers in the native insane asylums. This has long attracted attention, and is once more forcibly pressed on the notice of Government with a view to an increase in asylum accommodation. The extent to which in successive years these numbers have increased is best seen by a reference to the figures showing the total population of the asylums on the 1st January of each year. In 1868, the number was 652 only. The average of the five years 1868-72 amounted to 739; while at the close of the past year it amounted to 1,003, compared with 972 at its commencement.

3. Similar results are observable on a reference to the daily average number of insanes in confinement. In 1873 this amounted to 991, against 903 in 1872, and 777 on an average of the five years 1868 to 1872. The total number of patients treated in 1873 amounted to 1,486, against 1,352 in the previous year, and 1,174 on an average of the five years. The increasing number of patients was not, it would thus appear, met by a proportionate decrease in the period of their detention. In 1873 this amounted, on an average, to 243·6 days, which is somewhat less than the corresponding figures for three years previously; but it is apparent, on considering the results of a longer series of years, that this improvement is temporary only.

4. The accommodation of chronic lunatics, who it is said constitute year by year in these asylums a larger proportion of the inmates, must result in a prolongation of the average period of detention. The same result is to be apprehended from the increasing number of a certain class of criminal lunatics. Under the amended law, these may be detained in custody indefinitely, without reference necessarily to their present state of mind; and cases not unfrequently happen in which it is inadvisable to release the criminal very soon after his recovery, as it may not be possible to do so consistently with the safety of the public and with a regard to the character of the offence committed. Such criminals form a mischievous element, which it is desirable to eliminate from the asylums, and the Lieutenant-Governor has under consideration a proposal to transfer them to the Presidency Jail. A reference has been made to the Inspector-General of Jails on the subject.

5. The average yearly number of admissions to the asylums during the period of five years ending with 1872 was 434·8. In 1873 they amounted to 514—a number which, however, was less by eleven than that of the previous year. The ratio of admissions to average strength was 51·8, or less by 4·1 per cent, than the average of the previous five years. The number of discharges and deaths fell short of the admissions by 31, or 3·1 per cent. on the average strength. Taking the average of the period of ten years, beginning with 1863, the difference appears to have been 6·3 per cent. The result has been that in the course of eleven years past the number of native insanes in confinement has all but doubled. Year by year an increasing strain has been put on the resources of the existing asylums. These institutions cannot be indefinitely extended. Dullunda, it is said, has already reached the limit which, under existing circumstances, cannot be passed with safety. The accommodation in the other asylums is in no way equal to their requirements. The pressure for space has been very great. Since the year closed, a new asylum at Berhampore, calculated to contain 225 patients, has been opened; and till other arrangements are practicable, the Lieutenant-Governor has decided to maintain also the Moydapore asylum, which the new one was meant to supersede. A considerable reduction has thus been effected in the number of patients in Dullunda and Patna; but no relief has yet been given to Dacca, where the overcrowding has been worst of all, and accompanied by a lamentably high death-rate. It was the intention of this Government to have pressed to an early completion the construction of an asylum at Tezpore to receive all lunatics belonging to the Assam districts, which, under existing arrangements, send their lunatics to Dacca. The Chief Commissioner has already been addressed on the urgent necessity which exists for such an asylum, and his attention will again be drawn to the matter. Meanwhile temporary expedients must be adopted at Dacca, and full use made of the Lalbagh barracks, in which inoffensive lunatics might remain till further orders. It may be possible, with the completion of the Central Jails at Bhagulpore and Midnapore, to use the district jail at one of these stations as an asylum for insanes, and the subject shall have the attention of Government. As the maintenance of these asylums is becoming more and more expensive to the State, the Lieutenant-Governor hopes that all Superintendents will be careful to exact payment from those patients or their friends who are able to pay, and to make the labor of the inmates as productive as possible.

6. The total number of criminal lunatics who remained in confinement at the close of 1872 was 209. The admissions and re-admissions during the past year amounted to 72, against 65 who were discharged or died, and 216 thus remained at its close. The daily average strength of this class of lunatics was 187·8 males and 24·3 females. It was suggested that a separate asylum should be built for these. In last year's resolution, however, the Lieutenant-Governor expressed his intention to provide a separate asylum—not for criminal lunatics as such, but for dangerous lunatics of any class. These were found to amount to 133—106 males and 27 females.

7. While on a comparison with 1872 there was in the past year a slight decrease (already noticed) in the number of admissions, there was an improvement in the death-rate and in the number of recoveries. Of the total number of persons under treatment, 278, or 18 per cent., were discharged cured. The chance of recovery is said to diminish with the duration of the disease, and the observation is borne out by the figures of the past year, which show that one-fifth of the cures reported took place in less than three months, one-half under six months, and three-fourths under a year. The ratios borne by cures and partial recoveries to average strength were 28·1 and 6·6 per cent. respectively, against 19·7 and 7·4 per cent. in the previous year.

8. The total number of deaths during the year was 119, or 8 per cent. of the total number treated and 12 per cent. of the average daily strength. The corresponding ratios on an average of five preceding years were 9·2 per cent. and 13·9 per cent. respectively. The mortality in the Bengal asylums compares not unfavorably with that in those of some other provinces, as will be observed from the following table:—

	Daily average strength.	Deaths.	Percentage of deaths to strength.
Bengal ...	991·4	119	12
North-Western Provinces	499·9	55	11
Central Provinces ...	232·4	26	11·2
Oudh ...	136·3	22	16·1
Punjab ...	283·5	61	21·5
British Burmah ...	129	11	8·5
Madras ...	307·47	42	13·6

As in 1872, there was a decided excess of deaths in the rainy and cold months. The number of deaths among short residents was larger than in either of the two years previous. This is especially noticeable in the Dacca asylum, where the death-rate on the whole was also high.

9. With reference to the causes of mortality, the peculiarities of 1873 are said to have been rather less cholera and more chest disease than usual. Dysentery and diarrhœa continue to be the great scourge of the asylums. The increase in chest diseases was confined to the Dullunda and Dacca asylums, and is attributed to overcrowding. In the latter institution a severe outbreak of cholera also occurred. With this exception, no epidemic prevailed in any asylum during the year. The sick-rate was rather below the average of the five previous years, though the daily average of sick for all asylums was 56·15, or slightly more than usual.

10. There is little calling for remark on the present report on the types of insanity or its causes. Of the 394 males and 120 females who were admitted to the asylum during the year, the majority were drawn from the cultivating and laboring classes, or were beggars, shop-keepers, or domestic servants. 70·6 per cent. of the whole were Hindoos; 26·1 per cent. Mahomedans, and the rest Christians or other castes. It is remarked that the districts where the asylums are situated are those which contribute the most insanes, because probably the residents of remote districts are unaware that provision is made by Government for the custody of lunatics. It is to be remembered, however, that the asylums are all situated in large towns, where cases of insanity are likely to attract more attention than among an agricultural population. Of the exciting causes of insanity, ganjah-smoking is still shown in the returns for the whole of the Lower Provinces as one of the most frequent; and it is observable that in many cases of re-admission the patients are said to have been confirmed smokers of the drug. The Lieutenant-Governor is giving special attention to the best means for further augmenting the check (which has been imposed of late years apparently with some success) on the consumption of this most deleterious drug.

11. The total expenditure of the asylums amounted to Rs. 1,01,641, against Rs. 88,057 in 1872. The average cost of each patient, after deducting

Rs. 1,824-5-4 (the amount realised from friends of patients), was thus Rs. 100-10-7. This increase in charge is in part only nominal, and due to a change in the system of accounts. It chiefly arises, however, from the increased cost of provisions; to the more generous dietary allowed; and to the increase in the number of persons in confinement.

12. Taking the asylums separately, the results of the past year may be summarised thus:—

Dullunda	581	138	39	40	364	369 2	8·6
Dacca	360	46	25	47	242	244 3	24
Patna	383	65	13	27	278	268 8	19
Cuttack ...	65	11	.	1	53	49 2	2·3
Moydapore	97	18	9	4	66	59·9	2·25

13. Dullunda.—Sir Richard Temple has had the advantage of inspecting this asylum, and considers its condition to be honorable to the Superintendent Dr. Payne, and the Deputy Superintendent Mr. Bancroft. Allowing 50 superficial feet for each patient, the buildings are calculated to accommodate 293 patients. This number was considerably exceeded in the past year, and the overcrowding in consequence has formed the subject of serious complaint. Steps were taken by Government to remedy the evil as soon as the completion of the Berhampore asylum rendered this possible. It is not, in the opinion of the Medical authorities, desirable that relief should be given by any increase in the accommodation at Dullunda itself, where the asylum has already reached the limits which cannot be exceeded consistently with efficient management. The pulmonary disease which prevailed during the year is pointed to as the direct result of overcrowding. It is observable, however, that it prevailed least in the female ward, where the overcrowding was greatest. The daily average of sick was slightly in excess of that in 1872, but greatly less than in any of the four preceding years. The death-rate was only 10·8 per cent., against 12 4 in 1872, and an average of 14·4 for the five years, 1868-72. The most fatal disease was dysentery. Considering that more than half those who died were, on admission to the asylum, in a bad or indifferent state of health, the results may be looked on as not altogether unfavorable.

14. The extent to which resort was had in asylums to the use of mechanical means to restrain refractory patients in 1872, formed the subject of unfavorable comment last year. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that in 1873 the practice has been kept within reasonable limits. He has sufficient confidence in Dr. Payne to accept the opinion expressed by that officer, that a certain amount of discretion must be left to the Medical Superintendent in the matter. Without insisting on an absolute abandonment of mechanical restraint, the Lieutenant-Governor hopes that it may be adopted sparingly.

15. The importance of providing insanes with industrial employment both as a preservative of health and as an effective aid in maintaining discipline is not lost sight of in this institution. On an average, all the patients present, except 48 including the sick, were engaged in some useful occupation. The total cash outlay in manufactures amounted to Rs. 21,826. The cash sales outside the asylum amounted to Rs. 11,339 only; but including the value of articles made over for asylum use, of those in store, and of the labor employed in repairs and petty constructions, the year closed with a balance of profit of Rs. 5,783. Deducting this from Rs. 49,879, the total expenditure on the asylum, the net cost of each patient is said to have been Rs. 117 only, against Rs. 123 in 1872. The results are satisfactory.

16. Dacca.—This asylum has been visited by the Lieutenant-Governor and found to be in good condition. There were 127 admissions and re-admissions to it against 118 discharges and deaths. The increase in the average daily strength of the patients from 218 in 1872 to 244 in the past year, reduced the superficial space available for the accommodation of each patient. The result is said to be apparent in the excessive number of admissions to hospital of patients suffering from pneumonia. This disease was very fatal, 47 per cent. of those attacked with it having died. There was also a sharp outbreak of cholera, which proved fatal in 11 out of 16 cases. On this occasion 50 harmless lunatics were removed to the Lalbagh barracks, where they must remain for the present. The daily average of sick was 24. The number of patients discharged cured compares favorably with the previous year, but is still much below the standard prevailing at Dullunda. The reason assigned is that Calcutta furnishes a larger proportion of acute and therefore curable cases than Dacca. The actual cash profit derived from manufactures was Rs. 2,163, but the estimated value of the patients' labor was no less than Rs. 6,833. The total expenditure of the asylum was Rs. 22,892, and the net cost of each patient a little over Rs. 91.

17. The experiment of boarding out harmless lunatics has been tried on a small scale in this asylum. The great obstacle to success is said to be a fear of the consequences in case the lunatics should escape or die. The system, if successful, would effect a considerable saving to Government, and might afford the best solution for the difficulty presented by the increase of lunatics in confinement. The Lieutenant-Governor hopes that some of the more influential inhabitants of Dacca may be induced to give their assistance in selecting fit persons for the charge of the lunatics and in prevailing on them to accept it.

18. Patna.—There were 126 patients admitted or re-admitted to this asylum, against 105 who died or were discharged. Of those who died, 15 are said to have been in a very bad or indifferent state of health on arrival, and there is some reason to fear that due care was not taken in removing them to the asylum. The mortality was due chiefly to diarrhœa, dysentery, and fever. The death-rate amounted to 10 per cent. of the average population—a high figure for Patna. The percentage of recoveries was 24·2, which is below the average, though better than in the previous year. The total expenditure in the asylum amounted to Rs. 19,412, and the cost of each patient to a little over Rs. 72. The estimated value of the lunatics' labor was Rs. 8,534.

19. Cuttack.—Sixteen patients were admitted to this asylum. Eleven were discharged cured and one died. There was little sickness among the inmates, notwithstanding some overcrowding. The total expenditure of the institution was Rs. 4,957, or Rs. 100-10-5 per head of population. The estimated value of the lunatics' labor was Rs. 711.

20. Moydapore.—The average population of this asylum was 59·9, against 44 in 1872. Forty-one persons were admitted or re-admitted, against 31, who died or were discharged. There were four deaths only, and the institution was healthy throughout the year. Of 18 persons cured, 17 recovered within a year of their admission. The total expenditure in this asylum was Rs. 4,998, giving a net cost of a little over Rs. 83 per head of population. The estimated value of convict labor was Rs. 1,323. The successful attempt to educate some of the patients here is very satisfactory and creditable to the native darogah who has taken much interest in the matter.

21. Bhowanipore Lunatic Asylum for Europeans.—The Lieutenant-Governor, on inspection, found the place comfortable and orderly. The management of this asylum (the returns of which are distinct from those already noticed) has continued to be satisfactory throughout the year. There has been happily a considerable falling off in the number of patients, the average number present having been 27 only. Of 56 persons treated during the year, 27 only were new admissions, against 66 admitted in the previous year. Fourteen patients were discharged cured, five were restored to their friends in an improved state, and nine were removed to Europe. The mortality was for this asylum high, the ratio to average strength being 14·7 per cent.; the result of four deaths, which are stated to have been caused by complaints such as must always be anticipated in an asylum for the insane. There was a falling off in the receipts of the institution, due to the decrease in the number of patients; they amounted to Rs. 3,966 only. Deducting this from Rs. 28,606, the total expenditure, the net cost of each patient is shown to be Rs. 912, more than half of which is debitable to the head of establishment.

The Surgeon-General bears testimony to the humane and careful supervision of each of these institutions by the Superintendents in charge, and the Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to record his acknowledgments for the efficient services rendered by them.

Ordered that a copy of this Resolution, together with a copy of the report, be forwarded to the Secretary to the Government of India, in the Home Department, for information.

Ordered that an extract from paragraphs 5 and 16 of the above Resolution be forwarded to the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Assam, with reference to the correspondence ending with his letter No. 406, dated the 21st September 1874, with the remark that the Lieutenant-Governor hopes it will be possible for the Chief Commissioner to make very early arrangements to provide accommodation in Assam for the lunatics belonging to districts now under his control, who are now confined in the Dacca Asylum, to which it is urgently necessary that some relief should be given.

Ordered that a copy of the above Resolution be forwarded to the Surgeon-General, Indian Medical Department, for information and guidance.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

RIVERS THOMPSON,

Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

BENGAL.
	Western Districts.
Burdwan Divn. 1	Burdwan, 4th* Jan. 1875	Nil	Rain would do spring crops good. Rice harvest nearly finished; outturn middling. Fever as before. A few cases of cholera.
2	Bankoora, 2nd „ „	Nil	Weather dry and cool. The haimanta, or late paddy, is being thrashed. State and prospects of the winter crops continue satisfactory.
3	Beerbhoom, 2nd „ „	Nil	Weather mild. State and prospects of crops good. Harvest nearly home. Cold-weather crops doing well.
4	Midnapore, 2nd „ „	Nil	Cold and clear weather. Light dews beginning to fall. No signs of rain. The harvest is still progressing, and except in the east is nearly finished. Experiments show that even in the irrigated area affected by the cyclone the outturn does not exceed 10 annas.
5	Hooghly, 2nd „ „	Nil	Clear throughout; wind from the north. Prospect of rice, where planted out, is good—that of cold-weather crops very good. Aman, or late rice, is nearly reaped.
	Howrah, 2nd „ „	Nil	Weather fine throughout the week. State and prospects of crops unchanged.
	Central Districts.
Presidency Divn. 6	24-Pergunnahs, 4th† Jan. 1875.	Nil	Weather dry and cool. The harvest of the late rice continues. Spring crops doing well. A few cases of cholera reported from thanas Baraset, Habra, Kalaroa, and Bhangore. It has abated in Barripore and Diamond Harbour Sub-divisions. Fever decreasing at Barripore.
7	Nuddea, 2nd Jan. 1875	Nil	Seasonable weather. Rain would now do good, but the prospects of the cold-weather crops are generally very good.
8	Jessore, 2nd „ „	Nil	Weather rather warm; northerly wind prevailing.
Rajshahye Divn. 9	Moorshedabad, 2nd Jan. 1875.	Nil	Seasonable weather; slightly warmer than during the past week. Aman, or late rice, almost all harvested; outturn about 12 annas. The cutting of black pulse is in progress; outturn is expected to be below the average. The standing crops are reported to be promising. The price of common rice at 11 stations of the head-quarters sub-district is on an average 19·8 seers per rupee. It is cheapest at Kalliangunge, where it is 25 seers, but dearest at Bhuruipore, where it is 17·8 seers. Cholera in Burwa, Bhuruipore, and Soojagunge, and fever in some villages at Jungypore.

The late unusually heavy inundation, and the long continuance of deep water, has destroyed some of the late rice cultivated in the beels in the interior of the district. Some portion of it is now being cut. Public health good.
13	Rungpore, 1st „ „	Nil	Weather clear and cold, with light winds. Mustard is in flower and promises well. Harvesting of the aman, or late rice, is going on rapidly; the crop is a good one. Prospects of cold-weather crops are favorable.

CHOTA NAGPORE.
	South-West Frontier Agency.
39	Hazareebagh, 1st Jan. 1875.	Nil	Light clouds at the earlier part of the week; since bright and cold. Rain is hoped for soon for the cold-weather crops, which have not suffered as yet, but which would be benefitted by some showers. Small-pox hanging about the station itself.
40	Lohardugga, 2nd Jan. 1875.	Nil	A very few drops of rain. Weather cloudy and warmer than last week. The cold-weather crops, especially surgoojah (oil-seed) and sursoo (mustard), and orid pulse, are reported to be excellent in all parts of the district. The prospect of the rahar pulse crop is also very good, though accounts are received from Palamow of damage apprehended from excessive dews.
41	Singbhoom, 1st Jan. 1875	Nil	Seasonable weather. State and prospects of crops favorable.
42	Manbhoom, 2nd Jan. 1875.	Nil	Rather warm during the past week, but sky cloudless, and no rain is usual about this time of the year. Harvest all but completed, and outturn generally good. The condition and prospects of the crops on the ground are favorable. Public health good.

Published for general information.

The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer, 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

No. 4.—The 7th January 1875.—Emigration.—Under the provisions of Section 56 of Act VII of 1871 (The Indian Emigration Act), the Governor-General in Council is pleased to direct that Captain A. D Taylor's edition of Horsburgh's India (Sailing) Directory, Part I, shall form part of the obligatory equipment of emigrant vessels sailing from the ports of Calcutta and Madras, and, as such, be added to the list of books specified in Schedule A of the rules relating to emigration from these ports, published in the Gazette of India of the 22nd February 1873 and 14th November 1874 respectively.

The following orders, issued by the Government of India in the Financial Department, are republished for general information :—

NOTIFICATIONS.—ACCOUNTS.

Fort William, the 2nd January 1875.

No. 18.—The following Report and Resolution are published for general information :—

No 160, dated 1st December, 1874

From—H. A. MANGLES, Esq , Officiating Comptroller General,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT

I have the honor to submit the annual report on the working of the Money Order Department during the year ending 31st March 1874.

2. The appendices which have hitherto accompanied this report have not been submitted this year in accordance with the instructions conveyed in your No. 3600, dated 15th December 1873.

3. The total number of offices open during the year under report was 307, viz. :—

Lower Provinces of Bengal	...	59
North-Western Provinces	...	37
Oudh	...	12
Punjab	...	34
Central Provinces	...	20
British Burmah	...	13
Political and other Treasuries under Government of India	...	8
Bombay	...	36
Madras	...	69
Berar	...	11
Mysore	...	8
TOTAL	...	307

4. At the close of last year there were 300 offices open ; seven more were added during the year under report, viz. :—

Tura	in Bengal.
Balaghat	in Central Provinces.
Mozuffergurh	in the Punjab
Erode, Tindivanum, Badagara, and Juggiapettah	in Madras

Of the above, Tura, Mozuffergurh, Badagara, and Juggiapettal are re-opened offices, the others are new.

5. Fourteen offices were closed, viz. :—

Deoghur and Rajmehal	in Bengal
Berhampore	in Central Provinces.
Malligaum	in Bombay.
Chiploon
Dhoolia
Mhow Nundgaum
Rajahpore
Vingoula, and Hoobley
Aurungabad	in Berar
Jaulnah Linsoogoor

Two hundred and ninety-three offices therefore remained open at the close of the year.

6. The reduction is due to the small amount of business transacted and to the want of proper facilities at sub-treasuries.

7. The following is a summary of transactions during the year:—

	1872-73.	1873-74.
No. of Offices open during the year	366	307
No. of orders issued	2,69,435	2,45,870
Amount of ditto	1,20,21,632	1,07,20,239 11 4
No. of orders paid	2,68,268	2,46,685
Amount of ditto	1,20,37,515	1,07,65,722 4 10

Lapsed orders	8,784	10,304
Charges	87,719	66,769
Profits	67,612	66,825

8. The falling off is probably attributable to the greater use by the public of currency notes which are now more easily procurable than they used to be in all parts of India, and which are used, it is believed, to a considerable extent for remittance purposes by all classes of the population.

9. The following table shows the increase or decrease in the number of orders issued and paid, as compared with last year:—

11. The average amount of each Money Order issued in each province during the past three years is given below :—

	1871-72.	1872-73.	1873-74.
Lower Provinces, Bengal	53	49	44
North-Western Provinces	40	38	33

Bombay	59	55	49
Madras	49	44	39
Berar	60	76	69
Mysore	46	40	41

12. The average is in one case more, in one case equal, and in all the others less than in the previous year, which shews that money orders are being less and less used for large remittances. The high average prevailing in Berar last year has somewhat fallen. Its existence is probably due to the almost total want of notes in the Province, which compels officials and others to use money orders for the remittance of their savings, &c., to places where Banks exist.

13. The amount of orders lapsed to Government during the year is detailed as follows :—

Lower Provinces Bengal ...	1,671
North-Western Provinces ...	1,904
Oudh	1,001
Punjaub	1,895
Central Provinces	966
British Burmah	564
Political and other Treasuries under Government of India	572
Bombay	1,165
Madras	284
Berar	211
Mysore	68
TOTAL	10,304

14. The statement given below shows the excess of receipts or payments in each province :—

	Excess of receipts over payments.	Excess of payments over receipts.
	Rs.	Rs.
Lower Provinces, Bengal	—	6,40,695
North-Western Provinces	...	7,43,124

Mysore	75,835	...
TOTAL	25,50,710	25,96,193

15. The excess of payments over receipts in so many provinces is due to the falling off of the general business of the department in those provinces.

16. The following statement shows the annual progress of transactions since the institution of the Department, the annual charge on superior and inferior establishments being retrospectively added to column 10, as requested in Financial Resolution on last year's report :—

19. It will be seen that the charges of 1873-74 are less than those of 1872-73 by Rs. 30,174. Against this saving, however, must be set the additional cost of extra clerks allowed to certain treasuries which amounted during the past year to Rs. 3,660.

20. The cash profits of the year are Rs. 8,438 in excess of last year, Rs. 58,387 net having been received in 1872-73, against Rs. 66,825 in 1873-74. The figures shewn for the year 1872-73 in last report were inclusive of Rs. 9,225 which should have been deducted on account of percentages for pension on superior and inferior establishments. The curtailment of departmental expenditure and the discontinuance of payment of commission to agents ought to have produced better results, but against this saving must be set the great decrease in receipts for commission, no less than Rs. 23,311 having been short credited on this account in 1873-74.

21. The losses written off during 1873-74 amounted to Rs. 62 only. Next year a heavier charge is anticipated, as several long pending cases have lately received the final orders of Government.

22. There has been but one case of embezzlement in the year under report, involving a loss to Government of Rs. 1,300 by means of skilfully forged orders presented at the Calcutta Office, the details of which were fully reported in my No. 152, dated 19th September last.

23. Endeavours are now being made to reconcile the difference between the balance of money orders outstanding as per departmental registers and the balance as per imperial books alluded to in para. 38 of last year's report. There is still an excess of Rs. 60,000 shewn by the Money Order Office returns, the figures being—

Total receipts as per money order journals from 1862-63	...	Rs. 8,57,83,333
Total payments as per money order journals from 1862-63	...	„ 8,53,70,823
Outstanding balance as per money order registers	...	4,12,510
Balance as per imperial books of 31st March 1874	...	3,52,078
Difference	...	Rs. 60,432

The details of the book balances are now being thoroughly examined by two clerks deputed from the Money Order and Central Accounts Offices. The result will be duly reported.

OBSERVATIONS.—The Money Order Offices in active operation decreased during the year from 300 to 293. The reduction is due to closure of offices where the business was insignificant, or where proper facilities could not conveniently be arranged.

The number of orders issued (245,879) fell below the number issued last year (269,435) by 23,556 (8·7 per cent.), and the amount of such orders, Rs. 1,07,20,240) fell below the amount of orders issued last year (Rs. 1,29,21,632) by Rs. 22,01,393 (17 per cent.)

The number of orders paid (245,685) was less than the number paid last year (268,268) by 22,583 (8½ per cent.), and their amount (Rs. 1,07,65,722) less than the amount paid last year (Rs. 1,29,37,545) by Rs. 2,17,21,823 (16·8 per cent.)

The revenue of the Department (Rs. 1,33,595) was less than the revenue last year (Rs. 1,55,331) by Rs. 21,716 (14 per cent.) The expenditure, including percentage for pensions and furlough allowances and extra allowances to clerks (Rs. 70,430), was less than the like expenditure in 1872-73 (Rs. 96,944) by Rs. 26,514 (27 per cent.), and the net profits (Rs. 63,165) exceeded the net profits of the foregoing year (Rs. 58,337) by Rs. 4,828 (8¼ per cent).

The profits shown for the year 1872-73 in the 7th paragraph of the report (Rs. 67,612) differ from those entered in the table contained in the 16th paragraph and used in the foregoing comparison (Rs. 58,387) by Rs. 9,225 the amount of the percentage chargeable in 1872-73 for pensions and furlough allowances. Again, to the charges for 1873-74 entered in paragraphs 7 and 16 of the Comptroller General's report (Rs. 66,720) the sum of Rs. 3,660 has been added, being the amount paid to clerks in the interior for money order duties during the year. Both these discrepancies are explained in paragraphs 19 and 20 of the report, but it would have been better if they had been eliminated from the tabular comparisons which, as they stand, are vitiated.

The profit of the year is larger than it has been in any year excepting 1870-71, and the charges are less than they have been since 1866-67. This is owing to the discontinuance of the payment of commission to the agents in the interior. In other respects, however, the transactions of the Department show a considerable retrogression—the number and value of orders issued and paid being much less than during the years 1871-72 and 1872-73. This is attributed to the free general supply of currency notes to the public which was practicable while the cash balances were high. When currency notes are available for remittances, people prefer to use them rather than pay commission for money orders. In harmony with this explanation is the fact that the value of the transactions of the Department has decreased much more than their number—the average value of each order issued having decreased from Rs. 48 to Rs. 43½. This is so far satisfactory; the Money Order Department is designed to facilitate petty remittances, not to supersede mercantile methods of remitting large sums.

The decrease in the business of the Department and in the average value of each order appears to be general in all provinces. The average value in Berar (Rs. 69) continues much in excess of that in any other province. The explanation given (the comparative absence from Berar of currency notes) hardly seems sufficient to account for this; the transactions in the province are, however, unimportant.

The statement contained in paragraph 16 shows a net profit of Rs. 4,00,248 upon the entire operations of the Department since the year 1862-63. But, as remarked last year, nothing is debited to the Department for rent of Government buildings, interest on capital employed in the business, superintendence, and the movement of funds.

It would be difficult, perhaps impossible, to value these items in figures, and it has not been thought worth while hitherto to attempt it. But the real profit of the Department is probably very small, too little indeed to warrant the maintenance of the Department except for the convenience that it affords to the public.

It is satisfactory to learn that there has been only one instance of embezzlement this year.

The Governor General in Council is glad to know that the differences between the imperial books and those of the Department have been reduced to only Rs. 60,000. Efforts must not be relaxed until the remaining differences are thoroughly accounted for.

No. 6307, DATED FORT WILLIAM, THE 29TH OCTOBER 1874.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Financial Department.

READ again—

Financial Order No. 3362, dated 30th November 1870, suggesting that it would be expedient to instruct the Courts to cause the stamp labels affixed to copies, certificates, and other documents issued by them and liable to a fee under "the Court Fees' Act, 1870" (Act No. VII of 1870), to be cancelled at the time they are affixed.

Read—

A letter from the Government of Bombay, No. 4194—179R, dated 7th August 1874, stating that the course suggested in the above order is apparently at variance with the provisions of the law as at present enacted.

RESOLUTION.—On a re-perusal of the Court Fees' Act, 1870, the Governor-General in Council observes that the Act contains clear provisions as to cancellation which should be followed.

2. Under Section 30, the stamp can only be cancelled by the Court or office receiving the document to which the stamp has been affixed. Such cancellation can be effected in one way only, namely by punching out the figure head, and this cannot be done twice. Consequently, the only time a stamp can be cancelled is when the document to which it is attached is filed or acted upon.

3. His Excellency in Council is accordingly pleased to decide that the cancellation of the stamps affixed to "true copies" of papers issued by a Court should be effected by the Court receiving such documents; officers when attesting "true copies" should, however, draw their pen across the stamp.

ORDERED that a copy of the foregoing Resolution be forwarded to the Government of Bombay, with reference to that Government's letter No. 5194-179R, dated 7th August 1874, to the other local Governments and Administrations, for information and guidance, in modification of Financial Order No. 3362, dated 30th November 1870, and to the Legislative Department for information.

 The Rig-Veda, the oldest book of Indian literature, has very properly been made one of the principal class-books for those who study Sanskrit in the schools and colleges in India, and though at present a scholar-like knowledge of the Vedic hymns is in the examinations required of the more advanced students only, yet, as soon as editions, translations, grammars, and dictionaries shall have rendered the study of these ancient documents more accessible, I doubt not that the time will come when no one in India will call himself a Sanskrit scholar who cannot construe the hymns of the ancient Rishis of his country.—Extract from Preface.

2. In compliance with the wishes of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William and Bombay, we have reproduced in the Bill itself the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure to which as introduced it merely referred. We have thus, we hope, made the Bill a complete Code of that branch of the law to which it relates. The Bill as now amended is divided into sixteen chapters, relating respectively to the following subjects:—

CHAPTER I.—Preliminary.
„ II.—Of Sessions.
„ III.—Of Procedure on Commitments.
„ IV.—Of the Commencement of the Trial.
„ V.—Of Juries.
„ VI.—Of the Trial.

Chapter VII.—Of Evidence.
" VIII.—Of the Charge to the Jury.
" IX.—Of the Verdict and the Discharge of the Jury.
" X.—Of the Sentence.
" XI.—Of Previous Convictions or Acquittals.
" XII.—Of Criminal Lunatics.
" XIII.—Of Prosecutions in certain Cases.
" XIV.—Of Bail.
" XV.—Of Security for keeping the Peace.
" XVI.—Miscellaneous.

In Chapter I, we have defined "Advocate General" to include a Government Advocate, and we have added definitions of 'Prosecutor,' "European British subject" and "Offence." We have also declared that words referring to acts done shall include illegal omissions.

In Chapter III, we have empowered the Court to amend the charge on the application of the prosecutor.

We think that irregular commitments should not be validated when, during the enquiry, the prosecutor has objected to the jurisdiction of the committing Magistrate.

We think that the person committed should not be entitled to a copy of the depositions unless he demands it a reasonable time before the case comes on for trial.

In Chapter V, Section 36 (as to the trial of European British subjects and Natives jointly charged), we have provided that the Native shall be committed only when the committing Magistrate thinks that he ought to be tried.

We have declared (in accordance with Act X of 1872, Section 407) that in the Presidency towns no person shall be summoned as a juror more than once in six months, unless the number cannot be made up without him. And we have provided for summoning supplemental jurors when, during the continuance of the session, it appears that a sufficient number has not been summoned. We have, we hope, made it clear that the total number of peremptory challenges on behalf of the accused shall never exceed eight, whatever may be the number of persons charged. We have required the foreman to ask from the Court information required by any juror.

We have empowered the High Court to make rules as to locking-up juries, and provided that, subject to such rules, the presiding Judge may order whether the jurors shall be kept together under the charge of an officer or allowed to return to their respective homes.

We think that the jury should decide all questions which according to law, whether written or unwritten, are questions of fact, and we have altered accordingly the clause of the Bill which corresponds with section 257 of the Code.

In the section relating to the issue of commissions to take evidence, we have supplied a defect in the Code of Criminal Procedure, which does not provide for the case of the witness being in a Native State.

In the clause relating to the conviction of the accused on his own admission, we have provided that such conviction may be had, whether the offence admitted is the offence charged or not.

We have omitted the direction that the Court shall question the accused after the close of the case for the prosecution.

We have endeavoured to make the section of the Bill, which corresponds with the section of the Code as to sentences on escaped convicts, express what we believe to have been the intention of the legislature.

We have expressly saved the provisions of the Prisoners' Act, 1871.

We have authorised the Advocate General to enter up a nolle prosequi.

We have made several verbal amendments in the sections transferred from the Code.

In the schedule of repeals we have inserted Act XVIII of 1859 (to amend the law relating to offences declared to be punishable on conviction before a Magistrate), and we propose to repeal the whole of 9 Geo. IV, c. 74, except the preamble and Sections 1, 7, 8, 9, 25, 26 and 56.

We think that the Bill should be republished with this report.

Consideration and amendment of charge.

7. When any person is committed for trial before a High Court, the Clerk of the Crown, or if there be not a Clerk of the Crown, a Judge of the High Court, shall, on receipt of the charge, peruse and consider it, and may, if it appear necessary or expedient so to do, alter or redraw the same, having regard to the rules as to the form of charges contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure.

9. If a prisoner is committed to the Court without any charge at all, the clerk of the crown, or if there be not a clerk of the crown a judge of the High Court, may draw up a charge having regard to the rules referred to in section seven. If a prisoner is committed upon a charge which the Court, upon reference to the proceedings before the committing Magistrate, considers improper, the Court may draw up a charge for any offence or offences which it considers to be proved by the evidence taken before the committing Magistrate.

Prisoner may apply for amendment.

10. Any accused person may apply to the Court for an amendment of the charge made against him; and in considering whether any error in a charge did in fact mislead the accused person, the Court shall take into account the fact that he did or did not make such an application.

Court may amend charge.

11. The Court may, upon the application of the accused person, or of the prosecutor, or upon its own motion, amend or alter any charge at any stage of the proceedings before the verdict of the jury is delivered. Such amendment shall be explained to the accused person.

When trial may proceed immediately after amendment

12. If the amendment or alteration is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is not likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused person in his defence, it shall be at the discretion of the Court, after making such amendment or alteration, to proceed with the trial as if the amended charge had been the original charge.

When new trial may be directed or trial suspended.

13. If the amendment or alteration is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused person in his defence, the Court may either direct a new trial, or suspend the trial for such period as may be necessary to enable the accused person to make his defence to the amended or altered charge; and, after hearing his defence, the Court may, if it thinks fit, further adjourn the trial, to admit of the appearance of any witness whose evidence the Court may consider to be material to the case, or whom the accused person may wish to be summoned in his defence.

Previous sanction to be obtained if offence in amended charge require it.

15. If the offence stated in the amended or altered charge be one for which previous sanction is necessary, the case shall not be proceeded with until such sanction is obtained; unless sanction has been already obtained for a prosecution on the same facts as those on which the amended or altered charge was founded.

Joinder of Charges.

Separate charges for distinct offences

16. There must be a separate charge for every distinct offence of which any person is accused, and every such charge must be tried separately, except in the cases hereinafter excepted.

Illustration.

A is accused of a theft on one occasion, and of causing grievous hurt on another occasion. A must be separately charged and separately tried for the theft and the causing grievous hurt.

More offences than one of same kind may be charged within a year of each other.

17. When a person is accused of more offences than one of the same kind, committed within one year of each other, he may be charged and tried at the same time for any number of them not exceeding three.

EXPLANATION.—Offences are said to be of the same kind under this section if they fall within the provisions of section nineteen.

Trial of more than one offence

18. I. If in one series of acts, so connected together as to form the same transaction, more offences than one are committed by the same person, he may be charged with and tried for every such offence at the same time.

One offence falling within two definitions.

II. If the acts alleged constitute an offence falling within two or more separate definitions of any law in force for the time being, by which offences are defined or punished, the person accused of them may be charged with each of the offences so committed; but he must not receive a more severe punishment than could be awarded for any of such offences.

Acts severally constituting more than one offence, but collectively coming within one definition.

III. If several acts, of which one or more than one would by itself constitute an offence, form, when combined, a different offence, the person accused of them may be charged with every offence which he may have committed; but he must not receive for such offences, collectively, a punishment more severe than that which might have been awarded for any one of such offences, or for the offence formed by their combination.

Illustrations.

To paragraph I.

(a.) A rescues B, a person in lawful custody, and in so doing causes grievous hurt to C, a constable in whose custody B was. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 225 and 333, Indian Penal Code.

(b.) A has in his possession several counterfeit seals with the intention of committing several forgeries. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, the possession of each seal for a distinct forgery under section 473, Indian Penal Code.

(c.) A, with intent to cause injury to B, institutes proceedings against him, knowing there is no just or lawful ground for such proceedings. A also, in the course of the proceedings, falsely charges B with having committed an offence. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, two offences under section 211, Indian Penal Code.

(d.) A, with intent to injure B, brings a false charge against him of having committed an offence. On the trial, A gives false evidence against B. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 211 and 194 or 195, Indian Penal Code.

(e.) A, knowing that B, a female minor, has been kidnapped, wrongfully confines her and detains her as a slave. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 368 (read with 367) and 370, Indian Penal Code.

(f.) A, with six others, commits the offences of rioting, grievous hurt to B, and of assaulting C, a public servant engaged in suppressing the riot. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 147, 325 and 152, Indian Penal Code.

(g.) A criminally intimidates B, C and D at the same time. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, each of the three offences under section 506, Indian Penal Code.

(h.) A intentionally causes the death of three persons by upsetting a boat. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, three offences under section 302, Indian Penal Code.

To paragraph II.

(i.) A commits mischief by cutting down a tree in a Government forest. The tree overhangs the bank of a river and falls into the stream. A commits theft by having severed the tree and by floating it down the river to his village, where he sells it. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 426 and 379, Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a more severe sentence than if it had convicted him under section 379 only.

(j.) A wrongfully strikes B with a cane. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 352 and 323 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a more severe sentence than if it had convicted him under section 323 only.

(k.) A wrongfully kills a buffalo worth sixty rupees belonging to B, and then takes away the carcase in a manner amounting to theft. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 429 and 379, Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a more severe sentence than if it had convicted him under section 429 only.

(l.) Several stolen sacks of corn are made over to A and B, who know they are stolen property. A and B thereupon assist each other to conceal the sacks at the bottom of a grain pit. A and B may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 411 and 414, Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries them may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted them under one of those sections only.

(m.) A uses a forged document in evidence, in order to convict B, a public servant, of an offence under section 167. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 471 (read with 466) and 196 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under one of those sections only.

To paragraph III.

(n.) A commits house-breaking by day with intent to commit adultery, and commits, in the house so entered, adultery with B's wife. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 454 and 497, Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under section 497 only.

(o.) A robs B, and, in doing so, voluntarily causes hurt to him. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 323, 392 and 394 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under section 392 or 394 only.

(p.) A entices B, the wife of C, away, and then commits adultery with her. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 498 and 497, Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under section 497 only.

Where it is doubtful what offence has been committed.

19. If a single act or series of acts is of such a nature that it is doubtful which of several offences the facts which can be proved will constitute, the accused person may be charged with having committed all or any of such offences; and any number of such charges may be tried at once, or he may be charged in the alternative with having committed some one of the said offences.

Illustration.

A is accused of an act which may amount to either theft, receiving stolen property, criminal breach of trust, or cheating. He may be charged separately with theft, criminal breach of trust, and cheating, or he may be charged with having committed either theft, or criminal breach of trust, or cheating.

When a person is charged with one offence, he can be convicted of another.

20. If, in the case mentioned in section nineteen one charge only is brought against an accused person, and it appears in evidence that he committed a different offence, for which he might have been charged under the provisions of that section, he may be convicted of the offence which he is shown to have committed, although he was not charged with it.

Illustration.

A is charged with theft. It appears that he committed criminal breach of trust, or receiving stolen goods. He may be convicted of criminal breach of trust, or receiving stolen goods, though he was not charged with it.

When offence proved included in offence charged.

21. When a person is charged with an offence, and part of the charge is not proved, but the part which is proved amounts to a different offence, he may be convicted of the offence which he is proved to have committed, though he was not charged with it.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is charged, under section 407, Indian Penal Code, with criminal breach of trust in respect of property entrusted to him as a carrier. It appears that he did commit criminal breach of trust under section 406 in respect of the property, but that it was not entrusted to him as a carrier. He may be convicted of criminal breach of trust under section 406.

(b.) A is charged with murder. He may be convicted of culpable homicide, or of causing death by negligence.

What persons may be charged jointly.

22. When more persons than one are accused of the same offence, or of different offences committed in the same transaction, or when one person is accused of committing any offence, and another of abetment of, or attempt to commit, such offence, they may be charged and tried together, or separately, as the Court thinks proper, and the provisions hereinbefore contained shall apply to all such charges.

Illustrations.

(a.) A and B are accused of the same murder. A and B may be charged and tried together for the murder.

(b.) A and B are accused of a robbery, in the course of which A commits a murder with which B has nothing to do. A and B may be tried together on a charge, charging both of them with the robbery, and A alone with the murder.

(c.) A and B are both charged with a theft, and B is charged with two other thefts committed by him in the course of the same transaction. A and B may be both tried together on a charge, charging both with the one theft, and B alone with the two other thefts.

Effect of errors.

23. No error, either in the way in which the offence is stated, or in the particulars required by the Code of Criminal Procedure to be stated, and no omission to state the offence, or to state those particulars, shall be regarded at any stage of the case as material, unless the person accused was in fact misled by such error or omission.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is charged, under section 242 of the Indian Penal Code, with "having been in possession of counterfeit coin, having known at the time when he became possessed thereof that such coin was counterfeit;" the word "fraudulently" being omitted in the charge. Unless it appears that A was in fact misled by this omission, the error shall not be regarded as material.

(b.) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge, or is set out incorrectly. A defends himself, calls witnesses, and gives his own account of the transaction. The Court may infer from this that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating is not material.

(c.) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge. There were many transactions between A and B, and A had no means of knowing to which of them the charge referred, and offered no defence. The Court may infer from such facts that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating was, in this case, a material error.

(d.) A is charged with the murder of Khodá Baksh on the 21st January. In fact, the murdered person's name was Haidar Baksh, and the date of the murder was the 20th January. A was never charged with any murder but one, and had heard the inquiry before the Magistrate, which referred exclusively to the case of Haidar Baksh. The Court may infer from these facts that A was not misled, and that the error in the charge was immaterial.

(e.) A was charged with murdering Haidar Baksh on the 20th January, and Khodá Baksh (who tried to arrest him for that murder) on the 21st January. When charged for the murder of Haidar Baksh, he was tried for the murder of Khodá Baksh. The witnesses present in his defence were witnesses in the case of Haidar Baksh. The Court may infer from this that A was misled, and that the error was material.

Entry on unsustainable charge.

24. When any charge, or portion of a charge, recorded as aforesaid appears to a Judge of the High Court, at any time before the commencement of the trial of the person charged, to be clearly unsustainable, he may make on the charge an entry to that effect.

Effect of entry.

Such entry shall have the effect of staying proceedings upon the charge or portion of the charge (as the case may be), but shall not operate as an acquittal of the person charged.

When irregular commitments may be validated.

25. If any Magistrate, not being empowered by law, commits an accused person to take his trial before a High Court, the Court may, after perusal of the proceedings, accept the commitment if it considers that the accused person has not been prejudiced, unless objection was made on behalf either of the accused person or of the prosecution to the jurisdiction of the committing Magistrate during the inquiry and before the order of commitment.

If such Court considers that the accused person was prejudiced, or if such objection as aforesaid was so made, it shall quash the commitment, and direct a fresh inquiry by a competent Magistrate.

Custody pending direction as to place of trial.

26. Pending the directions of the Court as to the place of trial, every person committed for trial shall (if not admitted to bail) be committed by the Magistrate for intermediate custody to the criminal jail in which he can be most conveniently confined.

Procedure thereafter.

If the trial be directed to be held at the ordinary place of sitting of the Court, the Magistrate shall bind over the person charged to appear and take his trial at such place of sitting, or shall commit him to the jail at such place.

If the Court direct that the person charged be tried elsewhere than at its ordinary place of sitting, the Magistrate shall bind him over to appear and take his trial at the place so directed, or shall, if necessary, cause him to be removed to the criminal jail at or nearest to the place at which he is directed to be tried.

Intermediate custody of European British subjects.

27. The Court may direct that all European British subjects committed or bailed for trial by it within certain specified districts or during certain specified periods of the year, shall be tried at the ordinary place of sitting of the Court, or direct that they shall be tried at a particular place named, and may also order that they shall, if not bailed, be committed for intermediate custody to a particular jail, being one of the jails appointed by the Government for the reception of such prisoners.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE TRIAL.

Commencement of trial

28. When the Court is ready to commence the trial, the accused person shall be brought before it, and the charge shall be read and explained to him, and he shall be asked whether he is guilty of the offence charged, or claims to be tried.

Plea of guilty.

29. If the accused person pleads guilty, the plea shall be recorded, and he may be convicted thereon.

Refusal to plead or claim to be tried.

30. If the accused person refuses to, or does not, plead, or if he claims to be tried, the Court shall proceed to choose jurors as hereinafter directed, and to try the case.

Right of accused to be defended.

31. Every person accused of an offence may of right be defended by any advocate of a High Court.

Any such person may, with the permission of the Court (but not otherwise), employ any person not being an advocate, attorney or pleader, to assist him in his defence.

Such persons may be tried together, and the procedure on the trial shall be the same as it would have been had the European British subject been tried separately.

Provisions for European British subject requiring majority of Europeans in jury.

Regard shall be had, in the preparation of the latter list, to the property, character and education of the persons whose names are entered therein.

No person shall be entitled to have his name entered in the special jurors' list, merely because he may have been entered in the special jurors' list for a previous year.

The Governor General in Council may exempt any salaried officer of Government from serving as a juror.

Discretion of officer preparing lists.

43. The Clerk of the Crown shall, subject to such rules as aforesaid, have full discretion to prepare the said lists as seems to him to be proper, and there shall be no appeal from, or review of, his decision.

Publication of lists.

44. Preparatory lists of persons qualified or liable to serve as common jurors and as special jurors, respectively, signed by the officer by whom the same have been prepared, shall be published once in the local official Gazette before the fifteenth day of April next after their preparation.

(c) Of Juries in the Mofussil.

50. Whenever a High Court has given notice of its intention to hold sittings at any place (other than the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay) for the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, the Court of Session at such place shall, subject to any direction which may be given by the High Court, take and cause to be taken the measures prescribed by sections 407, 409, 410 and 411 of the Code of Criminal Procedure for the summoning of jurors.

62. When the examination of the witnesses for the prosecution and the examination of the accused person are concluded, the accused person shall be asked whether he means to call witnesses. If the Court considers that there are grounds for proceeding, it shall call on the accused person to state his grounds of defence and produce his witnesses.

The accused person, or his Counsel may then state the case for the defence, and may examine the witnesses, if any, produced for the defence, and at the conclusion of such examination may sum up his case.

Prosecutor's right of reply.

63. If any evidence is adduced on behalf of the accused person the prosecutor shall be entitled to reply.

64. Whenever, in the opinion of the Court, it is proper and convenient that the jury should view the place in which the offence charged is said to have been committed, or any other place in which any other transaction material to the enquiry in the trial took place, an order shall be made to that effect, and the jury shall be conducted in a body, under the care of an officer of the Court, to such place, which shall be shown to them by a person appointed by the Court. Such officer shall not suffer any other person to speak to, or hold any communication with, any of the jury.

Locking-up jury

65. The High Court may from time to time make rules as to keeping the jury together during a trial lasting for more than one day, and, subject to such rules, the presiding Judge may order whether and in what manner the jurors shall be kept together under the charge of an officer of the Court, or whether they shall be allowed to return to their respective homes.

66. The Court may, in its discretion, postpone the hearing of the case; and may, from time to time, adjourn the trial, if it considers that such adjournment is proper and will promote the ends of justice.

Postponement of trial. Adjournment.

67. If a trial is adjourned, the jury shall be required to attend at the adjourned sitting, and at every subsequent sitting, until the conclusion of the trial.

Jury to attend at adjourned sitting.

68. The Court may, if it think fit, from time to time, by general rule prescribe the manner in which evidence shall be taken down in cases coming before the Court in the exercise of its ordinary or its extraordinary original criminal jurisdiction, and the Judges of such Court shall take down the evidence or the substance thereof in accordance with the rule (if any) so prescribed.

Power to prescribe mode in which evidence shall be taken down.

CHAPTER VII.

OF EVIDENCE.

71. The examination of a Civil Surgeon or other medical witness, taken and duly attested by a Magistrate, may be given in evidence in any criminal trial, although the person examined is not called as a witness.

Evidence of medical witness.

The Court may summon such Civil Surgeon or other medical witness, if it sees sufficient cause for doing so.

Court may summon medical witness.

72. Any document purporting to be a report from the Chemical Examiner, or Assistant Chemical Examiner to Government, upon any matter or thing duly submitted to him for examination or analysis and report, in the course of any criminal trial, or in any preliminary inquiry relating thereto, may, if it bears his signature, be used as evidence in any criminal trial.

Report of Chemical Examiner

The Court may presume that the signature of any such document is genuine, and that the person signing it held the office which he professed to hold at the time when he signed it.

Genuineness of signature may be presumed.

73. If, after the commencement of the trial, the accused person admits before the Court the commission of an offence, the Court may convict him on his own admission, whether such offence is the same as the offence of which he is accused, or not.

Admission of accused.

74. If an accused person abscond, and after due pursuit cannot be arrested, the Court may, in his absence, examine the witnesses (if any) produced on behalf of the prosecution and record their depositions; and any such deposition may, on the arrest of such person, be put in on his trial for the offence with which he is charged if it is not practicable to procure the attendance of the deponent.

Record of evidence in absence of accused.

75. When a witness is produced, the evidence (if any) given by him before the committing Magistrate may, in the discretion of the presiding Judge, be treated as evidence in the case, if it was duly taken in the presence of the accused person.

Evidence given at preliminary inquiry.

EXPLANATION.—This section shall not authorize the Court to refer to the record of the evidence given by a witness who is absent, except in the cases in which such evidence may be referred to under the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, or other law in force for the time being upon the subject of evidence.

Commissions.

76. Whenever it appears that the attendance of a witness cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable, the Court may dispense with his personal attendance.

When a commission may issue.

The Court may direct a commission to the Magistrate of the District, or to a Magistrate of the first class, in whose jurisdiction such witness may be. The Magistrate to whom the commission is directed shall proceed to the place where such witness is, or shall summon such witness before himself. Such Magistrate shall take the evidence of such witness in the same manner, and shall have for this purpose, and may exercise, the same powers as in trials of warrant cases.

Mode of issuing commission.

When the witness is in the territories of any Native Prince or State in India in alliance with Her Majesty, the commission may be directed to any Justice of the Peace or other officer in the service of the Crown resident in such territories; and the provisions of the second clause of this section shall apply to such Justice of the Peace or officer.

Where witness is in a Native State.

If the witness is within the local limits of the ordinary original criminal jurisdiction of any of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay, the commission may be directed to any Police Magistrate within such limits, and such Magistrate shall have the like power to compel the attendance and examination of witnesses as he possesses for that purpose in cases pending before him.

Where witness is in a Presidency Town

The prosecutor and the accused person may forward interrogatories, upon which the officer to whom the commission is directed shall examine the witness, or the prosecutor may appear personally before the officer to whom the commission is directed, or the prosecutor or accused person may so appear by authorized agent.

Prosecutor and accused may examine witness.

After any commission issued under this section has been duly executed, it shall be returned, together with the deposition of the witness examined thereunder, to the Court out of which it issued; and the commission, the return thereto, and the deposition of such witness may be used as evidence in the case and shall form part of the record.

Court may direct tender of pardon.

77. The Court may, with the view of obtaining on the trial the evidence of any person or persons supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in, or privy to, any offence mentioned in column 7 of the fourth schedule annexed to the Code of Criminal Procedure as triable exclusively by the Court of Session, instruct the committing Magistrate to tender, or itself may, at any time before judgment, tender, a pardon to such person or persons, on condition of his or their making a full, true and fair disclosure of the whole of the circumstances, within his or their knowledge, relative to the crime committed and every other person concerned in the perpetration thereof.

Any person accepting a tender of pardon under this section shall be examined as a witness in the case, under the rules applicable to the examination of witnesses.

Such person, if not on bail, shall be detained in custody pending the termination of the trial.

Commitment of person to whom pardon has been tendered.

78. When a pardon has been tendered under section 77, if it appears to the Court that any person who has accepted such tender has not conformed to the conditions under which it was made, either by wilfully concealing anything essential, or by giving false evidence, the Court may commit, or direct the commitment of, such person, for trial for the offence in respect of which the pardon was so tendered, or for any other offence of which he may appear to have been guilty in connection with the same matter.

The statement made by a person under pardon, which pardon has been withdrawn under this section, may be put in evidence against him.

Of securing the Attendance of Witnesses and the Production of Documents.

Procedure for obtaining attendance of witnesses.

79. The following procedure shall be pursued in order to obtain the attendance of witnesses before the Court.

Power to summon material witness or examine person present.

80. The Court may, at any stage of any proceeding, inquiry or trial, summon any witness, or examine any person in attendance though not summoned as a witness, and it shall be its duty to do so if the evidence of such person appears essential to the just decision of the case.

When warrant of arrest may issue in first instance.

81. If the Court has reason to believe that any witness whose attendance is required will not attend to give evidence without being compelled to do so, it may, instead of issuing a summons, issue a warrant of arrest in the first instance.

Procedure when warrant cannot be served.

82. If such warrant cannot be executed, and the Court considers that the witness is absconding or concealing himself for the purpose of avoiding the service thereof, it may issue a proclamation, requiring his attendance to give evidence at a time and place to be named therein, to be affixed on some conspicuous part of his ordinary place of abode.

If the witness does not attend at the time and place named in such proclamation, the Court may order the attachment of any moveable property belonging to such witness, to such amount as seems reasonable, not being in excess of the amount of costs of attachment and of any fine to which he may be liable under the provisions of the next following section.

Such order shall authorize the attachment of any such moveable property within the jurisdiction of the Court by which the order was made; and if any such moveable property be without the jurisdiction of the said Court, such order when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situated shall authorize the attachment of the property last aforesaid.

Release of attached property of witness appearing and satisfying Court.

83. If the witness appears and satisfies the Court that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of avoiding the execution of the warrant, and that he had not notice of the proclamation in time to attend at the time and place named therein, the Court shall direct that the property attached be released from attachment, and shall make such order in regard to the costs of the attachment as the Court thinks fit.

Sale of property of witness not appearing or not satisfying Court.

If such witness does not appear, or, appearing, fails to satisfy the Court that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of avoiding the execution of the warrant, and that he had not such notice of the proclamation as aforesaid, the Court may order the property attached, or any part thereof, to be sold for the purpose of satisfying all costs incurred in consequence of such attachment, together with the amount of any fine which may be imposed upon such witness under the provisions of section 172 of the Indian Penal Code.

If the witness pays to such Court the costs and fine as aforesaid, his property shall be released from attachment.

Arrest of person disobeying summons.

84. If any person summoned to give evidence neglects or refuses to appear at the time and place appointed by the summons, and no reasonable excuse is offered for such neglect or refusal, the Court, upon proof of the summons having been duly served, may issue a warrant under its seal to bring such person before it to testify as aforesaid.

Right of accused as to examination and summoning of witness.

85. The accused person shall be allowed to examine any witness not previously named by him, if such witness be in attendance; but he shall not, except as provided in section thirteen, be entitled of right to have any witness summoned other than the witnesses summoned by the Magistrate by whom he was committed or bold to bail for trial.

Procedure for obtaining production of document required as evidence.

86. Whenever the Court considers that the production of any document is necessary or desirable for the purposes of any investigation or judicial proceeding, the Court may issue a summons to the person in whose possession or power such document is believed to be, requiring him to attend and produce such document at the time and place stated in the summons.

87. If there is reason to believe that the person to whom the summons is addressed will not produce the document as directed in the summons, the Court may issue a search-warrant for the document in the first instance.

When warrant for search for documents may issue.

88. The Court may, if it thinks fit, impound any document produced before it, or may, at the conclusion of the proceedings, order such document to be returned to the person who produced it.

Power to impound document produced.

89. If a witness refuses to answer any question which is put to him or to produce any document in his possession or power which the Court requires him to produce, and does not offer any just excuse for such refusal, he shall be deemed guilty of contempt of Court.

Procedure in case of refusal to answer or produce documents.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF THE CHARGE TO THE JURY.

90. When the case for the defence and the prosecutor's reply, if any, are concluded, the Court shall proceed to charge the jury, summing up the evidence for the prosecution and defence, and laying down the law by which the jury are to be guided.

Charge to jury.

91. It is the duty of the Judge to decide all questions of law, and especially all questions as to the relevancy of facts which it is proposed to prove, the admissibility of evidence, or the propriety of questions asked by parties or their agents, which may arise in the course of the trial; and, in his discretion, to prevent the production of inadmissible evidence, whether it is or is not objected to by the parties; to decide upon the meaning and construction of all documents given in evidence at the trial; to decide upon all matters of fact which it may be necessary to prove in order to enable evidence of particular matters to be given;

Duty of Judge.

to decide whether any question which arises is for himself or for the jury; and upon this point his decision shall be final.

The Judge may, if he thinks proper, in the course of his summing up, express to the jury his opinion upon any question of fact, or upon any question of mixed law and fact, relevant to the proceeding.

Illustrations.

(a.) It is proposed to prove a statement made by a person not called as a witness, under circumstances which render evidence of his statement admissible.

It is for the Judge, and not for the jury, to decide whether the existence of those circumstances has been proved.

(b.) It is proposed to give secondary evidence of a document, the original of which is alleged to have been lost or destroyed.

It is the duty of the Judge to decide whether the original has been lost or destroyed.

CHAPTER IX.

OF THE VERDICT AND THE DISCHARGE OF THE JURY.

92. After the Judge has finished his charge, the jury may retire to consider their verdict.

Retirement to consider.

It shall be the duty of an officer of the Court not to suffer any person other than a juror to speak to, or hold any communication with, any member of such jury.

93. It is the duty of the jury—

Duty of jury.

(a) to decide which view of the facts is true, and then to return the verdict which under such view ought, according to the direction of the Judge, to be returned;

(b) to determine the meaning of all technical terms and words used in an unusual sense, which it may be necessary to determine, whether such words occur in documents or not;

(c) to decide all questions which according to law are to be deemed questions of fact;

(d) to decide whether general, indefinite expressions do or do not apply to particular cases, unless such expressions refer to legal procedure, or unless their meaning is ascertained by law, in either of which cases it is the duty of the Judge to decide their meaning.

Illustrations.

(1.) A is tried for the murder of B.

It is the duty of the Judge to explain to the jury the distinction between murder and culpable homicide, and to tell them under what views of the facts A ought to be convicted of murder, or of culpable homicide, or to be acquitted.

It is the duty of the jury to decide which view of the facts is true, and to return a verdict in accordance with the direction of the Judge, whether that direction is right or wrong, and whether they do or do not agree with it.

(2.) The question is, whether a person entertained a reasonable belief on a particular point. Whether work was done with reasonable skill, or due diligence.

Each of these is a question for the jury.

94. When the jury have considered their verdict, the foreman shall inform the Court what is their verdict, or what is the verdict of a majority.

Foreman to communicate verdict.

95. The jury shall return a verdict on all the charges on which the accused is tried, and the Court may ask them such questions as are necessary to ascertain what their verdict is.

Verdict to be given on each charge.

Judge may question jury.

96. If the jury are not unanimous, the Judge may require them to retire for further consideration. After such a period as the Judge considers reasonable, the jury may deliver their verdict, although they are not unanimous.

Procedure where jury differ.

97. A verdict of guilty or not guilty, as the case may be, shall be delivered either when the jury are unanimous in their opinion, or when as many as six are of one opinion and the Judge agrees with them.

Verdict when to be delivered.

98. When the jury are satisfied that they will not be unanimous, but six of them are of one opinion, the foreman shall so inform the Judge.

Discharge of jury in default of unanimity or majority of six with Judge's concurrence.

If the Judge disagrees with the majority, he shall then discharge the jury.

If there are not so many as six who agree in opinion, the Judge shall, after the lapse of such time as he thinks reasonable, discharge the jury.

Discharge of jury in case of sickness of juror or prisoner.

99. The Judge may also discharge the jury whenever by reason of illness a juryman becomes incapable of attending through the trial or the prisoner becomes incapable of remaining at the bar.

Re-trial of prisoner after discharge of jury.

100. Whenever the jury is discharged, the prisoner shall be detained in custody or on bail (as the case may be) and shall be tried by another jury unless the Judge considers that he should not be re-tried, in which case the Judge shall make an entry to that effect on the charge, and such entry shall operate as an acquittal.

Power to reserve questions.

101. When any person has in a trial before a Judge of the High Court acting in the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, been convicted of an offence, the Judge, if he thinks fit, may reserve for the decision of a Court, consisting of two or more Judges of the High Court, any question of law which has arisen in the course of the trial of such person and the determination of which would affect the event of the trial.

Procedure when question reserved.

If the Judge reserves any such question, the person convicted shall, pending the decision thereon, be remanded to jail, or, if the Judge think fit, be admitted to bail, and the High Court shall have power to review the case, or such part of it as may be necessary, and finally determine such question, and thereupon to alter the sentence passed by the Court of original jurisdiction, and to pass such judgment and sentence as to the High Court seem fit.

Withdrawal of remaining charges, on conviction on one of several charges.

102. When more charges than one are preferred against the same person, and when a conviction has been had on one or more of them, the prosecutor may, with the consent of the Court, withdraw, or the Court of its own accord may direct the withdrawal of, the remaining charge or charges.

CHAPTER X.

OF THE SENTENCE.

Form and direction of warrant of commitment.

103. Every warrant for the commitment of a person to custody shall be in writing and signed and sealed by the Judge who issues it.

Provisions of Criminal Procedure Code, ss. 303, 304, 305 applied in Mofussil.

104. In the case of a High Court holding its sittings elsewhere than in the towns of Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, sections 303, 304 and 305 shall apply to the officers therein mentioned.

Levy of fine.

105. Whenever an offender is sentenced to pay a fine, the Court may issue a warrant for the levy of the amount by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender, whether or not the offence be punishable with fine only, and whether or not the sentence direct that, in default of payment of the fine, the offender shall suffer imprisonment.

Such warrant may be executed within the jurisdiction of the Court, and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender without the jurisdiction of the said Court, when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situate.

Cases to which section applies.

This section shall not apply to cases in which any special procedure is laid down, by any special or local law in force for the time being for the recovery of any fine, but shall apply to cases in which no such procedure is laid down, and to all fines not levied when this Act comes into force, but which might have been levied under this section if it had been in force when they were imposed.

Payment of fine in compensation.

106. Whenever the Court imposes a fine under any law in force for the time being, or confirms in appeal or on revision a sentence of such fine, or a sentence of which such fine forms a part, the Court may order the whole or any part of the fine to be paid in compensation,

(a) for expenses properly incurred in the prosecution;

(b) for the offence complained of, where such offence can, in the opinion of the Court, be compensated by money.

Such payment shall be made, as the Court thinks fit, to or for the benefit of the complainant, or the person injured, or both.

In any subsequent civil proceedings relating to the same matter, the Court shall take into account any sum which may have been awarded under this section.

Imprisonment in default of payment of fine.

107. In every case punishable under any law in force for the time being with imprisonment as well as fine, in which the offender is sentenced to a fine, whether with or without imprisonment, the High Court shall be guided by the provisions of sections 64 and 65 of the Indian Penal Code in awarding the period of imprisonment in default of payment of the fine.

Execution of sentences of whipping.

108. Sentences of whipping shall be executed in manner provided by the Code of Criminal Procedure, sections 311, 312 and 313.

Sentence in cases of simultaneous conviction of several offences.

109. When a person is convicted, at one trial, of two or more offences punishable under the same or different sections of any law for the time being in force, the Court may sentence him, for the offences of which he has been convicted, to the several penalties prescribed by such enactment or enactments, which such Court is competent to inflict; such penalties, when consisting of imprisonment or transportation, to commence the one after the expiration of the other:

Maximum term of imprisonment.

Provided that in no case shall such person be sentenced to imprisonment for a longer period than fourteen years.

Currency of sentence on escaped convicts.

110. When sentence of death or whipping is passed on an escaped convict, the Court shall direct the new sentence to take effect without waiting for the expiration of the sentence from which he has escaped.

When any other sentence is passed on an escaped convict severer than the sentence from which he has escaped, the Court shall also direct the new sentence to take effect without waiting for the expiration of the sentence from which he escaped.

When the new sentence is not severer than the sentence from which he has escaped, the Court shall direct the new sentence to take effect after such convict has suffered imprisonment or transportation, as the case may be, for a further period equal to that which, at the time of his escape, remained unexpired of his former sentence.

When the former sentence on the escaped convict is or includes transportation for life and the Court does not sentence him to death, the new sentence shall direct that he be, as soon as practicable, sent back to the place from which he escaped.

EXPLANATION.—For the purpose of this section—

(a) a sentence of transportation shall be deemed severer than a sentence of imprisonment:

(b) a sentence of imprisonment with solitary confinement shall be deemed severer than a sentence of imprisonment without solitary confinement; and

(c) a sentence of rigorous imprisonment shall be deemed severer than a sentence of simple imprisonment with or without solitary confinement.

111. When sentence is passed on a person actually undergoing sentence of imprisonment or transportation, and the sentence is for imprisonment or transportation, the Court shall direct such imprisonment or transportation to commence at the expiration of the imprisonment or transportation to which he has been previously sentenced; or, if he is undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, and the sentence on such subsequent conviction be for transportation, the Court may direct the sentence to commence immediately, or at the expiration of the imprisonment to which such person has been previously sentenced:

Sentence on offender already sentenced for another offence.

Provided that nothing in this section shall be held to excuse such person from any part of the punishment to which he is liable upon such former or subsequent conviction.

Proviso.

112. When any person under the age of sixteen years is sentenced to imprisonment for any offence, the Court may direct that such offender, instead of being imprisoned in the criminal jail, shall be confined in any reformatory established by the Local Government as a fit place for confinement, in which there are means of suitable discipline and of training in some branch of useful industry, or which is kept by a person willing to obey such rules as the Government prescribes with regard to the discipline and training of persons confined therein.

Confinement of youthful offenders in reformatories.

All persons confined under this section shall be subject to the rules so prescribed.

113. When any person is sentenced to death, the sentence shall direct that he be hanged by the neck till he is dead.

Sentence of death.

114. If a woman sentenced to death be found to be pregnant, the High Court shall order the execution of the sentence to be postponed, and may commute the sentence.

Postponement of capital sentence on pregnant woman.

115. When the trial is concluded, the Court may make such order as it thinks fit for the disposal of any property produced before it, regarding which any offence appears to have been committed.

Order for disposal of property regarding which offence committed.

Any order under this section may be in the form of a reference to a Magistrate, who shall in such case deal with the property as if it had been seized by the Police and the seizure duly reported to him.

EXPLANATION.—In this section the term 'property' includes not only such property as has been originally in the possession or under the control of any party, but also any property into or for which the same may have been converted or exchanged, and anything acquired by such conversion or exchange, whether immediately or otherwise.

116. Subject to any rules that may be passed by the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, the Court may order payment, on the part of Government, of the reasonable expenses of any complainant or witness attending for the purpose of any trial before such Court under this Act.

Expenses of complainants and witnesses.

CHAPTER XI.

OF PREVIOUS CONVICTIONS OR ACQUITTALS.

117. A person who has once been tried for an offence and convicted or acquitted of such offence, shall, while such conviction or acquittal remains in force, not be liable to be tried again for the same offence, nor on the same facts for any other offence for which a different charge from the one made against him might have been made under section 19, or for which he might have been convicted under section 20.

Person once convicted or acquitted not to be tried for same offence.

A person convicted or acquitted of any offence may be afterwards tried for any offence for which a separate charge might have been made against him on the former trial under section 18, paragraph 1.

A person convicted or acquitted of any offence in respect of any act causing consequences which, together with such act, constituted a different offence from that for which such person was acquitted or convicted, may be afterwards tried for such last-mentioned offence, if the consequences had not happened, or were not known to the Court to have happened, at the time when he was acquitted or convicted.

A person convicted or acquitted of any offence in respect of any facts may, notwithstanding such acquittal or conviction, be subsequently charged with and tried for any other offence which he may have committed in respect of the same facts, if the Court by which he was first tried was not competent to try the offence with which he is subsequently charged.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is tried upon a charge of theft as a servant and acquitted. He cannot afterwards be charged with the same theft as a servant, or, upon the same facts, with theft simply or with criminal breach of trust.

(b.) A is tried upon a charge of murder and acquitted. There is no charge of robbery; but it appears from the facts that A committed robbery at the time when the murder was committed; he may afterwards be charged with, and tried for, robbery.

A is tried for an assault and convicted. The person afterwards dies. A may be tried again for culpable homicide.

(d.) A is tried under section 270 of the Indian Penal Code for malignantly doing an act likely to spread the infection of a disease dangerous to life and is acquitted. The act so done afterwards causes a person permanently to lose his eyesight. A may be charged, under section 325, with voluntarily causing grievous hurt to that person

(e.) A is charged before the Court of Session and convicted of the culpable homicide of B. A may not afterwards be tried for the murder of B on the same facts.

(f.) A is charged by a Magistrate of the first class with, and convicted by him of, voluntarily causing hurt to B. A may not afterwards be tried for voluntarily causing grievous hurt to B, on the same facts, unless the case comes within paragraph three.

(g.) A is charged by a Magistrate of the second class with, and convicted by him of, theft of property from the person of B. A may be subsequently charged with, and tried for, robbery on the same acts.

(h.) A, B and C are charged by a Magistrate of the first class with, and convicted by him of, robbing D. A, B and C may afterwards be charged with, and tried for, dacoity, on the same facts.

Previous conviction to be set out in charge.

118. If the accused person has been previously convicted of any offence, and if it is intended to prove such previous conviction for the purpose of affecting the punishment which is to be awarded, the fact of the previous conviction must be stated in the charge. If it is omitted, it may be added at any time before sentence is passed, but not afterwards.

Previous conviction or acquittal how proved.

119. A previous conviction or acquittal may be proved against an accused person by an extract certified under the hand of the officer having the custody of the records of the Court in which such conviction or acquittal was had, to be a copy of the finding and sentence.

CHAPTER XII.

OF CRIMINAL LUNATICS.

Procedure in case of person committed being lunatic.

120. If any person committed for trial appears at his trial to the Court to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, the Court shall, in the first instance, try the fact of such unsoundness of mind, and if satisfied of the fact, shall give a special judgment that the accused person is of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence; and thereupon the trial shall be postponed.

The trial of the fact of the unsoundness of mind of the accused person shall be deemed to be part of his trial before the Court.

Release of lunatic pending investigation or trial.

121. Whenever an accused person is found to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, the Court, if the offence of which he is accused be bailable, may release him on sufficient security being given that he shall be properly taken care of, and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, and for his appearance when required.

Custody of lunatic.

If the offence be not bailable, or if the required bail be not given, the Court shall report the case to the Local Government, and the accused person shall be kept in safe custody in such place as the Local Government directs.

Resumption of trial.

122. Whenever a trial is postponed under section 120, the Court may at any time resume the trial, and require the accused person, if detained in custody, to be brought before the Court; or, if he has been released on security, may require his appearance.

The surety of such person shall be bound, at any time, to produce him to any officer whom the Court appoints to inspect him; and the certificate of such officer shall have the same effect as the certificate of an Inspector General of Prisons or the Visitors of Lunatic Asylums, granted under section 128.

Procedure on accused appearing before Court.

123. If, when the accused person appears or is again brought before the Court, it appears to such Court that he is in a fit state of mind to make his defence, the inquiry shall proceed, or he shall be put on his trial, as the case may require.

If it appears that the accused person is still of unsound mind, and incapable of making his defence, the Court shall again act according to the provisions of section 121.

Finding in case of acquittal on ground of being lunatic.

124. Whenever any person is acquitted upon the ground that, at the time at which he is charged with having committed an offence, he was, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act charged, or that he was doing what was wrong or contrary to law, the finding shall state specially whether such person committed the act or not.

Person so acquitted to be kept in safe custody.

125. Whenever such finding states that the accused person committed the act charged, the Court before which the trial was held shall, if the act charged would, but for the incapacity found, have amounted to an offence, order him to be kept in safe custody, in such place and manner as the Court thinks fit, and shall report the case for the order of the Local Government.

The Local Government may order such person to be kept in safe custody in a Lunatic Asylum or other suitable place of safe custody.

Lunatic prisoners to be visited by Inspector General.

126. When any person is confined under the provisions of section 121 or 125, the Inspector General of Prisons, if such person is confined in a jail, or the Visitors of the Lunatic Asylums or any two of them, if he is confined in a Lunatic Asylum, may visit him in order to ascertain his state of mind; and he shall be visited once at least in every six months by such Inspector General or by two of such Visitors as aforesaid; and such Inspector General or Visitors shall make a special report to the Local Government as to the state of mind of such person.

Procedure where lunatic prisoner is reported capable of making his defence.

127. If such person is confined under section 122 and such Inspector General or Visitors as aforesaid shall certify that, in his or their opinion, such person is capable of making his defence, he shall be taken before the Court, at such time as it appoints, and the Court shall deal with him under the provisions of section 123; and the certificate of such Inspector General or Visitors as aforesaid shall be receivable as evidence.

Procedure where lunatic confined under section 125 is declared capable of being discharged.

128. If such person is confined under the provisions of section 125, and such Inspector General or Visitors as aforesaid shall certify that, in his or their judgment, he may be discharged without danger of his doing injury to himself or to any other person, the Local Government may thereupon either order him to be discharged, or to be detained in custody, or to be transferred to a public Lunatic Asylum, if he has not been already sent to such an Asylum; and may appoint a commission, consisting of a judicial officer not below the grade of a Sessions Judge and two medical officers, whereof the chief medical officer attached to the Lunatic Asylum shall be one.

The said commission shall make formal inquiry into the state of mind of such person taking such evidence as is necessary, and shall report to the Local Government, who may order his discharge or detention as to it may seem fit.

Delivery of lunatic to care of relative.

129. Whenever any relative or friend of any person detained under the provisions of section 125 is desirous that he shall be delivered over to his care and custody, the Local Government, upon the application of such relative or friend, and on his giving security to the satisfaction of such Government that the person detained shall be properly taken care of and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, may order that the person detained be delivered to such relative or friend.

Whenever such person is so delivered, it shall be upon condition that he shall be subject to be inspected by such officer, and at such times as the Local Government directs.

The provisions of sections 126 and 128 shall apply to persons detained under the provisions of this section; and the certificate of the inspecting officer appointed under this section shall be dealt with as a certificate of the Inspector General of Prisons or the Visitors of Lunatic Asylums, under the said sections.

Procedure where accused does not understand the proceedings.

130. If an accused person, though not insane, cannot be made to understand the proceedings, the Court may proceed with the trial; and if such trial results in a conviction, the Court shall pass thereon such order as it thinks fit.

CHAPTER XIII.

OF PROSECUTIONS IN CERTAIN CASES.

Prosecutions for offences against the State.

131. A complaint of an offence punishable under chapter VI of the Indian Penal Code, except section 127, or punishable under section 294 A of the said Code, shall not be entertained, unless the prosecution be instituted by order of, or under authority from, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, or some officer empowered by the Governor General in Council to order or authorize such prosecution, or unless instituted by the Advocate General.

Prosecution of Judges and public servants.

132. A complaint of an offence of which any Judge or any public servant not removeable from his office without the sanction of the Government is accused as such Judge or public servant, shall not be entertained against him, except with the sanction or under the direction of the Government, or of some officer empowered by the Government, or of some Court or other authority to which he is subordinate, and whose power so to sanction or direct such prosecution the Government does not think fit to limit or reserve.

No such Judge or public servant shall be prosecuted for any act purporting to be done by him in the discharge of his duty, unless with the sanction of the Government.

Sanction when to be given.

The sanction must be given before the commencement of the proceedings.

In this section the expression 'Government' means either the Local Government or the Governor General in Council; and the expressions 'Judge' and 'public servant' have the meanings assigned to them respectively by the Indian Penal Code.

Prosecution for contempts of the lawful authority of public servants.

133. A complaint of any offence described in chapter X of the Indian Penal Code, not falling within section 435 or 436 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, shall not be entertained in any Criminal Court, except with the sanction or on the complaint of the public servant concerned, or of his official superior.

The prohibition contained in this section shall not apply to the offences described in sections 189 and 190 of the Indian Penal Code.

Prosecution for certain offences against public justice.

134. A complaint of an offence against public justice, described in section 193, 194, 195, 196, 199, 200, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211 or 228 of the Indian Penal Code, when such offence is committed before or against a High Court, shall not be entertained in any Criminal Court, except with the sanction of the Court before or against which the offence was committed.

Prosecution for certain offences relating to documents given in evidence.

135. A complaint of an offence relating to documents, described in section 463, 471, 475 or 476 of the Indian Penal Code, when the document has been given in evidence in any proceedings in any High Court, shall not be entertained against a party to such proceedings, except with the sanction of the Court in which the document was given in evidence.

Nature of sanction necessary.

136. The sanction referred to in sections 133, 134 and 135 may be expressed in general terms, and need not name the accused person.

Such sanction may be given at any time, and a sanction under any one of the three last preceding sections shall be deemed sufficient authority for the Court to amend the charge to one of an offence coming within either of the two remaining sections, if the facts disclose such offence.

EXPLANATION.—In cases under this chapter, the report or application of the public servant or Court shall be deemed sufficient complaint.

Procedure in cases mentioned in sections 133, 134 and 135.

137. When the Court is of opinion that there is sufficient ground for inquiring into any charge mentioned in sections 133, 134 and 135, such Court, after making such preliminary inquiry as may be necessary, may either commit the case itself, or may send the case for inquiry to any Magistrate having power to try or commit for trial the accused person for the offence charged.

Such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed according to law; and the Court may send the accused person in custody, or take sufficient bail for his appearance before such Magistrate; and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence on such trial or inquiry.

The Magistrate receiving the case may, if he is authorised to make transfers of cases, transfer the inquiry to some other competent Magistrate, instead of completing the inquiry himself.

Procedure to compel payment of penalty by accused.

141. Whenever, by reason of default of appearance of the person executing the personal recognizance, the Court is of opinion that proceedings should be had to compel payment of the penalty mentioned in the recognizance, it shall proceed to enforce the penalty, by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of the moveable property belonging to such person, which may be found within the local limits of its ordinary original jurisdiction.

Such warrant may be executed within such limits, and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the accused person, without such limits, when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situate.

Procedure to compel payment of penalty by sureties.

142. If such penalty be not paid, and if no sufficient cause for its non-payment be shown, the Court shall proceed to recover the penalty from such surety or sureties, by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of any moveable property belonging to him or them which may be found within the local limits of the ordinary original jurisdiction.

Such warrant may be executed within such local limits; and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the surety or sureties without such limits, when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situate.

If such penalty be not paid and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, such surety or sureties shall be liable to confinement, by order of the Court, in the civil jail, during a period not exceeding six months:

and the Court is of opinion that it is just and necessary to require such person to give a personal recognizance for keeping the peace, the Court may, in addition to any other order passed in the case, direct that the person so convicted be required to execute a formal engagement, in a sum proportionate to his condition in life and the circumstances of the case, for keeping the peace during such period as it may appear proper to fix in each instance, not exceeding three years, with a provision that, if the same be not given, he shall be kept in simple imprisonment for any time not exceeding three years, unless within such period he executes such formal engagement as aforesaid.

If the accused person be sentenced to imprisonment, the period for which he may be required to execute a recognizance, and the imprisonment in default of executing such recognizance, shall commence when he is released on the expiration of his sentence.

145. Whenever it appears necessary to require security for keeping the peace, in addition to the personal recognizance of the party so convicted, the Court empowered to require a personal recognizance may require security in addition thereto, and may fix the amount of the security-bond to be executed by the surety or sureties; with a provision that, if the same be not given, the party required to find the security shall be kept in simple imprisonment for any time not exceeding three years.

REALIZATION OF GOVERNMENT ARREARS.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier moved that the Bill for the realization of arrears in Government estates be read in Council. He said that at the last meeting of the Council he had the honor to ask permission to introduce this Bill. The Bill had since been prepared, and had been the proper number of days in the hands of hon'ble members. He therefore now moved that the Bill be read in Council.

The motion was agreed to, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee, consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Schalch, the Hon'ble Baboo Kristo Das Pal, and the Mover.

PARTITION OF ESTATES.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier moved for leave to bring in a Bill for the repeal of Regulation XIX of 1814 (a Regulation for reducing to one Regulation, with alterations and additions, certain Regulations respecting the partition of estates paying revenue to Government). In doing so, he said he was obliged to take the Council back to the legislation of 1793. Hon'ble members were aware that the permanent settlement was concluded for very large estates or tracts of land. Whole pergunnahs, consisting of what were then called several mehals, were included under one engagement for the payment of a certain amount of revenue, and all the lands so included were jointly liable for the due payment of that item of revenue. In order to give the greatest possible value to the property which had been so arranged, the legislators of the day provided every possible facility for those who were jointly responsible, and whose property was jointly responsible with that of others, to separate their interests and their liability. That might be called the first butwarrah legislation. The joint interests which were liable for the same item of Government revenue might be roughly divided as of two classes. In the first class were coparceners in an entire estate, who held the whole on joint tenancy with others; who had a certain interest in every field and in every clod of earth throughout that estate. They were known as ijmali shareholders. The second class consisted of persons who were in possession of certain specific villages or mehals which represented their interest in the common estate. As regards coparceners whose interests were represented by specific lands, the Regulations of 1793 provided that they might apply to have their interests and liabilities separated by the apportionment on the specific land belonging to them of a specific amount of the common jumma. With regard to the ijmali shareholder, who was a common tenant of the whole area of the estate, the Regulations provided something more. He might insist on a certain quantity of land being separated from the rest as representing his interest in the estate, and then on a proportionate amount of the common jumma being settled upon the lands which were in future to constitute his sole estate. The Regulations contemplated and encouraged this separation of interests being made by the parties themselves. But whereas the Government revenue was at stake, it was provided from the first that they should do nothing which jeopardized that revenue in any way; and every partition which they proposed to make had to be considered and approved by the revenue authorities. The one great principle then laid down, and in full force up to this day, was this, that whenever any land which had up to that time been jointly responsible with other land for one item of the land revenue was separated and formed into a separate estate having its own responsibility for a certain portion only of that revenue, the jumma should be proportioned according to this rule, viz. the portion of the jumma which was settled on each portion of the property into which the original estate was divided should bear the same proportion to the actual produce of the land as the entire joint jumma had borne to the actual produce of the entire lands which were originally contained in the whole estate. That rule was a perfectly sound one, and had existed in full force up to the present day.

The privilege of obtaining such separation of interests in the land as Mr. Dampier had described was extended to those who became owners of portions of estates which were sold by the Government for realization of arrears of revenue; for in those days if an estate fell into arrear, the whole of it was not sold, but only such portion as was necessary to make good the arrear. The privilege was also extended to portions of estates transferred under decrees of the Civil Court by sale or other process; but this provision was subsequently, in 1846 he thought, repealed. Thirdly, the privilege was extended to all proprietors who, by private arrangement, bought shares of estates. Regulation VIII of 1793 again recognized the right of the sharer to apply for separation; Regulation XXV (all these Regulations were passed on the same date) laid down rules for carrying that out; Regulation XV of 1797 prescribed the rate of fee to be levied by the Collector in apportioning the jumma, to be a quarter per cent. on the annual revenue. Then came Regulation VI of 1807. He would ask hon'ble members to observe here that the security of the Government interest throughout was considered paramount. Before any other question was the question of the Government revenue. Here was the preamble of the Regulation :—

"Whereas under the provisions contained in Regulations I and XXV of 1793, persons holding shares of estates paying revenue to Government are entitled to a separation of such shares; and on the completion of the butwarrah by the officers of Government, and on the confirmation of it by the Governor-General in Council, to hold the same as distinct mehals, subject to the just proportion of the public assessment: and whereas considerable loss and inconvenience have been experienced in the collection of the public revenue from the too minute subdivision of landed property," it was enacted that estates might be divided down to a jumma of five hundred rupees.

The restriction did not long remain in force however. Regulation V of 1810 did away with it, and allowed partitions to be made of the very smallest estates. The preamble of that Regulation ran thus :—

"Experience having shown that the existing rules for the division of landed property paying revenue to Government are in many respects defective, inasmuch as they do not sufficiently provide against the artificial delays and impediments which are frequently thrown in the way of the process of the division by some one or more of the parties concerned, who may be interested in so doing, or (as often happens) by the officer employed in conducting the details of that process; nor effectually secure Government from the loss resulting from fraudulent and collusive allotments of the public revenue on the shares of estates when divided; and there being moreover reason to believe that the restriction which has been laid on the partition of small estates by Regulation VI of 1807 has been, and is, the cause of considerable injury to numbers of individual sharers in such estates, thereby inducing a sacrifice of private rights, which the degree of public inconvenience arising from the minute division of landed property does not appear to be of sufficient magnitude to justify or require: with a view therefore to remedy these defects, to expedite the division of landed property paying revenue to Government, when duly authorized by the provisions of Regulations I and XXV of 1793, and their corresponding regulations for Benares, and for the ceded and conquered provinces; with due regard to the permanent security of the public revenue, whatever be the amount thereof; and to obviate the injury to which individual sharers are liable in the case of a joint estate being brought to sale for balances which may have arisen from the default of their coparceners during the interval while the process of division is pending, the following rules have been enacted."

So that by this Regulation there was no limit to the minuteness of the estate, which might be subdivided into a number of other estates; and this Regulation also provided certain provisions to protect the share of the applicant from sale in the case of other sharers falling into arrears during the course of the butwarrah.

Up to 1811 provision had been made to protect the Government revenue from the effects of fraud and error, the provision being that if within three years after the conclusion of the partition fraud or material error was discovered affecting the Government revenue, the Governor-General in Council might annul the proceedings and order the reallotment of the jumma on the two estates, apportioning the jumma for which each portion should be liable in accordance with the relative proportion borne by its produce. Subsequently it was found that the period of three years was not enough to bring to light these cases of fraud and error; and therefore, by Regulation XI of 1811, the period was extended to ten years, and that was the law still. The next Regulation was XIX of 1814, which it was now proposed to repeal. The preamble of that Regulation said :—

"Whereas difficulty has, in many instances, been experienced in providing fit persons to undertake the partition of estates paying revenue to Government, from the inadequacy of the remuneration prescribed in Regulation V, 1810, in some cases—particularly in instances when measurement of the land becomes necessary; and whereas it has been deemed expedient to make provision for defraying the expense attendant on such measurement, and for augmenting the remuneration to the ameen appointed to make the partition, in cases where the Board of Revenue or Board of Commissioners may consider such augmentation equitable; and whereas it will tend to the public convenience to reduce to one Regulation certain Regulations at present in force respecting the partition of estates paying revenue to Government, the following rules have been enacted."

MR. DAMPIER would, shortly as he could, lay before the Council the main provisions of that law, because it would be understood that it was not proposed to ask the Council to upset the general scheme upon which butwarrahs were effected under that law, but to make modifications and improvements in it, and therefore it was necessary that hon'ble members should have before them an account of the existing scheme. Regulation XIX of 1814 then provided that the Collector was to superintend the partition and to apportion the jumma, the parties to the partition paying the expense; that any proprietor was entitled to separation if no objection was made by the other proprietors to the effect that the interest of which the applicant declared himself to be possessed was greater than that to which he was entitled. But if any such objections were made, the partition could not proceed until the applicant had made good in the Civil Courts his claim to the interest which he professed to possess. Under this Regulation two estates once separated might be united again into one. The lands assigned to the separated estates into which the parent estate was to be divided were to be as compact as was possible with reference to their circumstances and the general fairness of the division. The public revenue was to be assessed according to the principles of the Regulations of 1793. Every local circumstance affecting the value of the land was to be taken into consideration, such as the advantages derived from embankments, reservoirs, &c.

The dwelling-house of each sharer was to remain in his possession. If it fell within the estate of another shareholder, it was still to remain in the possession of the original occupant, who, with regard to it, would be in the position of a tenant to the zemindar within whose estate it might fall in the division. Rules were made as to the benefits to be enjoyed from water-courses, embankments, &c., by each of the newly-formed estates. The Collector was to appoint a creditable ameen to make the partition. Fees fixed at a certain percentage of the jumma were assigned to him by this law; but the remuneration was found to be insufficient, and subsequently the revenue authorities were allowed to fix the ameen's fees at their discretion.

The Collector was to impose a daily fine on any proprietor who tried to cause delay by throwing impediments in the way of the partition. The Collector was to give copies of the partition papers to each of the sharers in the estate. If all the sharers agreed to the partition, and no objection was made, he was to place the parties in possession and report his proceedings to the superior authorities. If any objection was made, the Collector was not to put the applicant in possession, but to send the papers to the Board of Revenue, whose decision was final. Division of estates and mehals might be made amicably or by means of arbitration; but the Collector was to satisfy himself that the allotment of the jumma was fair and safe as regards the Government revenue, just in the same way as he had to satisfy himself as to the proposals made by an ameen. Where an estate was divided into two equal shares, the division having taken place, lots were to be drawn by the parties to decide which share should belong to which proprietor. Then came the provision that within ten years after partition the Governor-General in Council, in case of the discovery of fraud or material error, might annul the allotment of jumma, but not the partition of lands. The Governor-General in Council could not interfere with the partition of the land, but only, in the interests of the Government, with the amount of jumma assessed on the respective portions into which the estate had been divided. The joint proprietors were to be held jointly answerable for the entire revenue of the parent estate until each was put in possession of his separate share; but with this modification, that as soon as an estate was declared by the Collector to be under butwarrah, a separate account was opened for the applicant's share, and payments of revenue made on account of that share were separately entered. In the event of the other sharers falling into arrear, the estate would be sold, saving the applicant's share. But one very important question regarding the construction of the law had arisen here. The law did not say whether, in the event of the defaulting sharer's share not realizing the full amount of the revenue due, the applicant's share should then be liable to sale or not. That was a very important point.

After Regulation XIX of 1814 came, Act XX of 1836. It was found that there was no provision of law authorizing the Collector under any circumstances, after once an estate had been declared under butwarrah, to strike the butwarrah case off his register, even if the parties agreed to this course. Therefore Act XX of 1836 enacted that while a butwarrah was in progress, the Board of Revenue might give six months' notice of their intention to quash a butwarrah. If no objections were made by any party during that time, the Board might direct the butwarrah to be quashed, and then all things would thereafter go back to the status in quo ante, to the joint liability of all the shares for the entire joint jumma of the estate.

Such was the present state of the law, and under it a large number of butwarrahs had been made, especially in Tirhoot and Cuttack. In Tirhoot Mr. Dampier believed that not less than three thousand butwarrahs had been effected within the last eleven years. So long ago as 1848 the defects in the law and the difficulties experienced in carrying it out were prominently brought to notice by Mr. Alexander Forbes, the then Collector of Rajshahye. Inquiries were then made, and from that time to this it had been admitted that amendments in the law were much required both for the purpose of devising remedies and the determination of certain important points which the present law left in doubt. Since Mr. Forbes wrote, there had been great changes in the law. He wanted to do away with butwarrahs unless made by the proprietors themselves, and he wished to provide security to each proprietor against the default of his co-sharers by opening a separate account independently of the question of partition of land. Hon'ble members were aware that this proposal had been absolutely carried out by Act XI of 1859. Independently of any question of dividing the land, any proprietor might now ask the Collector to keep the account of his share separately from that of the other sharers in the estate; and after such separate accounts had been opened, if the revenue due from the estate was not paid up, that share only which was in arrear would be made primarily liable and sold. The shares not in arrear would not be sold unless the amount realized by the sale of the defaulting share was insufficient to clear off the arrear due. It was supposed that when Act XI of 1859 came into force, the number of partitions would fall off, as that Act would give shareholders the protection which they required against the default of their coparceners; but broadly speaking the expected result had not ensued, and it appeared that, especially in districts in which butwarrahs had been in vogue, the shareholders sought to have their lands distinctly told off to them and themselves freed from all connection with, and interference from, their more powerful coparceners. Thus it was found necessary to keep up the system of the butwarrah law, and it having been decided to keep it up, the Government had, after many years of discussion, resolved, if possible, to make such amendments in the law as experience had shown to be necessary. In 1852 the Board of Revenue, after receiving reports from the Commissioners consulted upon Mr. Forbes' letter, submitted a draft of an Act. The legislation for Bengal was then in the hands of the Legislative Council of the Governor-General.

Not only in Lower Bengal had the necessity for amending Act XIX of 1819 been felt. In 1863 Mr. Harington introduced into the Governor-General's Council a Bill for the North-Western Provinces, repealing Regulation XIX of 1814, and making the necessary reforms. He then stated that he had originally meant his measure to apply to the whole of the Presidency of Bengal. But as a local Council was about to be established for the Lower Provinces of Bengal, he thought it would be preferable that legislation for the provinces under the Lieutenant-Governor should be left to that Council. The subject had since continued to receive attention. In 1864 a very elaborate note was recorded by Mr. Bruce Lane, then Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue, bringing together the whole of the discussions on different points which had taken place at various times. Mr. Lane was peculiarly well qualified to deal with the question, having then just held the post of Collector of Tirhoot, which district might be termed the mother of butwarrahs.

Two years ago Mr. Alonzo Money, as Member of the Board of Revenue, had caused the draft of an Act to be prepared, and this had been under the consideration of the late Lieutenant-Governor, when the famine came in and stopped all such proceedings.

In order to show the strong views which some officers held as to the mischief done by the existing law, MR. DAMPIER might read to the Council some passages out of Mr. Forbes' letter. Hon'ble members would better appreciate the full force of those passages when they remembered that five and twenty years ago officers were not in the habit of expressing themselves on official matters in strong language of this sort:—

"As at present conducted, I can only characterize butwarrahs as the most disgraceful system of gambling that the world perhaps has ever witnessed. The applicant for butwarrah, however small his share in the estate may be, challenges his coparceners to the game, and Government immediately obliges them all to take a hand, and enforces the payment of the stakes by dispossessing the losers and giving possession to the winner. During the game, however, Government only interferes for the purpose of punishing delay or interruption in playing, by imposing daily fines, which are awarded to the dealer, to whose cheating there is no check but an oath at the commencement."

The Ameen, of course, was the person referred to as the dealer. The Board of Revenue were a good deal scandalized by the language of that letter, but it was considered to be an admirable letter, and action was taken upon it. MR. DAMPIER had said that the alteration of the law was required for two purposes. The first was an interpretation of several important points which the present law left doubtful and open to discussion; the second was the introduction of such improvements in the procedure as experience had shown to be necessary, especially in order to expedite the proceedings.

The following were a few of the main points which had been the subject of much discussion, because the law was open to two interpretations.

Were proprietors, whose names were not recorded as such, entitled to apply for butwarrah and to bring forward objections to applications made by others?

Another question was very familiar to officers who had served in Tirhoot under the name of the "mushtavah" lands difficulty.

Estate A was liable for one item of revenue; estate B for another item; they were perfectly distinct estates, but unfortunately a tract of land, C, which belonged jointly and in common tenancy to both the estates, was held "mushtavah" between them. There had been much discussion as to whether, under such circumstances, a butwarrah of either estate A or estate B could be made on the application of one of its coparceners; and it had been ruled that the law did not allow the proprietor of one estate to force the proprietors of another estate to take any part, however small, in partition proceedings, and that therefore no butwarrah could take place in the existing state of the law. In fact there was no practical difficulty in the way of making the butwarrah of one estate under such circumstances. If a few fields were held jointly in two estates, one of which was brought under butwarrah, there would be no great hardship on the owners of the other estate not under butwarrah, to oblige them to divide that joint land between themselves and the owners of the estate under butwarrah. It was the form of the law which prevented that being done.

Then as the law stood, there was doubt whether the Collector had the power to levy from all the proprietors of an estate their quota of the butwarrah expenses as the money was required. Some thought that the Collector could not legally levy anything under the law except from the applicant, until after the butwarrah was completed; others were of opinion that he could call upon each proprietor to pay his quota of the butwarrah expenses as they were required.

The most difficult of all the points of law arose out of under-tenures created in estates. Suppose the case of a sharer in common tenancy, who had a four-annas interest throughout every blade of grass and every clod of the soil in an estate, letting his share in putnee. As far as the other proprietors were concerned, this would have the effect of substituting the putneedar for the putneedar's lessor, i.e., the putneedar would have a right to collect four annas out of every rupee payable by each ryot on the estate. Things being so, the lessor applied for a butwarrah of his share; he asked to have specific lands, yielding a quarter of the assets of the whole estate, separated from the rest, and assigned to him alone, as representing his interest in the estate. In such a case, was the putneedar to follow his lessor? Was he to be deprived of the right, which he acquired by contract from his lessor, of collecting four annas out of each rupee of every ryot's rent, and to be told "your putnee rights are now confined to the particular quarter of the estate which has been allotted to your lessor; you must not come near the remaining three-quarters of the estate." Or, was the applicant to be refused separation of his share on the ground that the putneedar was entitled to retain his right to collect four annas from every tenant on the estate. It was obvious that this was a most difficult question, but it was better that it should be decided on e way or the other by the law itself.

Then there was another question which had been the subject also of consideration both by the executive and judicial authorities, and of conflicting decisions. It was the case in which one of the proprietors of the estate was neither an ijmali shareholder, holding in common tenancy throughout the whole estate, nor the holder of specific lands representing his interest in the estate; but his interest was represented by a fractional undivided share in one or two out of many villages which the estate comprised. Was such putneedar of a joint undivided sharer in a specific portion only of the estate—and not in the whole—entitled to apply for a butwarrah or not? At one time the ruling was that he was entitled to butwarrah; at another that he was not entitled, and there had been much litigation on the point. There would be no difficulty whatever practically in making the butwarrah if the law allowed it; but the law did not allow it, and Mr. Dampier thought there was no reason whatever why a sharer so situated should not have the same privilege as other proprietors.

Another question was, where a sharer had refused to engage for the payment of the revenue assessed on his estate, was a proprietor who was out of possession on this account entitled to apply for butwarrah?

Then it was doubtful whether, in the event of an arrear not being realized by the saleof the defaulter's share, the protected shares were liable to sale. In dealing with this question, the Committee would of course bear in mind the provisions of Act XI of 1859, authorising the opening of separate accounts of the revenue paid in by different sharers; and the Bill would be fitted into the provisions of that law.

Then there was the question as to whether it was, under any circumstances, legal to strike off the file a butwarrah which had once been brought on to it otherwise than under the provisions of the Act of 1836.

It was held that, however physically impossible it might be to effect a butwarrah in accordance with the law, no case could ever be struck off except under the provisions of that law. If any one objected to the striking off, the butwarrah must remain on the file indefinitely without making progress, which was absurd.

Another very serious point for consideration was whether any limit should be imposed, for the safety of the Government revenue, as to the size of the estates to be created by butwarrah. Mr. Dampier had shown that Regulation VI of 1807 had asserted the right of Government to impose a limit, but that the restriction was soon removed. The last proposition made was a compromise, that an estate which did not pay more than ten rupees jumma should not be divided by butwarrah unless the proprietor had pledged himself to redeem the revenue charged on the lands which might be assigned to him by the payment of a lump sum.

These were some of the doubtful points which would require consideration. There were also certain other points in the working of the law which required amendment.

The mechanism of the existing law was such that it was practically in the power of any proprietor to throw obstacles in the way of a butwarrah being completed. It was only lately that a butwarrah came under Mr. Dampier's notice, which had been fifty years on the file. Nine, ten, or even twenty years, was no unusual time. If at any moment any sharer wished to prevent his co-sharer from obtaining the separation of his share, which was the object of his application for butwarrah, he had only to present a series of frivolous objections to the Collector. Mr. Dampier could not put this question of delay in a more forcible way than Mr. Forbes had done, in the letter which had already been referred to. In paragraphs 23 to 25 Mr. Forbes said:—

"Fines may be imposed on the zemindars for not delivering papers; but the zemindars may easily avoid these fines by giving papers that are utterly useless, whilst they may protract the business to an endless duration by prohibiting the ryots to attend and point out the land.

"If proof be required of this, I beg to refer to the heaps of urzees that immediately follow the appointment of a butwarrah ameen. The Collector must examine all these urzees, hold a proceeding on them, and submit them to the Commissioner with an English report. The Commissioner then returns them with an English letter. The zemindar in the meantime has been watching the correspondence, and complies just at the time that the coercion was about to operate. The papers are then even, perhaps, found to be incomplete or useless, or the Rujoonuvees affects ignorance of everything relating to the estate, and the correspondence between the Ameen, Collector, and Commissioner commences over again. In all this it is evident that the Collector must be entirely guided by the report of the Ameen, and the Commissioner by the report of the Collector, even if the Collector calls on the zemindar for a reply. It would therefore, in fact, be better, because more effectual, to give the Ameen the power to act summarily, and the zemindar the option of an appeal."

And what Mr. Forbes sketched out, would seem to Mr. Dampier to be the course which ought to be followed. Mr. Forbes said:—

"The only adequate means that I can perceive of enforcing the butwarrah law is by vesting ameens with the authority of Deputy Collectors under Regulation IX of 1833, with full powers under Regulation VII of 1822, and to hold proceedings under Section 30 of Regulation II of 1819, and by remunerating them fully as liberally. The jummabundee of every village in the estate should be taken in the same careful manner as it would be if the estate were under settlement under Regulation VII of 1822 and Regulation VIII of 1832. The provisions of Section 19, Regulation XIX of 1814, should be carefully observed. The jummabundee papers should be finally delivered to the Collector, with a concise roocdad, stating the peculiar circumstances of every village, as required by Section 8 of the present law, and all the sharers should be served with notice that the jummabundee will be finally adopted on a fixed future day, unless satisfactory cause be shewn, and no steps should be taken towards the separation of shares until the jummabundee has been finally settled."

It was universally admitted that the status of the ameen was not such that he could be entrusted with the duties which the existing law assigned to him. The proper remedies seemed to have been shadowed out by Mr. Forbes, i.e. to make the Collector, or his representative, the Deputy Collector, take a more active part in the proceeding, and not to give the ameen the individuality recognised by the law, but merely to regard him as the agent of the Deputy Collector, leaving the Collector, or his Deputy, to deal directly with the proprietors.

If the Collector, instead of the ameen, required the proprietor to file his papers and produce his men, he would soon be able to enforce compliance with his orders, which the ameen could not do. The law assigned to the ameen the initiative in assigning the different lands to the different sharers. It was true that the proceedings of the ameen were subject to the approval of the Collector, but this function of the ameen opened an enormous door to corruption. The ameen drew up his papers and gave them in to the Collector, after having made his proposed partition, and having carried through a mass of the proceedings, on the assumption that his allotment of lands would be accepted; and to this extent pressure was put on the Collector to confirm what the ameen had done. To interfere with it would perhaps be equivalent to retarding the completion of the butwarrah by some months. MR. DAMPIER would therefore take the assignment of lands entirely out of the ameen's hands, and would provide that the Collector or Deputy Collector should make the partition.

Under the present law, as MR. DAMPIER had said, if the share which the applicant claimed was disputed, the Collector was absolutely debarred from proceeding with the butwarrah until the question of right was settled in the Civil Court. However vexatious the objection might be, and however obvious its frivolity, the Collector could do nothing. That, MR. DAMPIER thought, should not be. MR. DAMPIER would mention one other great element of delay. The applicant applied for separation; everything had gone on well; the papers had been produced, and there was nothing left to be done but the confirmation of the Collector. At this stage another shareholder came forward and applied to have his share separated also. The whole thing had to be gone over again for the sake of separating specific lands for this new applicant. MR. DAMPIER thought that if a second applicant did not choose to come forward till near this final stage, he might well be required to wait until the proceedings for separating the original applicant's share were finally completed. Even then, of course, he would benefit to this extent, that the papers on which the first butwarrah was made would be available for the second; there would be little or no more field-work to be done.

MR. DAMPIER thought the Council would agree with him that he had said enough—he feared they would think it too much—to justify his application to bring in the Bill.

The HON'BLE MR. SCHALCH wished to make a few observations before the motion was put to the Council. After the very full exposition the Council had received from the hon'ble mover of the Bill, of what led to the difficulties attending the law of butwarrah, and the measures he proposed to meet them, MR. SCHALCH did not wish to keep the Council for any time on these points. He wished to add that the difficulties which had been pointed out were not at all overdrawn. The Board of Revenue had from time to time endeavoured to meet those difficulties by various rulings; but as these rulings had not the force of law, the Board had not always been able to succeed. In a great portion of Bengal, but little recourse was had to the butwarrah law; but in other portions, such as Tirhoot, and other districts in Behar, the law was greatly in force. Speaking from memory, he believed that in one year there had been no less than eleven hundred cases in Tirhoot, and practically the district was fast becoming what might be called a ryotwaree district; and seeing how frequently the law was resorted to, he thought it was of great importance that the subject should be taken up. From his own experience of the last six years in the Board, he knew that there was no more important measure that could be brought before the Council than the revision and improvement of the law of butwarrah. He proposed to say nothing now about the remedial measure suggested; these points would be better considered when the Bill went before the Select Committee. He trusted that the Council would allow so important a Bill to be brought into Council.

The motion was agreed to.

REGISTRATION OF MAHOMEDAN MARRIAGES AND DIVORCES.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said, he hoped the reason he should give would be considered sufficient to meet antecedent objections to his asking His Honor the President to suspend the Rules of the Council in regard to the Bill to provide for the voluntary registration of Mahomedan marriages and divorces. He presented the report of the Select Committee on this Bill at the last meeting of the Council, and he then hoped that the Bill would be in the hands of the members that night, which would have complied with the requisition of the Rule, that reports of Select Committees should be in the hands of members seven days before the motion could be made that the report be taken into consideration. It so happened that the report could not be in the hands of members until Monday, which reduced the time to five days instead of seven; and that made it necessary to suspend the Rules before the report could be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill. That was the technical difficulty. But the advantage to be gained was not a technical, but a practical one, which was the benefit of the assistance which the Council would have from the presence of their hon'ble colleague Moulvie Abdool Luteef, to whom the Committee were mainly indebted for the details of the Bill, and who had made the subject his study; and his assistance would be valuable to the Council in considering the Bill. MR. DAMPIER had therefore to ask the President to suspend the Rules for the conduct of business, to enable him to move that the report of the Committee be taken into consideration.

The Rules having been suspended—

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier moved that the report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, and that the clauses of the Bill be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Committee.

The motion was agreed to.

The Hon'ble Moulvie Abdool Luteef said—"I feel it my duty to speak a few words in regard to this Bill before it is taken into consideration by the Council. As the only Mahomedan member to whom the subject properly belongs, I am bound to express my gratitude to the hon'ble mover of this Bill, who has discharged his trust in reference to it most admirably. He has so well explained on this and other occasions the objects of the Bill from the impartial point of view of an outsider to Mahomedan society, that I may the better spare the Council an exposition in detail of the necessity of the measure, and how it will affect for good the entire life of the mass of my co-religionists. As the last occasion on which my voice will be heard in this hon'ble assembly, I may be permitted to say that the measure under consideration is one on which, in the interests of my Mahomedan brethren, I have long set my heart. According to the limited opportunities open to me—a man of humble capacities in an humble position—I did my best to point out the impolicy of the proposal, which since became law in 1864, for abolishing the office of Kazi as an institution recognized by the State; and since the passing of that Act I have never ceased to urge, in the proper quarters, the advisability of reviving the office in some modified shape as that proposed in the Bill before us. In public and in private, I have brought to the notice of the authorities the evils of the absence of the old system of registration of Mahomedan marriages and divorces as they began to crop up—evils of which I heard from all parts of the country in which Mahomedans muster strong, and of which I became personally cognizant in my capacity of a Magistrate. Unfortunately, few were conversant with matters purely Mahomedan, or cared much about them; unfortunately, as the evils pressed upon the poorer classes only or chiefly, the higher classes of Mahomedans were comparatively indifferent about the matter; unfortunately, too, from the circumstances of Mahomedan society, from its comparative backwardness in availing itself of the advantages of English education, and the consequent apparent disinclination of Mahomedans to share in the blessings of political life and public discussion open to all classes of Her Majesty's subjects, and of which our Hindoo fellow-subjects properly make the most: unfortunately from these various causes my voice was perhaps the only Mahomedan voice that at all reached the proper ears, and no wonder that it failed of the desired effect.

"At last Sir Cecil Beadon, when Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, was persuaded to rectify the evils of the enactment of 1864, so far as these provinces were concerned; and it would have been rectified long before this but for, I am sorry to say, a serious mistake committed by my late lamented friend, Moulvie Syud Azumooddeen Hussun, Khan Bahadoor, the then Mahomedan member of this Council, who was permitted to introduce a Bill on the subject. That gentleman recommended to the Council the passing of a law for the compulsory registration of all Mahomedan marriages,—a measure which, while being for the most part a dead letter, would have been resented by the whole Mahomedan world as an attack on its religion and its social institutions that are an essential part of that religion. Both as a member of the Mahomedan community, who care for the preservation of the integrity of the Faith, and as a loyal subject of Her Majesty the Queen, and officer of that British Government, which has more than any other given peace and security to India, and under which the vast majority of Mahomedans, no less than of Hindoos, have so well thriven and prospered, I would be the last man to have anything to do with such a proposal, direct or indirect. The Mahomedan community felt not a little relieved when the former Bill was withdrawn by reason of the strong opposition it evoked. I am happy to think that the present Bill before the Council is of a far different character. It is simply a permissive Bill. It in no way attempts to detract from the validity of marriages otherwise valid according to the Mahomedan law. It simply offers the Mahomedan community a facility for proving its marriages. The Mahomedans are welcome to avail themselves of the facility or not, as they choose. Of course it is expected that, practically, they will avail themselves of it largely; particularly the poorer classes, who execute no marriage settlements or rather contracts for dower, and who have, consequently, not the same means as the higher classes for proving their marriages in case of dispute. Thus will all the social evils of uncertainty be remedied. There is nothing in the Bill to which there can be any objection on the part of any Mahomedan. It is, indeed, one for which all sincere Mahomedans, who look with concern on the domestic misery and social immorality which are spreading, from its absence, through the entire lower strata of their community, will be grateful to the Government of Bengal. It will be a matter of no little personal satisfaction to me, who have laboured so long in the cause, to be assured—as I trust I shall be assured by the language and attitude of my hon'ble colleagues to-day—that though I myself may no longer share in their deliberations, the Bill is safe.

It remains for me to add a word on the single point on which I have had the misfortune to differ from the majority of the Select Committee,—a point which has now to be decided by the superior wisdom of the Council. We have it in the report of the Select Committee—and the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill has repeated it in Council—that columns 10 to 14 of the Schedule, Form (A, annexed to the amended Bill, have been included, at my request, for better consideration in Council, though my hon'ble colleagues in Committee were of opinion themselves that these columns had better be omitted from the registers. These columns refer to specification of amount of dower of the two kinds, moájjul and mowujjul; whether any portion of it is paid at the moment; whether any property is given in lieu of dower, or any portion thereof; and to any special conditions that may be attached to the contract of marriage. The reason given for omitting these entries is, that they 'touch upon difficult questions, which are beyond the scope of the Act.' I do admit that it is difficult work to legislate, however delicately, on any subject connected with the religious or social institutions of a people with whose religion or social life the legislators may not be sufficiently familiar. The deliberations of the Council on the present Bill involve that difficulty; but beyond the general difficulty, I do not agree that there is any valid objection to including the particular entries in question in the registers to be kept under the Act, such as would not apply with equal force to dissuade the Council from having anything to do with the Bill altogether. If, however, for sufficient reasons, the Council make bold, as they have made bold—or this Bill would not now be at its present advanced state;—if, I say, in view of the evils raging in Mahomedan society from its absence, the Council make bold to provide for a system of registration of Mahomedan marriages and divorces in accordance with the Mahomedan law and Mahomedan usage, and at the instance of Mahomedan society, I think that the Council ought not to stop short in the good work by refusing to include in the registration particulars which form an essential part of the Mahomedan marriage contract. So far from these entries touching upon questions foreign to the scope of the Act, they are of the very essence of it. By any scruple in including the entries, all the best objects of the system of registration will be frustrated. The dower, I need scarcely remind hon'ble members, is a necessary condition of the Mahomedan marriage;—the consideration for the contract. It must, therefore, seem to all a needless delicacy to omit to provide for recording the consideration while providing for the record of the contract itself. But the necessity for providing a record of the consideration is above all questions of mere delicacy. The mere record of the marriage would be but an infinitesimal boon to the Mahomedan community; while the omission to record the dower would leave the door wide open to all that domestic misery and social demoralization, which it is, and ought to be, the object of the State to prevent, so far as it is preventible in accordance with Mahomedan law. Amid the great and almost absolute power granted by the Mahomedan law to the husband over the wife for arbitrary and capricious divorce, the dower, particularly the prompt portion of it,—the payment to them of which portion Mahomedan wives contrive to keep deferred as a constant check on their husband's caprice,—is the only guarantee; and it is a sufficient guarantee for the wife's good treatment at the hands of the husband. Unless the amount and descriptions of the dower are registered, the Mahomedan wife would not have the benefit of that security of her position granted her by the law of dower. If the Council would not provide for record of the dower, they might just as well almost not provide for any record of the marriage. In that case, both marriage and its terms may be left, as now, to be proved by parties by oral evidence; and the uncertainties and frauds to which such evidence is liable, and from which man and woman in Mahomedan society alike suffer, will be incalculable."

The Hon'ble the Acting Advocate-General said he wished to make one or two remarks on the point in regard to which there was a difference of opinion between the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill and the hon'ble member who spoke last. He concurred with the Hon'ble Moulvie Abdool Luteef that the columns in question in Form (A) of the Schedule should be allowed to stand. The measure before the Council had been very aptly described by the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill as a measure intended to be a popular one, and the Advocate-General trusted it might be rendered in practice useful. He thought the reasons given by the hon'ble Moulvie for letting these columns stand were sound, as they were the ordinary clauses contained in contracts of marriages known as Kabeennamahs, the object of the Act being to provide particularly for the registration of the marriages of the poorer classes of the Mahomedans; and a great deal of fraud would be checked if these columns in the form of registration were allowed to stand, so that there might be some record of the amount of dower. The hon'ble Moulvie had referred to the fact that deferred dowers operated for the protection of wives. It appeared to him that it was clearly necessary for the protection of the husband, that in case of a divorce, the wife should not be able to put forward false or exaggerated claims as to the amount of dower previously settled between the parties. Therefore the Advocate-General thought it would be a useful measure to allow these clauses to stand. He did not think it would be inconsistent with the scope and object of the Act to allow a few items to be included in the registration, which, as the hon'ble Moulvie said, were a part of the essence of the contract.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier said that the reason of the majority of the Committee for wishing to exclude the items under discussion from the form of register was that they seemed to trench on those difficulties which the Council had resolved not to touch upon. The Council had directed the Committee to prepare a Bill providing for the registration of the fact of marriage and the persons between whom it was contracted. And so as to divorces. If the Council had directed the Committee to do what they could to give security to all the special conditions made at the time of marriage, the Committee possibly would have come to a different conclusion as to the admission of the proposed columns into the register. But the danger seemed to him to consist in the conciseness of the description which was required by the columns of the form in the schedule—"Whether any portion of the dower was paid at the moment? If so, how much? Whether any property was given in lieu of the whole or any portion of the dower, with specification of the same? Special conditions, if any." All those conditions and details, it seemed to him, if not described with technical precision, would leave open a door to differences and disputes, which would not have been left open if the attempt had not been made to register these particulars. Those were the grounds upon which the majority of the Committee opposed the introduction of these clauses.

After some further discussion, the motion was agreed to.

Section 1, the interpretation clause, having been read—

The Hon'ble Baboo Juggadanund Mookerjee asked whether it should not be stated that the Kazi was to be a "public servant."

The Hon'ble the Acting Advocate-General explained that the Hon'ble Moulvie Abdool Luteef had a proposal to make to that effect, which would be brought forward at the proper time. It would be better to provide that the Kazis appointed under this Act should be public servants.

The section was then agreed to.

Section 2 was agreed to.

Section 3 provided that every Kazi should use a seal having an inscription in the Persian language.

The Hon'ble Baboo Juggadanund Mookerjee thought that the inscription should also be in the vernacular language of the place in which the Kazi acted. In the eastern districts there were a number of persons who only wrote and read Bengali, and in other places there were Mahomedans who only knew Uriya. In order that every person who went to a Kazi for the registration of a marriage or divorce should be cognizant of the inscription used in the seal, Baboo Juggadanund Mookerjee thought that two languages should be used, viz. Persian and the language of the place in which the seal was used. He therefore moved that the words "language of the place" should be inserted after the word "language" in line 4 of the section.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier thought it unnecessary to have a seal in any other language than Persian.

After some further conversation the motion was negatived, and the section was passed as it stood.

Section 4 was agreed to.

Section 5 provided that the Kazi should keep register books.

The Hon'ble Mr. Schalch asked whether it should not be provided in what languages the registers should be kept.

The Hon'ble Moulvie Abdool Luteef observed that that matter would be regulated by the rules to be passed by Government under the provisions of section 23.

The section was then agreed to.

Sections 6 to 10 were agreed to.

Section 11 provided that copies of the entries in the registers should be given to the parties without charge.

The Hon'ble Baboo Juggadanund Mookerjee suggested that the words "such certificate shall be considered primâ facie proof of the marriage or divorce," should be inserted at the end of this section.

The Hon'ble the Acting Advocate-General observed that all public documents were evidence; and when the Kazi was made a public officer in the service of Government, entries made by him in the register would, under the Evidence Act, become evidence. This Council could not alter or in any way affect the Evidence Act, but they could provide a state of things that would fall within the Evidence Act.

The Hon'ble Moulvie Abdool Luteef said he intended to move thereafter, for the introduction of a Section by which every Kazi would be made a public officer; and when that was provided, all documents and registers kept by such public officer would be primâ facie evidence by the Evidence Act. He thought, therefore, that there was no necessity to insert the words now proposed.

The section was then agreed to.

Sections 12 to 22 were agreed to.

Section 23 provided that the Lieutenant-Governor might make rules for certain purposes.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier said, that in order to emphasise the fact that the Lieutenant-Governor was expected to prescribe the language in which the registers should be kept, he would suggest the insertion of the following as amongst the things for which the Lieutenant-Governor might make rules:—"for regulating the language and the character in which the Kazis should keep their registers."

The Hon'ble the Acting Advocate-General observed that primâ facie the Kazis would write in the Persian character. Then, if there was any special necessity for using any other character, there was provision made in this section for the purpose, in the clause which authorised the Lieutenant-Governor to make rules "for regulating such other matters as appear to the Lieutenant-Governor necessary to effect the purposes of this Act." It appeared to him that it would be better to leave the section as it stood.

The HON'BLE MOULVIE ABDOOL LUTEEF thought the learned Advocate-General's suggestion the best.

The section was then agreed to.

The HON'BLE MOULVIE ABDOOL LUTEEF said he would now propose the introduction of a new section. There seemed to be a shadow of a doubt whether a Kazi appointed under this Act would be a "public servant" within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, and a "public officer" within the meaning of the Evidence Act or not; and therefore it would be better to make him a "public officer in the service of Government" by this Act. As a necessary consequence, the documents and registers kept by him would be "public documents," and, as such, primâ facie evidence. He moved that the following section be introduced after Section 23 :—

"23A. Every Kazi shall be, and be deemed to be a public officer in the service of Government."

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he had not the advantage of the assistance of the learned Advocate-General in Committee. The point was considered, and MR. DAMPIER referred to the definition of "public servant" in the Penal Code, which included "every officer in the service or pay of Government, or remunerated by fees or commission for the performance of any public duty." The definition, it would be seen, precisely met the case of the Kazis under this Act, and that was sufficient; it would be unnecessary to introduce the proposed section, unless the use of the words "public officer in the service of Government," which stood in the amendment, were intended to have some different effect from that which would attach to the words "public servant." To this point Mr. Dampier's attention had not been specially directed.

The HON'BLE THE ACTING ADVOCATE-GENERAL said the definition under the Penal Code was a definition for the purposes of the Code. Section 74 of Act I of 1872—the Evidence Act—provided that the following documents should be public documents—"documents of public officers, legislative, judicial, and executive, whether of British India, or of any other part of Her Majesty's dominions." Therefore all that was necessary was to provide that the Kazi should be a public officer. Also, to bring the Kazi under the Penal Code, we provided that the Kazi should be a public officer "in the service of Government." THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL had suggested the addition of the words "in the service of Government." There might be a scintilla of doubt on the point whether the Kazi performed public duties. He might be readily brought under the first by providing that he was a public officer; and to bring him under the Penal Code, the addition of the words "in the service of Government" were necessary. There might be a question whether the registers of these marriages would be public documents. Hence, in order to make the matter quite certain, it was advisable not to put it in the first branch, but in the second, so that he would be made a public officer; and being in the service of Government, would come both under the Evidence Act and the Penal Code.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT inquired whether that would not give the Kazi a claim to pension. There would always be a certain amount of difficulty in admitting a fresh class of persons to pension. The tendency was, where any persons performed quasi-public duties not under the Government, or under a corporation under the control of Government, to admit their claim to pension. Perhaps that question might be reserved for consideration at the next meeting.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said that the question as to pension of persons paid by fees was special, and subject to the decision of Government in each case. He did not intend to ask the Council to pass the Bill that day, and therefore perhaps the section might be passed now provisionally, subject to future reconsideration.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT wished to have the opinion of the Hon'ble Moulvie Abdool Luteef, as to whether the Kazis themselves would accept the designation of officers of Government.

The Hon'ble Moulvie Abdool Luteef said he thought they would be glad to be so recognised; and if they were declared to be officers of Government, their registers would be public property, and persons making false entries could be prosecuted: and unless it was provided that these registers were the property of Government, it would be difficult to procure the conviction of persons tampering or making away with them. He thought that was an additional reason why these registers should be declared to be public registers and the property of Government.

His Honor the President wished to be informed whether, in the hon'ble member's opinion, the Mahomedan community would accept such a position for the Kazis.

The Hon'ble Moulvie Abdool Luteef thought that Mahomedans would be thankful if such a position were given to the Kazis. He had no doubt that they would be glad of it.

The proposed section was then agreed to, subject to reconsideration at the next meeting of the Council, the President observing that the Section was rather an important addition to the Bill.

Section 24 was agreed to.

Form (A) in the schedule having been read—

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier said that for the sake of taking definitely the view of the Council as to columns 10 to 14 of this form, he would move that the clauses be omitted. He had no strong personal opinion on the matter. He had already laid before the Council the grounds of his opinion, and the Hon'ble Member opposite (Mr. Schalch), also thought it would be better to omit them, as being less likely to lead to complications; but as such complications, when they arose, would come under the treatment of the learned Advocate-General, and his professional fraternity, Mr. Dampier was willing to defer his opinion to that of his Hon'ble friend.

The Hon'ble the Acting Advocate-General said that so far from thinking that the retention of these clauses would lead to complications, he thought they would avert complications that would otherwise arise. The benefit would be, that in the case of marriages amongst the poorer classes, where no written contract of marriage was provided, and where it only lived in the recollection of persons, there would be some certainty. The entries in the register in such cases would be brief, and without any very complicated conditions. No doubt the 14th column provided for the record of special conditions, but that was a state of things not often likely to happen. The principal items that were necessary were "how much of the dower was moajjul (prompt) and how much mowajjul (deferred); whether any portion of the dower was paid at the moment, and how much; whether any property was given in lieu of the whole or any portion of the dower, with specification of the same." He thought that a record of such facts would not only be popular, but useful to that class of the people for whom their hon'ble colleague Moulvie Abdool Luteef had poured forth his sympathy that day, and it would be desirable to retain these clauses.

The Hon'ble Mr. Eldridge inquired whether, if these clauses were retained in the form of registry, it would be necessary that the parties should specify all these conditions; or whether it would be optional what columns should be filled up.

His Honor the President explained, that it was binding on the parties to give the information required by clauses 10 to 14, or they must forego registration. If, under those circumstances, he declined to register, the marriage did not thereby become invalidated.

The Hon'ble Moulvie Abdool Luteef observed that of these five clauses, the first two would apply to all cases; the remaining three would not apply to all marriages. It was very seldom that a portion of the dower was paid, or any property given at the time of marriage, or in which there were any special conditions made. If these circumstances did not arise, those columns would be left blank.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier said he knew of a case, which was also in the knowledge of his hon'ble colleague Moulvie Abdool Luteef, in which a friend of his had made it a special condition on his daughter's marriage, that if during her life-time, the husband married another wife, she should by that act become divorced. Was it safe to express such a condition as this in the loose way in which a Kazi would express it in his register? Mr. Dampier feared that cases would arise in which the loose description of conditions and particulars in the registers, although registered in perfect good faith, might give an opportunity for differences of construction and disputes, if mala fides should afterwards arise.

The Hon'ble Mr. Schalch said he agreed with the Hon'ble Mr. Dampier in thinking the insertion of these clauses beyond the scope of the Select Committee as laid down in the instruction to them by the Council. He considered it, however, quite within the power of the Council to adopt them, if they thought it right to do so; and he would not lay quite so much stress as his hon'ble friend did on the question of complication. The entries would be merely a record of what the statements of the parties were at the time, and they would be open to be rebutted by other evidence. After what had been said by the learned Advocate-General, if the Council thought fit to go beyond their original instructions and adopt these clauses, Mr. Schalch had no objection to offer.

Form (A), with the clauses 10 to 14, were then agreed to; and so also were the Forms (B) and (C).

The title and preamble were then agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier said he did not propose to ask the Council to pass the Bill now, because it was safer that, after having been considered in Council, it should be carefully looked over by the learned Secretary and the Mover of the Bill.

RECOVERY OF ADVANCES MADE BY GOVERNMENT.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier said that although he had not put a formal motion on the paper, as the Select Committee on the Bill for the recovery of loans of money and grain made by Government had lost one of its most valuable members in the Hon'ble Baboo Digumber Mitter, and as it would be advisable that the Committee should be a little strengthened as well, he would move that the names of the Hon'ble Baboo Kristodass Pal, and of the Hon'ble Mr. Thompson be added to the Select Committee on the Bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 23rd instant.

THE GYMNASTIC TOURNAMENT AT BELVEDERE.

No. 50, dated the 11th January 1875.

From—H. J. Reynolds, Esq., Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, General and Revenue Departments,

To—The Director of Public Instruction.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 37, dated 11th January 1875, forwarding the report by the Honorary Secretary, Mr. Toynbee, on the Gymnastic Tournament held on the 7th instant. I am desired to offer the thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor to the Members of the Committee, to Messrs. A. Porter, and H. G. Ryland, who acted as judges on the occasion; to Mr. Blochmann, the referee, and Mr. Rowe, the clerk of the course; and to Mr. Watson, Executive Engineer, who arranged the apparatus used in the Tournament.

The Lieutenant-Governor is very glad to find that the Committee consider the Tournament to have been decidedly successful. He hopes that another Tournament will be held next year, and if this should be determined upon, the suggestions made by the Committee in the present report will be duly considered.

In conclusion, Sir Richard Temple desires to congratulate the winners of the prizes, and those who have obtained honorable mention for their proficiency. He trusts that the young men of these provinces will more and more recognize the advantage of exercising the body as well as the mind, and of making it their object to maintain both in a condition of vigour, health, and activity.

At the conclusion of the sports, Mr. C. E. Buckland, Private Secretary, after distributing the prizes by order of His Honor, read the following remarks which the Lieutenant-Governor was unable to deliver in person :—

"YOUNG MEN,

"I regret I am prevented from giving you the prizes in person. I congratulate you on your success. You may be sure that the efforts made by my predecessor, Sir George Campbell, for the encouragement of gymnastic exercises will prove permanently beneficial. As a proof of my desire to continue that encouragement, I have arranged this meeting, and have offered some of the prizes which have now been distributed. These exercises improve that physical vigour which will prove so useful to you in your mental duties, and will confirm you in strength of will and purpose. Moreover, aptitude and activity of body will be of the utmost service to you in whatever career you enter, whether official or non-official, whether public or private. And lastly, the instruction of Bengali youth in calisthenic skill and power will add to the capacity of the nation. I hope that this important subject will receive more and more of your attention."

Rajah Jotendra Mohun Tagore Bahadoor, then addressed a few words of advice to the students. After pointing out the obligations they were under to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, he called on them to give three cheers for Sir Richard Temple. After these had been given the meeting broke up.

5. The Committee think that, as a first attempt, the Tournament was a decided success. The degree of proficiency attained by the teachers and boys whose names are mentioned in this report, and their behaviour generally, are very creditable to all concerned. There was no disorder or confusion during any part of the proceedings. The various schools throughout the Province have had an opportunity of testing their own standard of proficiency by comparison with others, and boys of all castes and races have met each other in friendly rivalry on common ground. The Committee believe that the result of the Tournament, instituted by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, will be to encourage the prosecution, to a still greater and more general standard of perfection, of those manly exercises which have already made, within a limited period, such rapid and solid progress.

6. The present appears to the Committee to be a favorable opportunity for making a few remarks, suggested by the experience of the first Tournament, which may be of use on future occasions should the experiment be repeated.

7. In the first place, they would observe that the length of the programme, and the number of competitors who actually competed under the various heads—no less than 134, excluding the Hurdle Race and teachers' competition—rendered it a matter of some difficulty to get through all the performances in one day. Though they were commenced soon after 11 A.M. they were not completed until 6 P.M., half an hour's rest having been allowed to the competitors during the middle of the day.

In future, it would perhaps be advisable to eliminate, at district or divisional preliminary meetings, all those competitors who had not attained a really high standard of excellence. Such a course would have saved Government, this year, the expense of the journeys to and from Calcutta, and of the residence in it, of a large number of boys who had no chance of winning either prizes or honorable mention.

8. Two other points which occur to the Committee are:—(1) There might be two classes of competitors instead of one, the boys being divided according to their age and height. A small boy of twelve years of age, and only four feet high, has clearly no chance in many of the exercises, e.g., the horizontal bar, against a boy 18 years old and 5½ feet in height. (2) It might also be well to make a rule that no one boy should carry away more than a certain number of prizes—though all his marks might be allowed to count towards the general proficiency prize.

9. Another suggestion which the Committee have to make is, that, in future, competition need not be limited to the boys of Government schools, but might be thrown open to the students of all the schools in the country where gymnastic exercises are practised. The encouragement given to physical training would be greatly increased by such a course; and if preliminary meetings were held, as already suggested, for the purpose of selecting representative champions, there would not be too many candidates for the final competition. For European and Eurasian boys separate prizes might, perhaps, be offered.

10. The Committee have no doubt that many of the educational officers of Government could offer other very useful suggestions on the subject generally, and they will not therefore say more in this report. There is ample time for discussion should it be decided to make the Tournament an annual institution.

11. They cannot close their report without expressing their acknowledgments for the great assistance rendered by the following gentlemen:—Messrs. A. Porter, of the 28th Native Infantry, and H. G. Ryland, of Her Majesty's 40th Regiment, who performed the arduous duty of judging; Messrs. H. Blochmann and F. Rowe who acted as referee and clerk of the course, respectively; and Mr. Watson, Executive Engineer, Public Works Department, under whose supervision the arrangements for the apparatus, &c., were admirably carried out.

ADMINISTRATION OF THE EXCISE DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEAR 1873-74.

RESOLUTION.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.—MISCELLANEOUS REVENUE.

Calcutta, the 12th January 1875.

READ—

The Report of the Board of Revenue on the Administration of the Excise Department in the Lower Provinces, for the year 1873-74.

The Lieutenant-Governor, while acknowledging with thanks the very complete and lucid review of the excise administration of the year which this report presents, is compelled to remark upon the delay which has attended its submission. The report did not reach Government till the 2nd December, and no reason is assigned to explain why it could not have been furnished sooner. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the Member-in-Charge will take steps to ensure the punctual submission of the report.

2. The financial results of the year are far more satisfactory than could have been anticipated, in view of the distress which has prevailed over so many districts of the Lower Provinces. It is true that the greatest pressure was experienced after the close of the financial year under review; but the Lieutenant-Governor would have been prepared to find some falling off in the excise revenue of 1873-74. So far from this, the net revenue has increased by nearly two lakhs of rupees over that of the previous year, the figures, after deducting all charges, being Rs. 68,41,283, against Rs. 66,42,390 in 1872-73. This larger revenue has also been collected at a smaller cost; the percentage of charges on the gross receipts having fallen from 4·5 to 4·3. The remissions of the year amounted to only Rs. 89; the balances were Rs. 7,360, the whole of which (with the exception of Rs. 973 classed as "doubtful") has since been realised, or is in train of recovery. These figures show that the receipts from excise are realised as punctually, smoothly, and economically, as any part of the public revenues.

3. There would, however, be no cause for congratulation if this larger revenue indicated any increase of habits of intemperance among the people. On the contrary there would be cause for regret. The gratifying feature of the present report however is, that there is shown an increased revenue accompanying a diminished consumption. This result, advantageous alike to the Government and to the people, has been attained by extending the system of selling licenses by auction; by raising the selling price of opium, and the duty on ganja; and by requiring the payment of fees for opium licenses in Calcutta. As compared with the returns of the previous year, the consumption of country-spirits has decreased by 128,324 gallons, while the net increase in revenue amounts to Rs. 1,20,360: in ganja, the revenue has fallen off by only Rs. 12,821, while the consumption has diminished by no less than 383 maunds 23 seers 9 chittacks; and in opium there is a decreased consumption of 66 maunds 18 seers but a net increase in revenue to the extent of Rs. 1,30,647. The Lieutenant-Governor is gratified to observe that the policy which has led to these satisfactory results is still being steadily pursued; that in the current year 1874-75 the system of selling licenses by auction, and restricting their number, will be made still more general; that some local officers recommend a further enhancement of the duty on ganja; and that the Member-in-Charge has directed the imposition of a fee upon opium licenses in twenty-eight districts of Bengal.

4. Country-spirits are sold under two different systems: the fixed-duty system, under which the revenue is paid on the quantity of spirit which actually passes into consumption; and the monthly-tax system, under which the vendor pays a certain price for his shop, irrespective of the amount of his sales. This latter system is in force in twenty Bengal districts, and is considered by the Member-in-Charge to be better adapted than the other to thinly populated tracts, in which illicit distillation is comparatively easy. It is evident, however, that the working of the monthly-tax system requires to be carefully watched, in order to prevent an undue multiplication of the number of shops. From the remarks of the Commissioner of Chota Nagpore, quoted in paragraph 39 of the report, it would seem that in some places sufficient care has not been exercised in this particular. If it be that licenses have been sold too freely, and temptations to drunkenness have been increased, the result would be the occasion for much regret. Sir Richard Temple relies on the experience and watchfulness of the Commissioner to prevent such a result arising. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to see that the Member-in-Charge has given orders, by which the previous number of licenses in the Chota Nagpore division will be lessened by one-half during 1874-75; but he must remark that the possibility of such a reduction shows that the number of licenses must have been in excess of the real requirements of the population. In Midnapore, into which the out-still system has been introduced during the year under review, proper caution appears to have been exercised in this respect, as only one still is allowed to every 16 square miles of area.

5. The experiment of taxing the materials used in the manufacture of country-spirit, instead of the spirit itself, was tried during the year in four districts of the Patna division, and in the district of Monghyr. The result in the Patna districts was an increase in the quantity of spirit, accompanied by a decrease of revenue; while in Monghyr there was a decrease in both consumption and revenue. In the Gya distillery, the consumption in two months increased by 7,439 gallons, while the revenue fell off to the extent of Rs. 3,141. As, under this system, the revenue is the test of the quantity of alcohol manufactured, these figures indicate a preference on the part of the people for a cheap unintoxicating liquor, of a kind which it would scarcely be practicable to gauge by means of the hydrometer. Some local officers speak favorably of the system, and its continuance for another year has been sanctioned by the Member-in-Charge. The Lieutenant-Governor observes that the result of this practice is, that a very large quantity of cheap and weak spirit is produced and drunk. This result was noticed in the Government Resolution of last year; and the principle was laid down that if the people preferred this to getting a smaller quantity of stronger and more expensive liquor, there was no reason why their wishes should not be complied with. Sir Richard Temple, however, requests that the working of this principle may be watched, as the facts now brought out seem hardly to promise that degree of success which was at first anticipated. On the other hand, objections have been urged on the Lieutenant-Governor's consideration. It is argued that the plan affords facilities for drinking—if not for drunkenness; that it extends a taste for spirits among a larger class; and that people who are tempted by this cheap liquor to enter upon a habit of drinking, are likely to take to stronger stimulants hereafter. The liquor which it supplies has to be drunk at once, as it spoils if kept. The vital question is—does this plan encourage drinking? If it does, then the objection is patent.

6. The number of retail licenses for the sale of country-rum exhibited a great decrease compared with the previous year, and the consumption declined 12 per cent, with a corresponding diminution in the amount of duty realised. The introduction, however, of the auction system resulted in an increase of Rs. 16,512 in the receipts from license fees. The consumption of this spirit is almost exclusively confined to the Presidency and Dacca divisions. For several years past, it has been clear that country-rum is being gradually driven from the market by the competition of cheap imported spirits, which are sold under the name of brandy. A memorial on this subject has been presented by Messrs. Ahmuty and Company, who are large distillers of rum; and the Member-in-Charge recommends that the customs duty on imported spirits should be raised from Rs. 3 to Rs. 4 per gallon. The question is under the separate consideration of Government.

7. In the 5th section of the report, which shows the receipts from imported wines and liquors, the information given is not altogether complete, and explanation upon some points appears to be necessary. There was a decrease of six licenses in all, and the receipts from fees diminished by Rs. 7,870. The large decrease in Calcutta is explained to have been due to the introduction of the auction system. But the Lieutenant-Governor observes that in the Patna division there was an increase of seventeen licenses, but an increase of only Rs. 584 in fees. It is not stated whether these additional licenses were in force throughout the year; but if they were, it would seem that they have been granted at needlessly low rates. Some explanation, His Honor thinks, should have been given of the reasons which justified an increase of the number of licenses in the district of Patna from twenty-six to thirty-nine during the year.

8. The importations of wines and spirits show a decline compared with the previous year; but the Member-in-Charge remarks that the importations do not necessarily bear any proportion to the quantity which passes into consumption; and that there is reason to believe that the consumption of European wines and spirits has not diminished. It appears, however, to the Lieutenant-Governor, that taking one year with another, it may be assumed that the bonded stocks do not materially vary in amount, and that consequently a diminished importation points to a decreased consumption. It is to be observed that the importations of wines, spirits, and beer, are not only lower than they were in 1872-73, but that they are considerably below the averages of the five preceding years.

9. The figures under the head of Pachwai contrast unfavorably with the rest of the report, there being an increase of 175 in the number of licenses, but a falling off of revenue to the amount of Rs. 23,806. It is explained that the increase is nominal, and arises only from resettlement of licenses thrown up in consequence of the scarcity. Pachwai is a comparatively innocuous beverage—being a weak beer brewed from rice. It is largely consumed by the poorer clases in Burdwan, Beerbhoom, Moorshedabad, the Sonthal Pergunnahs, and some districts of Chota Nagpore; and the Lieutenant-Governor would deprecate the adoption of any repressive measures which might lead to the disuse of pachwai, and the consumption of distilled liquors in its place. But His Honor would ask the Member-in-Charge to exercise a vigilant supervision over the issue of these licenses, especially in villages which contain a Sonthal population. It is clear, from what is stated in paragraph 125 of the report, that in Chota Nagpore licenses have hitherto been granted too freely, and at inadequate rates; and attention should be directed, not only to increasing the rates of license fees, but to restricting the number of licenses.

10. The outturn of ganja during the year under review was larger than in the previous year, and the area cultivated with the plant showed a considerable increase; but the number of licenses, the consumption, and the revenue, were all smaller than in 1872-73. As might have been anticipated, the districts in which consumption increased during the year are mostly those which not only escaped the famine, but in which the cultivating classes were enriched by the high prices of the year. In Sylhet, in which the season was a prosperous one for agriculturists, there was a considerable increase in the consumption of ganja, and there was also some increase in the districts of the Orissa division. But in the whole of the Lower Provinces the number of licenses fell from 5,134 to 4,865, and the revenue declined from Rs. 11,89,705 to Rs. 11,76,884; though (as has been remarked above) the consumption diminished in a far greater ratio than the revenue, owing to the higher duty imposed upon the drug. The Member-in-Charge does not think that the time has yet arrived for any further increase of the duty. It appears, however, to the Lieutenant-Governor that of all excisable articles, the imposition of an almost prohibitive duty on ganja admits of the best justification upon both moral and economical grounds. It is generally agreed that even the moderate consumption of ganja is deleterious; and that its use leads to crime, to insanity, and to other dreadful consequences. The conditions of its production are such that surreptitious cultivation appears scarcely to be possible. The cultivation of the ganja plant is not, like that of the poppy, spread over an extensive area. The whole of Bengal is supplied with ganja from a tract not exceeding 800 acres in Rajshahye. Supervision is consequently easy; and the imposition of a higher duty—if it resulted in a loss of revenue—would do so only by diminishing consumption. For the sake of the people, the Lieutenant-Governor earnestly commends this subject to the consideration of the Board.

11. The rise in the selling price of opium, which came into force from the 1st January 1873, has had the effect of largely increasing the revenue, with a somewhat smaller consumption. In pursuance of the same policy, the experiment was tried, during the year, of imposing a fee on the grant of licenses for the sale of opium in Calcutta and the suburbs; and during 1874-75 the same system has been extended to 28 other districts in Bengal. About threesevenths of the entire opium revenue is derived from the Assam districts, will consequently not appear in the Board's future returns. In Orissa, the consumption of opium is steadily increasing, and the Commissioner recommends a further rise in the selling price. It is satisfactory to learn that the illicit traffic in opium between the Behar districts and Chandernagore has received a check, owing to several successful seizures of contraband opium having been made; and that the Chandernagore opium farm, the lessees of which depend principally upon this traffic for their profits, was let, in 1873, for only half the price which it fetched in the previous year.

12. The prosecutions under the excise law during the year call for no special remark. There were two cases of some importance in the Presidency division, and proceedings of some kind were taken in the great majority of districts, but the cases were for the most part of a trivial character. In all 2,411 persons were arrested, of whom 1,926 were convicted, 306 were imprisoned, and fines amounting to Rs. 52,838 were imposed, but only about half of this sum was realised. Effectual measures have been taken to secure the prompt payment of rewards in cases under the opium laws.

13. The Lieutenant-Governor notices with satisfaction that the Commissioners named in the margin are specially commended in the report for their efficient administration of the department of excise. Paragraph 189 of the report also mentions the District Collectors and subordinate officers who have merited favorable notice. To the Member-in-Charge, Mr. Money, the thanks of Government are due for the care and ability which he has displayed in the supervision of the department, and for the general excellence of the present report.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE REGISTRATION DEPARTMENT FOR 1873-74.

RESOLUTION.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

Calcutta, the 11th January 1875.

READ—

Report of the Officiating Inspector-General of Registration, in letter No. 3716, dated 27th November 1874.

The Officiating Inspector-General of Registration has submitted an excellent report on the working of his department for the year 1873-74. It enters into particular details of each district, and conveys at the same time much interesting information. The progress which is seen to have been effected, affords every encouragement to perseverance in extending the benefits of the system.

2. The prominent feature of the year's administration has been the large extension of registration offices throughout the country, with the development of the arrangements laid down for the establishment of such offices under the orders of the late Lieutenant-Governor.

3. Upon a retrospect of the progress of this important affair, the Lieutenant-Governor observes that in its original constitution, the Registration Department was presided over by a Director-General, with sub-registrars on fixed salaries in different localities, under the control of the Magistrate and Collector as the Registrar of the district. The salaries of the sub-registrars were fixed at a sum of Rs. 200 per mensem, which was found sufficient to secure men for the duties, with ministerial establishments also paid from the general revenues. Under the circumstances, the increase of registration offices was left to the slow progress dependent upon the resources available from the general funds at the disposal of Government, aided by such surplus as the Registration Department could itself show from year to year on the working of the few offices which it was possible to maintain.

4. The Kazi system of registration, which in many instances possessed no great practical value at any time, had been abolished by law a few years previously. It was recognised, however, by the Government that ineffective and unreliable as the system had been, the attestation of records by particular Kazis, known to be men of position and probity, carried weight with the Mahomedan community; and the abolition of such offices had created a need which it was incumbent upon the Government to supply to meet the legitimate wants of the country. It was in these circumstances that the consideration was pressed upon Government of making some arrangements for a much more extended system of registration of deeds than was possible under the rules which then existed; and the plan was adopted of creating a system of rural registry offices, to be presided over by Native officers retired from the public service, and non-official gentlemen of education and respectability, residents of the places where registration offices were to be established. It was anticipated that for the comparatively light work of rural registry offices a competent agency could be obtained from the classes indicated, whose services might be remunerated from a percentage of the fees realised on registration of documents, and the last year's report showed 23 such offices established and in good working order. The extension of the system during the year under review has been rapid and general; and the arrangements made by the Officiating Inspector-General for the selection of capable candidates, for the grouping of thanas comprising the registration jurisdiction, and for the choice of suitable sites for the offices, have been attended with a success commensurate with the care and attention given to the matter.

5. The results, up to the close of the year to which the report refers, are the establishment of 53 new rural offices in different parts of the Lower Provinces; and to these 49 others have since been added up to the date on which the report was submitted to Government; while on comparing the work done in 1870, before rural offices were established on any efficient footing, with the work of the year under notice, it is found that the sum of the monthly averages of registrations in rural offices was 4,646 in 1870 against 8,524 in 1874, giving an increase of 83·4 per cent. In Jessore—a metropolitan district—where the difficulties of creating offices and finding agents were much less than in backward districts away from the capital, the extension of offices and increase of registrations has been most marked, "more than quadrupling the operations of the Department in a single year;" and it may be fully accepted that throughout these provinces the work done has met a very urgent want, and—so far as it has gone—with success. Such is the testimony of a large majority of the district officers under whom the system has been tried. They mention the confidence of the people in the offices; the beneficial results to the public, especially in developing the habit of registration; the anxiety of the rural Registrars to discharge their duties with honesty and diligence, and the success which, with occasional mistakes to be expected in a new experiment, has attended their efforts. It is satisfactory also to find that the incomes of the new offices have generally been larger than was anticipated, and that the main difficulty of a failure of competent officers, which threatened the introduction of the scheme, has not been experienced. With increasing resources there is every prospect that a better class of rural Registrars and more effective establishments will be secured.

6. Establishments.—The number of offices of all kinds under the control of the Inspector-General of Registration at the close of the year was 221, as against 167 at the end of 1872-73. Thus—

	1872-73.	1873-74.
District offices in charge of salaried Sub-Registrars ..	20	23
Ditto ditto of ex-officio ditto ..	30	27
Sub-divisional offices	87	86
Special offices at sub-divisions	6	9
Rural offices	23	75
Calcutta registry office	1	1
	167	221

It was stated in the previous annual report that an important change in the method of paying those who were specially appointed as Sub-Registrars had been effected; and in the place of a fixed salary of Rs. 200 per mensem, it was proposed to establish the system of remunerating these officers, partly by salary and partly by fees, as securing the object of payment in proportion to the registration effected. This system has been now applied to the new special officers appointed this year, and generally in respect of all acting appointments. It is now brought to notice that the large and general increase in rural offices seriously affects the position and emoluments of the special Sub-Registrars; for, while the work of the latter is much increased in the supervision of the extending rural offices, the multiplication of these, by reducing the jurisdictions of the special Sub-Registrars, reduces also the fees by which they are partly paid. To such an extent has this been in operation, that in several cases where the rural offices are centrally situated and well administered, the fees realised by the rural Registrar have become larger than the salary plus fees paid to the Sudder Sub-Registrar, who is in a position of greater trust and responsibility. Such a result was not contemplated, and as it creates naturally discontent among the older and abler officers of the Department, every effort should be made to remedy the evil. The time probably has come for the gradation of the salaried officers under the Inspector-General, and the Lieutenant-Governor will be glad if that officer will take the subject into his consideration, and submit proposals for better regulating the pay of the more responsible officers under him. It is obvious that where the work of inspection and supervision is required at the hands of the Sudder Sub-Registrar, his emoluments should be higher than those of officers performing almost mechanical duties, and in a subordinate position.

7. The general results of the operations of the Department for the year show an increase of 49,289 registrations (or 17·66 per cent.), raising the total number to 328,369, as compared with 279,080 in 1872-73. Of this year's registrations, 203,565 have been compulsory, and 124,804 optional. The following summary, abstracted from the figured statements which accompany the report, gives the extent of registrations in the principal classes of documents for the two years:—

		1872-73.	1873-74.
	Compulsory.
Registration affecting immovable property.	Instruments of sale, mortgage, &c., of immovable property of value Rs. 100 and upwards	54,125	60,085
	Perpetual leases	54,926	66,398
	Other leases under section 17, clause 4 ..	64,944	76,192
	Optional.
	Instruments of sale of immovable property of value less than Rs. 100	59,708	70,556
	Leases for one year or less	1,476	1,786
	Miscellaneous documents	5,678	6,800
	Total compulsory registrations affecting immovable property	174,788	203,519
	Total optional ditto ditto ..	67,130	79,409
	Total registrations affecting immovable property	241,918	282,928
Registration other than that affecting immovable property.	Obligations for payment of money ..	24,969	29,707
	All other registrations	8,625	11,657
	Total of above ..	33,594	41,364
	Number of wills registered	1,209	1,368

8. The increase is apparent under every head of registration relating to the principal classes of instruments; and with the exception of Calcutta (where dulness of trade is said to have affected registration), Rajshahye (showing a net decrease of only about 4 per cent.), Pubna (where the falling off is chiefly in leases and counterparts, traceable probably to the adjustment of the agrarian disputes previously prevalent), and Darjeeling (including Julpigoree) the increase is distributed over all the other districts, and is prominently noticeable in the Chittagong and Patna Divisions. In Chumparun alone registrations exhibit the extraordinary increase of 133 per cent.

9. In reviewing the causes of this general extension of the work, it is impossible to overlook the fact that the year has been an exceptional one, and that during six months of it—that is from November to April—the prevailing scarcity has affected results. Notwithstanding the divergence of opinion of local officers upon this point, the fact is clearly seen, from the tables submitted by the Inspector-General, that the distressed districts show comparatively a very large increase in registrations of deeds of sale and mortgage, especially in Behar; and the Lieutenant-Governor cannot but infer that where famine pressed with greater severity, there persons having rights in transferable immovable property, pledged them or sold them to avoid the consequences of the distress, and to enable them to meet the demands for the payment of their rent. The pressure in all afflicted districts induced registration. At the same time there were other causes influencing the operations of the Department; and it is quite apparent that with the greater facilities for registration which the expansion of the rural registries has given, the growing confidence of the people in the benefits of the system as a protection against fraud and a security against accidents, and perhaps, more than all, the increase in the value of land, and the desire to become possessed of landed property, have all had their effect in promoting registration during the year under review.

10. The increasing number of perpetual leases marking the continued progress of sub-infeudation, especially in the eastern districts of Tipperah, Chittagong, and Backergunge, is again very remarkable. In Chittagong, it is shown that the tenures which have been thus created during the last five years amount to no less than 63,410. The large and important district of Backergunge shows nearly similar results; and though the statement made that the growing value of the cultivation of the betel and cocoanut, prevalent in these tracts, tends to permanency of tenure, may be a partial explanation of the fact, it is clearly presumable that the cultivators in these districts have thriven upon a succession of rich harvests, and the high prices obtainable for their produce, and invest their capital in the land. The Lieutenant-Governor observes that so far the statistics of registration disclose circumstances which indicate remarkable advancement among some of the agricultural classes. As regards ordinary leases, it is gratifying to find that the number of registrations under this head is on the increase, and that there are indications in several districts that tenants generally are becoming more and more sensible of the advantages of formally attested agreements.

11. The financial results of the year show an income of Rs. 4,82,509 as against Rs. 4,35,319, an increase of Rs. 47,190, or 10·8 per cent. The total expenditure, excluding cost of printing and stationery, which comes to Rs. 18,241, is Rs. 3,29,430 as against Rs. 3,04,782 in 1872-73. Deducting public work charges, which have not been heavy, the actual saving to Government has amounted to Rs. 1,34,838.

12. It remains to notice the points to which attention is particularly desirable in the future working of the Department. Much has still to be done in the extension of the system of rural registries in backward districts. It is noticeable that the tract of country where registration has as yet been little resorted to comprises four* districts of the Rajshahye Division. The absence of sub-divisions is pointed to as the chief obstacle, and generally the want of suitable agency has retarded operations. The experiment of enlisting the services of moonsiffs, postmasters, and schoolmasters as local Sub-Registrars in these parts has not been very successful, and the efforts of the Inspector-General to obtain independent agency must be redoubled. The opening, recently, of such offices in the Maldah and Dinagpore districts, and their successful working, give some hopes of progress, and there is little doubt, from the experience gained in other places, that as new offices are established, registration will be stimulated and soon become remunerative.

* Dinagpore, Maldah, Rajshahye and Bogra.

13. Again, the Lieutenant-Governor must request the special attention of Mr.. Beverley, who has resumed charge of the Department, of the urgent necessity of a constant and well-regulated system of inspection. The circumstances of the past year laid a great strain upon the resources of Government, and the inspecting staff under the Inspector-General had to be reduced for a long period to meet the exigencies of the famine in Behar. This loss will at once be supplied; and with the full complement of officers, and a more genera plan of inspection by the District Sub-Registrars, it is hoped that the rural offices will come under frequent supervision. Without it, considering the agency employed, and isolated situation of many of the offices, the result can only be disorder and confusion. Mr. Bignold has judged well in introducing forms of inspecting memoranda, securing method and clearness in an important branch of detail.

14. Some attention is also necessary to the supply of proper accommodation for the records of the Department. In many places this is seriously defective. In the worst, such for example as Furreedpore, Chittagong, Julpigoree, and Moorshedabad, endeavours should be made at once to complete the works already sanctioned, but deferred on account of the famine.

15. The subject of the proposed issue of blank printed forms of leases and counterparts, with a view to reduce in some measure the trouble and expense of registration, has been recently under the consideration of Government, and will be more appropriately reviewed after the experiment has been for a little time in operation.

16. The paragraph (134) referring to the illegal sub-leases of Government lands in Chittagong by the "circle farmers" will be referred to the Revenue Department. There can be no doubt that the grant in perpetuity of sub-leases by these farmers, where their own interests are temporary and limited, is illegal and invalid.

17. The points for consideration when a revision of the law is undertaken have been noted. The Lieutenant-Governor will immediately consider whether steps can be taken with a view to legislation in this direction during this year.

18. Sir Richard Temple desires to record his appreciation of Mr. Bignolds' successful administration of the Department during the past year. He notices also the favorable testimony borne to the work done by Mr. Hurley, Baboo Mohesh Chunder Bose, Baboo Surish Chunder Chatterjee, and Baboo Poran Chunder Chatterjee, especially in inspection duty; and the good services of the many officers mentioned in the concluding paragraphs of the report.

	Central Districts.
PRESIDENCY DIVN. 6	24-Pergunnahs, 11th† Jan. 1875.	1·35	A sharp storm on the 5th, accompanied by heavy rain and hail. The cutting of the late rice progressing rapidly. The hail and rain on the 5th did some slight damage to the rice in Diamond Harbour that had been cut, but not carried; and to the vegetable crops in part of Bussecrhaut Sub-division. In other parts of the district the rain has benefited the cold-weather crops. Cholera is abating in thanas Bussecrhaut, Hosnabad, Bhangore, Bankipore, and Mothoorapore, but continues in thanas Kallygunge and Devipore.
7	Nuddea, 9th Jan. 1875	1·17	About an inch of rain has fallen almost everywhere. Tobacco has been slightly injured by the rain, but all other crops are flourishing.
8	Jessore, 9th „ „	·97	Weather has been much cooler since the one day's rain in the beginning of the week. Magoora and Jhenidah Sub-divisions appear to have received the slightest amount of rain; the other sub-divisions had good, healthy showers. The late rain has done greatest good to all the spring crops; and the injury caused to sarsa (mustard) and rice is of the slightest degree. The harvesting of the aman, or late rice, is not quite complete in one or two sub-divisions, hence the amount of outturn cannot yet be given, but the result must on the whole be satisfactory.
RAJSHAHYE DIVN. 9	Moorshedabad, 9th Jan. 1875.	1·78	Rain on the evening of the 4th and during the 5th instant. Since the rain, it has been slightly colder. The rain during the week has greatly improved the cold-weather crops: it appears to have been general. In Jungypore the mangoe season promises well. Prices almost stationary, except common rice, which has fallen a little. Cholera has greatly abated in the Sudder Sub-division.
10	Dinagepore, 8th Jan. 1875.	·5	Seasonable rain has fallen. Unusually good crops, such as the district has not had for some years. Reaping in full progress.
11	Maldah, 9th Jan. 1875	0 90	The first two days cloudy; rain on the night of the 4th and day of the 5th; the rest cloudy and fair alternately. Rain fell during the week, and did a good deal of good to all the cold-weather crops, except mustard, some of which being in flower has been damaged by the rain.
12	Rajshahye, 9th „ „	2·14	There was a heavy fall of rain on the 4th and 5th. Weather cloudy and warm, giving probability of more rain. The heavy rain of the week has not, so far as is reported, materially affected the growing cold-weather crops; but to a small extent in parts, the ripe ears of paddy have been knocked off. The injury from this cause is unimportant. Slight damage to mustard crops that were in flower is reported from Nattore. The condition of all crops is promising. Public health good.
13	Rungpore, 8th „ „	0·38	Some rain has fallen during the week; since then the weather is fine and cold. The cutting of the aman, or late rice crop, is still going on. Prospects of the cold-weather crops are favorable.
14	Bogra, 9th „ „	1·70	Rain has fallen in the district. Weather cloudy and foggy in the morning, especially somewhat cold. A slight shock of earthquake was felt about 9 o'clock on the 6th instant. A bumper rice crop mostly cut
15	Pubna, 9th „ „	1·07	Fine, cold and seasonable weather. Storm of thunder and lightning, with heavy rain, on the night of the 4th, and rain during the 5th instant. The harvesting of aman, or late rice, is finished; that of kalai and moong pulses is going on. Sugar-cane and turmeric nearly ripe. Fever on the decrease.

The winter rice crop is being reaped, and is expected to give a full outturn
Cooch Behar Divn. 17	Julpigoree, 9th Jan. 1875	·50	Rain has fallen in the district. Weather cold. Harvesting nearly completed. The rain has, to some slight extent, it is feared, affected tobacco, early surso (mustard) and kalai (pulse).

Patna Divn. 27	Gya, 9th „ „	0·14	In the beginning of the week the weather was cloudy, and rain fell on the 4th and 6th instant: on the last day it was attended with a slight fall of hail. The harvesting of the rice crop is nearly over. Such an abundant harvest has not been seen for many years. The cold-weather crop, which has been considerably benefited by this timely rain, looks very promising.
Patna Divn. 28	Shahabad, 9th „ „	0·50	Cloudy at the beginning of the week; slight rain fell on the morning of the 4th. A severe storm occurred that night, accompanied by heavy rain and hail; since then the weather has cleared and become much colder, and is all that could be desired. Prospects of crops very good. The rain which fell has done much good; the hail has injured in places the poppy and some of the cold-weather crops. Inquiries in regard to the extent of the damage so caused were at once ordered to be made. The rain has, however, done infinitely more good than the hail has occasioned harm.
Patna Divn. 29	Tirhoot, 9th „ „	1·04	Rain has fallen during the week. Weather cold. The rain that fell during the week has been beneficial to the cold-weather crops, which are everywhere promising. The state of the country and the people is quite satisfactory.

It is reported that this rain was accompanied by hail in thanas Mushruck, Pursa, and Bussuntpore in the Sudder Sub-division, and Sewan, Durowlee, Buragown, and Burowlee in Sewan Sub-division. The prospects of the cold-weather crops are generally favorable. The rain has on the whole done some good to them. The hail may have done some damage to wheat and barley in ears, peas in flowers, and poppy. Except in thana Mushruck, where hailstorm seems to have been very severe, serious injury is not apprehended. Indigo-fields being prepared for next year's crops. Prices of indian-corn have slightly risen owing to a falling off in the supply in the markets. General health good.
Patna Divn. 31	Chumparun, 8th „ „	·25	Mornings very foggy, days cloudy, and nights clear. Rain fell on the 4th instant. Recent rain will bring forward winter crops, and give sufficient moisture for spring crops.

Orissa Division. 36	Cuttack, 2nd Jan. 1875	Nil	Rather warm for the time of year. Winter crops coming on well. Late rice crop being reaped. Public health good.
Orissa Division. 37	Pooree, 7th „ „	Nil	A few drops of rain fell on the evening of Tuesday. The weather is now generally fine. The harvesting of the main rice (saruda) crop is proceeding rapidly with a fair outturn. Of the pulses, Brebo and arahur are indifferent, and moong and coolthe are growing with fair prospects, as well as mustard and castor seed, which are in flower. Sugarcane continues to be gathered with a good outturn. Dalooa rice is being sown and partly germinating. Prices are generally stationary in the district. Export of rice is being made to Colombo by purchasers in the city of Pooree, owing to which rice is not as cheap as usual in the harvest season.
Orissa Division. 38	Balasore, 8th Jan. 1875	·65	Weather occasionally cloudy, with one or two slight showers of rain. Harvesting of rice crop coming to a close. General prospects of crops good. A few cases of small-pox.

	South-West Frontier Agency.
39	Hazareebagh, 9th Jan. 1875.	0·82	A thunderstorm with some heavy rain and hailstones on the night of the 4th. Since then the air has been clear and the temperature much lower. Some benefit has been done to the cold-weather crops by the rain; but the poppy and arahur pulse have sustained some injury by hailstones.

The mean barometer as likewise the dry and wet bulb thermometer means are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants. The figures in column 10 represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity. The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

The 16th January 1875.—The following rules and form of agreement therein referred to have been sanctioned by the Government of Bombay, and, at the request of that Government, are now published for general information :—

Rules for the grant of credit to Traders for Excise duty and other Government charges payable on Salt to be removed from Salt Works or Depôts in the Bombay Presidency.

RULES.

1. Credit for excise duty and other Government charges payable on salt to be removed from salt works or depôts in the Bombay Presidency will be allowed under the following rules.

2. Persons desirous of availing themselves of the concession must execute agreements in the form appended to these rules, and must also blank endorse and deposit with the Collector of Salt Revenue Government Promissory Notes, Treasury Loan Acknowledgments, or Treasury Bills as security for the due performance of such agreements. Each agreement must be written on stamped paper of the value of eight annas.

3. The depositor will be entitled to receive salt to the amount of credit granted to him as shown in the Collector's receipt for his deposit. The credit will be fixed according to the market value of the securities, a deduction at the discretion of the Collector being made therefrom to meet the contingency of depreciation in the value of the securities during the currency of the credit.

4. No account will be opened for a less sum than Rs. 10,000, nor shall the credit extend beyond 30 days; except in the case of salt exported to Calcutta, in which case 60 days' credit will be allowed. At the close of the prescribed period, the depositor must adjust his account, and it will be then open to him to apply for a new credit.

5. The securities will be lodged in the Bank of Bombay. The interest accruing on them during the time they remain deposited with the Collector will be drawn by the Collector of Salt Revenue, and passed to the credit of the depositor's account current kept by the Collector as hereinafter provided.

6. The Collector will grant a receipt for the securities deposited with him, and this receipt must be produced and given up when the depositor redeems his securities or closes his account. The amount of credit given will also be shown in the receipt.

7. An account current between the depositor and Government will be kept by the Collector of Salt Revenue at his Office in Bombay, and will be open to the inspection of the depositor or his duly authorized agent on week days during office hours.

8. It will be optional with a depositor to close his account at any time previous to the expiration of the term of credit by paying the amount shown to be due by him, and thereupon to receive back his securities.

9. The depositor must apply in writing to the Collector of Salt Revenue for salt, stating the quantity he requires, and the salt work or depôt from which he proposes to remove it. The Collector, if he agrees to comply with the requisition, will furnish him with a written order on the proper officer, and enter the amount of excise duty and Government charges leviable and payable on such salt to the depositor's debit in the account current.

10. The depositor, or his duly authorized agent, must pass his receipt for the quantity of salt removed by him from the salt work or depôt, and, on the order being fully complied with, shall sign and hand the receipt to the proper officer for transmission to the Collector.

11. At the expiration of the term of credit, the depositor must pay the balance then due from him on his account current for all the salt removed by him on credit. Should he fail to do so, he must pay interest on such balance from the date on which the credit commenced to run, at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, and the Collector may proceed to realize the amount due for principal and interest by the sale of the depositor's securities. Any surplus accruing on such sales will be paid to the depositor. Any loss which may be sustained in the event of the depositor's securities not realizing the sum due by him for principal and interest, shall be forthwith paid by the depositor

12. Payments are to be made for the present at the office of the Collector of Salt Revenue in Bombay. If any depositor should prefer to make payments into a Government Treasury in the Mofussil, special application may be made to the Collector of Salt Revenue.

It is hereby notified that from this date the Viceroy and Governor-General of India in Council temporarily assumes the administration of the Baroda State, and delegates all the powers necessary for the conduct of the administration to the Agent to the Governor-General and Special Commissioner at Baroda.  The Rig-Veda, the oldest book of Indian literature, has very properly been made one of the principal class-books for those who study Sanskrit in the schools and colleges in India, and though at present a scholar-like knowlege of the Vedic hymns is in the examinations required of the more advanced students only, yet, as soon as editions, translations, grammars, and dictionaries shall have rendered the study of these ancient documents more accessible, I doubt not that the time will come when no one in India will call himself a Sanskrit scholar who cannot construe the hymns of the ancient Rishis of his country.—Extract from Preface.

REPORT OF THE SANITARY COMMISSIONER FOR BENGAL, FOR THE YEAR 1873.

RESOLUTION.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT—STATISTICS

Calcutta, the 22nd December 1874

READ—

Report of the Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal, for the year 1873, by Surgeon-Major Charles Julian Jackson, M.D.

Part II—The report on the epidemic fever in Burdwan and Beerbhoom, by the same officer

Part III—The report on the Birth and Mortuary Statistics of the Selected areas, Bengal, for the year 1873, by the same officer

The circular order of the Government of India, in the Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce, No. 9—373 of 29th August 1872, forwarded to all Sanitary Commissioners for their information and guidance, directed it to be distinctly understood that His Excellency the Governor-General in Council attached great importance to the punctual submission of all sanitary reports by the 1st of June at latest, and intimated that in future years His Excellency "would be compelled to notice, in the most serious manner, the neglect of any Sanitary Commissioner to comply with this distinct and explicit order." In spite of these directions, and of the repeated efforts of this Government to stimulate the submission of these returns, this is now the third year in succession in which the Annual Report has been withheld, until its proper place in the history of the administration, and its public interest, are alike lost. The report for 1871 was not furnished to this Government until March 1873, nor that of 1872 until May 1874, thirteen months after the date fixed by the Sanitary Commissioner himself for its submission; while the report under notice, for 1873, reaches the Lieutenant-Governor only in the middle of November 1874. Dr. Jackson is no longer Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal, and Sir Richard Temple trusts that the present Sanitary Commissioner, in compliance with the orders of the Government of India, will be careful to submit the report of the current year not later than the 15th April next, that proper time may be allowed for its review by the local Government, before sending it on to the Government of India.

2. The report under notice is swollen by Dr. Jackson's incorporating therein the history of his enquiries in Burdwan, in 1871 and 1872, into the causes of the epidemic fever that has lamentably prevailed there for some years past. As the history of his tour deals, in the main, with phenomena three years old, the Lieutenant-Governor directs that this part of the report be simply recorded with the other papers on the same subject, to be reviewed separately when the independent observations that have been made as to the origin, development, and decline of the epidemic have been properly summarised and digested. The Sanitary Commissioner will be good enough to suggest the disposition which should be made of these records, with a view to obtaining therefrom such results as their study may disclose.

3. Attempts have been made to collect statistics of births and deaths from the whole area of Bengal for some years past. Exceptional difficulties beset the task in these provinces, and the returns have been incomplete and untrustworthy. Thus the total number of deaths in 1871, in a population of 66 millions, was declared to be 260,331, or a ratio of four in a thousand, and the reports of previous years were even more unsatisfactory than this. In 1872, the gross mortality was returned at 372,118, or a ratio of 5·86 per thousand. For the year under report the figures are 492,740, or a ratio of 7·75 per thousand; but these figures include the returns from the selected areas.

4. In former years these general statements have dealt with districts only, but for the year 1873 they exhibit separately, under the orders of the Government of India, the statistics of 66 towns, apart from those of the districts in which they are situated. It was not possible, it seems, to show separately the statistics of every town in Bengal, the returns not affording the necessary data; but arrangements have been made to secure this information from the commencement of the current year 1874.

5. The Report on the collection of vital statistics in the selected areas, which constitutes Part III of the volume under notice, contains, the Lieutenant-Governor fears, all that is really trustworthy and valuable in this mass of statistics. But though it may be extremely difficult for Government to obtain correct returns of this nature if taken over the whole country simultaneously, still we ought to be able to secure the correct registration of the births and deaths occurring within the radius of a mile or two from some selected town or rural centre in any district; and we have only to make these selected areas representative, to obtain in the returns therefrom as close an approximation as is necessary to the birth and death-rate of the entire district.

6. Thus two sets of vital statistics were collected during 1873—

(1)—The ordinary general mortuary data, to which the above remarks refer, collected by the same agency as heretofore; and

(2)—The selected area statistics, collected by a special agency, in small urban and rural tracts chosen for the purpose, in which the population has been carefully ascertained beforehand.

7. Towards the close of the year 1873, this special registration was being made in 100 selected areas in all. Of these the 48 town areas had an average population of 21,461 persons each, and the 48 rural ones an average of 26,305; but the number of the areas has considerably increased since the commencement of the present year. As the work is but commencing, it is too early to deduce any conclusion but one from the figures for 1873: namely, that instead of the rate of 4 or 5 per thousand shown in the general mortuary returns of the province, the true rate of mortality amongst the people is very high, as the following table, of what may be approximately correct ratios obtained from some of the selected areas, indicates :—

8. The statistics of birth were too imperfectly registered, even in the selected areas, to make any review of them possible. At present, we really know little of the true rate of increase, or of death amongst the people; but His Honor is inclined to think that if the statistical enquiries of the Commissioner were confined to an effort to obtain what is within our reach—the birth-rate and death-rate of the people in small representative areas, selected for the purpose in every district—we might reasonably hope in a year or two to obtain reliable data therefrom, when approximate ratios of the annual mortality and births throughout the province might be deduced therefrom. The Commissioner would then be at liberty to devote his time and professional skill to the study of the sanitary conditions under which the people live, and to the phenomena of health or disease prevailing amongst them; and his annual report would consist of a history of the special phenomena that had marked the health of the people during the year, with half a dozen abstract tables of the approximate mortality and birth-rate amongst them, calculated upon the data obtained from the selected areas.

9. His Honor would direct special attention to section II of Dr. Jackson's report, in which the mortuary statistics from cholera, small-pox, and fever during the year are dealt with by that officer. The section consists of more than a hundred folio pages of unconnected district reports concerning the prevalence of these diseases, illustrated in every case by figured statements. It would be better to have a simple and concise statement, year by year, of the extent to which these diseases have prevailed in Bengal, tracing the circumstances under which any tendency therein to become epidemic may have disclosed itself, the course of its progress, the steps that were taken to arrest it, and the history of its decline and disappearance. The Government requires that these reports should be instructive, and the Sanitary Commissioner is expected to reduce the materials which reach his hand to a form so simple that he who runs may read what they teach.

10. Section III, which deals with the food-supply of the provinces, abounds in the same way with tabulated statements of prices. In the present case, the Commissioner himself says, page 123, that "no direct connection between the food-supply, either as to quantity or quality, and any special prevalence of disease, has been reported."

11. Section IV again, which deals with the revenues derived from local taxation, and the extent to which they are devoted by the municipalities to sanitary uses, should not have appeared in the body of the report, but might have been an appendix thereto, the Commissioner noticing any special fact or facts therein that he deemed it desirable to bring prominently into notice.

12. Section V, on the meteorology of the year, is again far too elaborate for the subordinate place which matters not strictly sanitary should occupy in these reports.

13. His Honor fears that we are in danger of converting these appointments into mere offices for registering the vital statistics of the country. When these appointments were originally under consideration, "the supervision of the public health" and "more effective sanitary administration" appear to have been mainly contemplated; and it was declared to be the object of the Government to select for these appointments officers in "the prime of life," from whose "activity and energy" we might hope for a more effective introduction of the principles of sanitary science generally in India (Pro. Government of India, 12th December 1867). "The desired object" (Pro. 12th December 1869) contemplated throughout, was "the improved health of the people."

14. In Mr. Secretary Bayley's letter No. 9—681 of 12th February 1868, the views of the Governor-General in Council were set forth at length of "the duties which should be assigned to these officers, and the general principles on which our sanitary arrangements should be conducted;" permission being accorded to the local Governments to "issue such special and detailed instructions" as to their working as might seem to them necessary or desirable The office was created for the closer observation of the phenomena of disease amongst the people, "especially the outbreak of epidemic disease," and for the suggestion of "measures for the benefit of the public health" (paragraphs 3 to 12 and 14 to 18).

15. The Resolution of 10th September 1868, again, which determined "the duties to be discharged by the new Sanitary Commissioner," required, in its first sentence, that it "be remembered that these appointments were created solely for the purpose of improving the sanitary condition of the people;" and the local Governments are required to note, that "they should not be called on to undertake any work not intimately associated with the special objects for which they were appointed." It is difficult to affirm that there is any such association between the manipulation of these masses of figures and "the sanitary condition of the people." It had been suggested in Mr. Bayley's letter already quoted (paragraph 17), that the Commissioners should submit a careful digest of their proceedings every quarter to the local Government under which they served; but it was now ruled that as "the labor of preparing these reports would be considerable," and it was "doubtful whether they would serve any useful purpose," they were not to be exacted; and the Resolution goes on to say (paragraph 5) that even "the annual report should be as concise and short as possible." The size of the report now under review shows that there is some departure in the working of the department from the spirit in which its duties were originally prescribed; and there is reason to fear that the Sanitary Commissioner has too much of his time devoted to this purely subordinate work of registration. The Resolution says indeed, paragraph 23, that "accurate statistics of mortality and disease form the basis of sanitary science and are the only index of its progress;" and the attainment of that object must be our constant aim. The practical question now is, whether it will not be better to compass this object by statistics from small and manageable areas, and to make sure of the accuracy of this limited result, before attempting to obtain more extended ones.

16. The Lieutenant-Governor much regrets the illness which Dr. Jackson appears to have contracted during his tour in the Beerbhoom and Burdwan districts; and though unable to accept it as a sufficient excuse for the delay which has occurred in submitting this report, is willing to do justice to his efforts to organise the new office he was directed to establish.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

R. KNIGHT,

Asst. Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet, are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page, by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperatures given in column 17. For stations above 500 feet elevation the reduction is made by Dippe's tables, as given in Guyot's "Meteorological and Physical Tables." The temperatures at the sea-level are taken from column 3 of the above table.

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 17 on the preceding page by adding 1° Fahr. for every 450 feet.

Wind Resultant.—The resultant wind direction and its comparative predominance are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month. The relative predominance in the direction of the resultant is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The direction is computed in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

Serenity.—This column gives the average proportion of unclouded sky; a cloudless sky being indicated by 10, and one completely overcast by 0.

The above, being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month, which shall show the isobaric and isothermal lines and the resultant wind directions, which last may be represented by arrows of varying length, proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.

The mean barometer as likewise the dry and wet bulb thermometer means are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants. The figures in column 10 represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity. The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

NOTICE.

GENTLEMEN wishing to see the Lieutenant-Governor on business are requested to write to the Private Secretary at Belvedere, stating the object for which an interview is desired.

BELVEDERE,
The 7th December 1874.

C. E. BUCKLAND,
Private Secretary.

ORDERS BY THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF BENGAL.

REVENUE AND GENERAL DEPARTMENTS.

NOTIFICATION.—The 25th January 1875.—The services of Mr. C. E. Bernard having been replaced at the disposal of the Government of India, the Lieutenant-Governor desires to record his appreciation of the ability, unwearying energy, and fidelity that have been displayed by Mr. Bernard throughout the four years during which he has held the office of a Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Under the late Lieutenant-Governor, Mr. Bernard bore the brunt of the work of the administration at a period when that work was extraordinarily onerous. His efficiency and self-devotion in connexion with famine relief have been recently acknowledged. His varied experience, knowledge of the country, and fertility of resource, have been of the utmost value in every branch of the administration, and deserve cordial recognition. He now leaves Bengal with the regrets of the Government, and, the Lieutenant-Governor is sure, with the good wishes of all classes of the service and of the public.

REGISTRATION OF MAHOMEDAN MARRIAGES AND DIVORCES.

THE HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said that the passing of the Bill to provide for the voluntary registration of Mahomedan marriages and divorces was postponed at the last meeting of the Council at his request, in order to enable the mover and the Secretary, as was usual, to go carefully over the provisions as finally amended. That had now been done, and the result was a rather long list of amendments. But hon'ble members would observe that, with one exception, they were purely verbal amendments. He had now to move that the Bill be further considered, in order to the settlement of its clauses.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER moved that for section one the following be substituted:—

"In this Act—unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

"'Kazi' means any person who is duly authorized under this Act to register marriages and divorces.

"'Inspector-General of Registration' and 'Registrar' respectively mean the officers so designated and appointed under the Indian Registration Act, 1871, or other law for the time being in force for the registration of documents

"'District' means a district formed under the provisions of the Indian Registration Act, 1871."

These were merely explanatory clauses.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER then moved a verbal amendment which was not in the notice paper, that in section four, line 1, for "Local Government," the words "Lieutenant-Governor" be substituted.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER also moved that in the same section, line 1, for "provide," the word "supply" be substituted. The word "provide" rather implied that the thing in question be provided at the expense of the Government, which was not to be done. The seals and registers to be used by the Kazis were to be supplied by the Government, and paid for by the Kazis out of the fees which they got.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER moved the following amendments in section fourteen, the object being to make the nomenclature uniform:—

In section fourteen, in the fifth line, after the word "Registrar" to insert the words "of the District." In the seventh line for "District Registrar" to substitute "Registrar of the District." In the twelfth line, after "Registrar" to insert "of the District." In the sixteenth line, for "District Registrar" to substitute "Registrar of the District."

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER moved—

In section fifteen, line one, for "Every District Registrar and Kazi shall" to substitute "Every Registrar of a District and every Kazi shall for the purposes of this Act."

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER moved that in the same section, line 7, the words "other than the first copy referred to in section eleven of this Act" be inserted after the word "Register."

He said that section fifteen empowered the Kazi to levy certain fees for granting copies. But in section eleven it had been provided that a copy of the entry in the register was to be given immediately after the registration, and that this first copy should be given without the payment of any fee. The amendment merely referred to that section, so that there might be no chance of misapprehension in the construction of the Act.

The motion was agreed to.

Verbal amendments were, on the motion of the HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER, made in sections sixteen and seventeen.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER moved that in section nineteen, line 1, for "document" be substituted the words "marriage or divorce." This error, he said, had crept into the Bill from the circumstance of this section having been taken from the Registration of Assurances Act. The word was out of place in this Bill, which only applied to the registration of marriages and divorces.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER moved that the following words be inserted in section twenty-three, after the fifth clause:—

"for regulating the application of the fees levied by Registrars of Districts and Kazis under this Act and."

The object of this amendment was to meet cases which might render necessary executive orders of the Government for regulating the application of the fees raised under the Act.

The motion was agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier said the next motion in his name was to move that the Bill be passed; but as His Honor the President wished that the passing of this Bill be deferred to the next meeting of the Council, he would not at present make that motion.

His Honor the President asked the Hon'ble Nawab Syad Ashgar Ali to favor the Council with his opinion on the general merits and policy of the Bill.

The Hon'ble Nawab Syad Ashgar Ali would say a few words in compliance with the request of His Honor the President. Being the only member of the Mahomedan community in this Council, he had thought it his duty carefully to consider the Bill and to peruse all the papers connected with it. He had also consulted his friends, both of the Sunni and Shiah sect. and he found that they were agreed that a Bill of this kind should be passed, in order to prevent the frauds which had hitherto been practised. He thought that the Mahomedan community in general would be gratified by the passing of this Bill.

His Honor the President then observed that perhaps the Council would allow the motion for the passing of the Bill to be deferred for a week, with the view that the Bill might be taken into consideration once more before it was passed.

The motion that the Bill as amended be passed was then postponed.

REGISTRATION OF JUTE WAREHOUSES.

The Hon'ble Mr. Hogg said, the Bill which he proposed to move be read in Council had for its object the amendment of the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, especially with a view to modify the restrictive clauses of the Act, which the owners of jute warehouses had brought to the notice of the Council were unnecessary and unduly prejudiced the jute trade; and their representation was supported by the Chamber of Commerce. From the papers circulated to the Council, it would be seen that the owners took exception to the clauses in Section 7 of Act II of 1872, especially in regard to the clause which provided that loose jute should not be dried except within buildings the walls of which should be of burnt bricks, or of stone, or of iron, and so on. They also pointed out that it was unnecessary that the roofs of jute warehouses should be constructed of iron or masonry, as provided in the Act. Another objection which they took, though not a very strong one, was with regard to the fees, which they maintained were unnecessarily high. It was pointed out by him, when he asked leave to introduce this Bill, that although the concession as regards the drying of jute might well be conceded in the suburbs of the town, it would be objectionable, as regards the town of Calcutta, to remove the restrictions which already existed. To introduce a definite clause in the proposed Bill, which provided for the requirements both of the suburbs and the more crowded thoroughfares in the town, would be difficult. He had therefore in the draft Bill prepared a section to the effect that this matter should be left to the discretion of the Government of Bengal. If the Council would look at Section 7 of Act II of 1872, they would find that it included all the prohibitory clauses connected with the granting of licenses for jute warehouses. There would be found all the conditions under which licenses were to be granted; and the 7th clause of that section provided that the Justices might make such other special conditions as the circumstances of each locality seemed to them to require. In the Bill which he had prepared, it was proposed that the whole of Section 7 of Act II of 1872 should be repealed, thereby removing from the Act all definite prohibitory clauses; and that power be given to the Government of Bengal from time to time to issue such rules for the granting of licenses to the owners of jute warehouses as might be deemed necessary, having regard to the special locality for which such licenses were applied. If that principle were accepted by the Council, no doubt the Government of Bengal would issue separate rules for the suburbs of the town, where the occurrence of fires need not be much apprehended; and separate rules for the town of Calcutta, where the Government would probably consider that greater care and caution in the granting of licenses were absolutely necessary. If that principle were accepted, it would remove the objection of the proprietors of jute warehouses in regard to the restrictions to be placed on the licensing of jute warehouses in Howrah and the suburbs. No doubt the Government would remove the condition which prohibited the roofs of jute warehouses being made of any other material than iron or masonry.

When he moved for permission to introduce this Bill, he also pointed out that, according to the Act as it stood, it was not clear what person was liable to punishment—whether the owner, the occupier, or the person actually infringing the conditions of the license. Mr. Hogg had therefore introduced in the Bill a clause imposing the primary liability on the occupier, and had provided that in addition to the name of the owner of a jute warehouse, the name of the occupier should be invariably entered in the license; and by section eight of the Bill, the actual infringer of any rule was also rendered liable to penalty.

Since the Bill had been drafted, there had been a further representation received from the Chairman of the Suburban Municipality on behalf of that body. They desired that the arrangements for the suburbs, as regards the licensing of jute warehouses and the establishment and maintenance of a fire-brigade, should be altogether distinct from that of the town of Calcutta. They argued that during the last few years there had been but few fires in the town and suburbs; that therefore the annual expenditure now incurred seemed unnecessarily high; and then they went on to ask for permission to have a separate fire-brigade for the suburbs. He thought the Council would agree with him that, considering the position of the suburbs as regards Calcutta, it would hardly be wise to have a separate fire-brigade for the suburbs. The Suburban Commissioners also urged that they be allowed to expend the whole of the surplus proceeds derived from the licensing of jute warehouses on the general municipal improvement of the suburbs, and that the fund should not be under the control of the Justices of Calcutta. This suggestion was in a measure met by the Bill before the Council, in which there was a section which provided that the surplus fund should be applied for such purposes as the Justices with the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor might direct. If the principle of that section was accepted by the Council, it would be within the power of the Lieutenant-Governor to distribute the surplus arising from fees on account of jute warehouse licenses in such proportions as he might think best between the town and suburbs.

The Suburban Municipal Commissioners also pointed out that Honorary Magistrates were at present in the habit of inflicting very small fines on persons who infringed the law, and it was therefore necessary to impose a minimum fine, and to make it compulsory that the minimum fine should be imposed in cases of repeated convictions. How far such an amendment of the law was desirable, would no doubt be carefully considered in Committee.

With these few remarks, he begged to move that the Bill to amend the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872, be read in Council.

The Hon'ble Baboo Kristodas Pal said this was one of those little amending Bills the principles of which did not need much discussion. There were, however, one or two points involved in it with regard to which he wished to offer a few remarks. The hon'ble mover of the Bill had stated that it was inconvenient to embody in the law the conditions which were imposed in regard to the grant of licenses for jute warehouses, and that the power to do so should be delegated to the Lieutenant-Governor. For his own part, he thought the Council would not be acting fairly by throwing the task of legislation upon the head of the executive Government and thus shifting its own responsibility He believed that the Lieutenant-Governor would not refuse to undertake any duty which this Council in its wisdom might assign to him. But Baboo Kristoda Pal was not sure whether any one in His Honor's position would possess that detailed acquaintance with the minute requirements of the town which would enable him to discharge the duty to his satisfaction. He would necessarily be dependent on the town and suburban corporations for information and advice; and the Council, by adopting the principle recommended by the hon'ble mover of this Bill, would be practically making over the business of legislation to the several corporations affected by the Bill. This Baboo Kristodas Pal held would not be fair to the head of the executive Government, nor to the Council, nor to the public at large. It was meet that we should share with His Honor the responsibility of framing the rules and regulations. Besides, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL submitted that when a legislature was called upon to prescribe penalties for certain offences, it ought to know what were the acts which would constitute offences under the law. We had no opportunity of judging as to whether the penalties provided would be sufficient or not for the offences contemplated by the Bill, but to be defined hereafter by executive authority. Such a proposal appeared to him anomalous and unsound in principle. He admitted that the conditions prescribed in the present Act were stringent, and had worked in some cases oppressively. It was the function of the Council to remedy those defects, and not to shirk its own responsibility. The subject had attracted the attention of some of the proprietors of jute warehouses and the Chamber of Commerce, and he admitted that the representations of those gentlemen were grounded on facts and therefore entitled to consideration. If the Council referred to the opening speech of His Honor the President, when the Council was summoned this year, and to the address of the hon'ble mover, when he applied for leave to introduce the measure, they would find that the original proposal was to modify those conditions of the law which were complained of in the representations which had been received, and not to exclude altogether from the Act all the conditions which were imposed on the grant of licenses for jute warehouses, and leave them to the discretion of the executive Government. There might be differences of opinion in regard to some of the conditions, but he thought those differences might be reconciled in this Council without much difficulty. It might be advisable—in fact desirable—to give power to the town corporation, or to the Lieutenant-Governor, to make subsidiary rules or bye-laws consistently with the substantive law, just as was now done under the Municipal Acts. In fact such a provision was contained in the present Act. Clause 7 of Section 7 of Act II of 1872 provided for the imposition, in addition to the conditions specified in the law, of such other special conditions as the Justices might, on consideration of the special circumstances of each jute warehouse, deem necessary to prevent risk to life and property in the neighbourhood. That discretion might well be left to the town and suburban corporations and the executive Government, and would meet the case of the town and the suburbs alike; but the substantive law, he submitted, ought to be laid down in the Bill, with a discretion to the executive authorities to make bye-laws consistently with the substantive law.

The next point to which he wished to draw attention was as to the scale of fees prescribed for the granting of licenses. It would appear from the papers circulated to the members along with the Bill, that the Suburban Municipal Commissioners recommended the lowering of the rates for suburban licenses. Mr. Peacock, Magistrate and Chairman of the Suburban Municipality, proposed that the scale should go down so low as Rs. 150 And with regard to this part of the law, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL might read to the Council an extract from the report of the Justices of the Peace for Calcutta for the year 1872, which was to the following effect:—

"The minimum fee for a license is Rs. 250, which was prohibitory in the case of several small houses. This point should be remembered whenever any amendment of the Municipal Acts is in contemplation."

He might observe that the present rate of fees, as far as he was aware, had been laid down as a tentative measure only. Neither this Council nor the town corporation were then in a position to estimate exactly the proceeds of the new licenses. On the other hand, a heavy charge had been imposed on the two municipalities for the maintenance of a fire-brigade. It was therefore necessary that such a scale of fees should be prescribed as would cover the possible charges. The working of the Act for the last two years had shown that there was great room for reduction in the scale of fees. He believed the surplus in the hands of the Justices now amounted to about Rs. 60,000. It was a question for the Council to consider whether a particular branch of trade should be made to contribute to the general municipal funds of the town. He admitted that jute was a thriving branch of our national industry, and that the small tax which had been laid upon it in the shape of license fees did not materially check its progress or expansion; but the Council ought to consider this tax upon jute from another point of view. There were, as the Council was aware, two classes of licensees: firstly, those who themselves occupied the warehouses; and secondly, those who let their licensed godowns; and the present scale of fees pressed severely upon the last-mentioned class; and this hardship, so far as proprietors of small houses were concerned, was admitted by the Justices in the report already quoted BABOO KRISTODAS PAL could state from his own knowledge that the tendency of municipal taxation in the town was to depreciate the value of house property; and it might be fairly questioned whether the legislature would be acting wisely by aggravating that tendency. It was therefore worthy of consideration whether the scale of fees for the licensing of jute warehouses should not be revised.

The hon'ble mover of the Bill had pointed out the necessity of fixing the responsibility of carrying out the provisions of the law upon the occupier. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL must say that he considered this provision a very great improvement on the existing law. The present law was not quite clear upon the subject, and practically the owner of the house, who was the owner of the license, had hitherto been held liable. As already observed, there were two classes of licensees. Now, it was very hard that the owner of the house, who took out a license, but had no connection with the business, should be made responsible for a breach of any of the conditions upon which a license was granted when he could not in any way control the action of the occupier. The amendment of the law on this point was much needed, and would remove a great complaint which had been made on all sides. But he did not agree with the hon'ble mover that a high fee should be levied on the registration of the occupier's name; he did not see why it should be made a source of revenue. We ought to encourage and facilitate the registration of the names of occupiers, and in that view BABOO KRISTODAS PAL would recommend a nominal fee of one rupee, and not twenty rupees, as proposed in the Bill.

Next came the question of what he might call the decentralization of the fire-brigade fund. That point was raised in the letter from Mr. Peacock, the Chairman of the Suburban Municipal Commissioners It appeared that the control which the Justices at present exercised over the fire-brigade fund was a source of irritation to the Suburban Commissioners. They seemed to think that they were, as it were, sacrificed to the interests of the town. He must confess, as he thought, that they were greatly mistaken in that view. According to Mr. Peacock's own letter, it would be seen that the number of fires was very much greater in the suburbs than in the town. In fact, if the Council looked into the statistics of fires in the town, he believed it would admit that there was very little cause for the alarm which in 1872 led to the enactment of the present law. He found from an official paper, which he held in his hand, the following statement of fires in Calcutta from 1865 to 1871 :—

	Number of fires	Pucca houses	Tiled houses	REMARKS.
1865 ..	12	9	4	Three jute-godowns.
1866 .	7	3	4	Two ditto
1867 ...	... 10	6	6	None.
1868 ...	6	5	1	One jute screw house and one jute godown.
1869 ...	... 9	5	4	Two jute-godowns.
1870 .. .	... 8	3	5	None
1871 ..	12	6	4	(River two) four jute screw-houses

Since the Jute Warehouse Act had come into operation, he found that there were four fires in the town and 29 in the suburbs. So after all it might not unreasonably be said that the fire-brigade was maintained chiefly for the benefit of the suburbs, and that the town was unjustly taxed for the advantage of its neighbour.

If anybody would gain by the decentralization of the fire-brigade fund, it would be the town of Calcutta; and he did not see any reason why that principle should not be carried out. Formerly, as the hon'ble mover of the Bill could bear him out, the Justices worked the town fire-brigade at an annual expense of Rs. 6,000. Now the fire-brigade costs somewhere about Rs. 20,000 annually. [The HON'BLE MR. HOGG: Rs. 25,000.] He, however, agreed with the Suburban Municipal Commissioners that the town and the suburbs should be independent of each other in the management of the fire-brigade. The Justices might have their own establishment, and the Suburban Commissioners their own; and whatever surplus might accrue from their respective funds, they should be at liberty to apply to their own purposes. There would be then no just cause of complaint or heart-burning in the matter.

As regards the imposition of a minimum fine, as suggested by the Suburban Commissioners, he hoped the Council would not do anything of the kind. In Calcutta the working of the Jute Warehouse Act, as far as he was aware, and he believed the hon'ble mover would bear him out in this statement. had been fair and equitable, and he thought there did not exist any necessity whatever for fettering the discretion of the Magistrates in the way proposed; and if the Act had worked successfully in the town, he did not see why it should not work with equal success in the suburbs. To take away discretion from the Magistrates in the adjudgment of fines according to the merits and circumstances of each case, would be to tell them to leave their consciences behind when sitting on the Bench. This interference with judicial discretion was opposed to the principles of the substantive criminal law of the country, for the Penal Code prescribed only maximum, and not minimum, penalties; and he hoped that the Council would not sanction an infraction of the general law of the land.

The Hon'ble Baboo Doorga Churn Law said, he agreed with the hon'ble member who had last spoken that the substantive law as to the conditions on which licenses should be granted for the establishment of jute warehouses should be laid down in the Bill, and that power might be granted to the executive Government to frame rules or bye-laws in accordance with such law. He thought the present opportunity should be taken to revise the scale of license fees. The present scale was undoubtedly high, and he thought the minimum ought to be reduced to Rs. 100 or Rs. 150, and the intervening rates should also be reduced.

Then, with regard to changes of occupation, the provision, as worded in the Bill, met only the case in which a person took an entire house; but there were cases in which a warehouse was let to several parties in several parts or portions, the license being granted to the owner or landlord. For such cases provision ought to be made for the registration of such occupiers on the application of the owner or landlord. It was proposed to charge a registration fee of twenty rupees on occupiers. He could not see any occasion for imposing such a fee. The proceeds of license fees ought to be quite ample for all purposes; and to charge another fee on the occupier, would be only to increase the burden already existing.

The Hon'ble Baboo Juggadanund Mookerjee said, with His Honor the President's permission he begged to make a few observations, especially with reference to the fifth section of the Bill, which was one of the subjects now under consideration. It appeared that under the present law a tax was levied on the grant of licenses to the owners of jute warehouses in the town and suburbs, and the proceeds were to be applied for the purpose of maintaining a fire-brigade, which would remain under the sole control of the Justices of the Peace for Calcutta. Well, he saw, from the returns submitted both by the Justices and the Suburban Commissioners, the following results for the suburbs—

From 1st August 1872 to 31st July 1873—

The Act did not provide anywhere as to how the application of the surplus had to be used, but there was no power to the Suburban Commissioners to make use of any portion of the money except in the way mentioned, namely to pay the necessary establishments and the like, and remit all the surplus to the Justices of Calcutta. The Council would see the amount of saving made in this year. Mr. Peacock in his letter said :—

"That the funds are liable to be appropriated towards purposes for which they were never intended, is shown by the action of the Justices in allotting money from that fund for extra police to keep the roads within the town of Calcutta clear from overcrowding, and that the suburbs do not receive anything in return commensurate with the sum paid by them."

From that it was quite clear that the Municipal Commissioners of the suburbs were taxed for purposes for which they in no way benefited. The whole of the money went to the Justices for Calcutta, who were at liberty to apply it as they thought best, and it appeared that they employed it to pay for extra police to keep the roads within the town clear. And for this reason and other reasons stated in the letter of their Chairman, the Commissioners of the suburbs proposed that a separate fire-brigade should be maintained by them. That, BABOO JUGGADANUND MOOKERJEE thought, stood to reason, because from the report of the Chairman of the Justices and what had fallen from the hon'ble member opposite (Baboo Kristodas Pal), it appeared that the greater portion of the fires took place in the suburbs. If that was so, the use of the fire-brigade was chiefly limited to the suburbs, and the people within the town derived little or no advantage out of the brigade that they maintained. It therefore stood to reason that the Suburban Commissioners should have the control of their own fire-brigade, and it was also fair that the town of Calcutta should not be burthened with the expense of a fire-brigade which was used chiefly for the benefit of their neighbours Therefore the Chairman of the Suburban Municipality proposed that they should be empowered to maintain a fire-brigade of their own, and it seemed that they had sufficient funds for the purpose. At the time the Act of 1872 was passed, the Legislature never anticipated that there would be a surplus fund: they even seemed to expect that the sums realized from the grant of licenses would not be sufficient to maintain the expense of a fire-brigade. Now it appeared that a large proportion of the sums realized would from time to time be saved, and there was at the present time a large sum of money in the hands of the Justices. It was therefore proposed by the Suburban Commissioners that they should maintain a fire-brigade of their own; and if that proposition was not agreeable to the Council, they suggested that they should be permitted to remit to the Justices of Calcutta only such amount as was necessary to maintain the fire-brigade under the control of the Justices, and that the Commissioners be allowed to retain in their hands the surplus proceeds for the proper keeping of the suburban roads, the traffic on which had recently very much increased by carts laden with jute constantly passing through them, and the damage done to them had therefore proportionately increased. It appeared that there was a surplus annually accruing of from Rs. 16,000 to Rs. 20,000, and the whole of that sum went to the Justices of Calcutta. If the first of these propositions was not agreeable to the Council, BABOO JUGGADANUND MOOKERJEE thought that the second proposal, namely that the Suburban Commissioners should have the benefit of their own surplus proceeds, should at least be conceded.

With these observations he would ask the Council to take this matter into their consideration, and he had no doubt that the Select Committee to whom the Bill might be referred would deal with the representation of the Suburban Municipality in a just and equitable manner.

The HON'BLE MR. ELDRIDGE said he should not have ventured to encroach upon the time of the Council but for his almost immediate departure from India. He had no doubt that many of the points which had been discussed, and the suggestions which had been made, would be duly considered in the Select Committee; but having no other opportunity of addressing the Council upon this subject, he desired to express his satisfaction at the manner in which the hon'ble mover had conceded, in the Bill before the Council, the requests made by a large and responsible body of merchants, who were largely interested in the question, and had a great amount of money at stake in connection with the jute industry. He regretted that he could not agree in the remarks of the hon'ble members who proposed that a substantive law should regulate entirely the working of these jute licenses. It seemed almost impossible that hard-and-fast rules could be made which would apply equally to a large place like Calcutta, in which many of these jute warehouses and jute screwhouses existed, and to a place like the suburbs, where the warehouses were more scattered. Many proprietors of jute warehouses had gone to some distance from the city, probably with the view of being to a certain extent in an isolated position, where the very strict rules made for the more crowded localities would not be enforced as regards them. There were many jute warehouses in the vicinity of the town which were surrounded by huts and villages which would be endangered by the application to them of the same lax rules which would with safety apply to the more distant localities. And it seemed to him that the proposal to leave a discretion in the matter to the Lieutenant-Governor was only reasonable and just. When the law was put into force, in 1872, MR. ELDRIDGE was not in India, but he noticed that the hon'ble mover, in speaking on this subject (January 2nd) on the occasion of the introduction of this Bill, referred to the fact that, in consequence of certain disastrous fires having occurred, a great deal of alarm had spread through the town with regard to the dangers to be apprehended from a recurrence of such conflagrations, and that the Chamber of Commerce, the Trades Association, and other representative bodies, cordially co-operated in the passing of such a law as was then deemed to be necessary. But now, after the experience of two-and-a-half years, many of the rules which were passed in a time of semipanic were found to be obstructive and unnecessary; and it was believed that, with the practical experience gained within that time, it might be left to the discretion of the Lieutenant-Governor to grant certain facilities in certain localities which could not be granted to others. As far as the erection of buildings with iron beams was concerned, it appeared to him doubtful whether that was a necessary measure at all. In a building (the Riverside Press) erected, he believed, since the passing of Act II of 1872, by the Port Commissioners, many of the members of which body were Justices of the Peace for

As far as the erection of buildings with iron beams was concerned, it appeared to him doubtful whether that was a necessary measure at all. In a building (the Riverside Press) erected, he believed, since the passing of Act II of 1872, by the Port Commissioners, many of the members of which body were Justices of the Peace for Calcutta as well, he thought he had seen teak beams even in the engine-rooms, and the talented and efficient Engineer to the Port Trust told him that he was not quite clear that teak beams were not better for the purpose than iron beams. MR. ELDRIDGE had hoped that the hon'ble mover would have taken up some of the other suggestions which had been made by the large representative body of merchants with reference to this matter in their petition now before the Council; and from the conversation he had with the hon'ble member, MR. ELDRIDGE understood that he would have done so if the representations had not reached him after his draft of the Bill had been prepared. MR. ELDRIDGE hoped, however, that the matter would be seriously considered by the Select Committee, as he thought the experience of practical men, who had the carrying out of the rules now laid down, was entitled to great weight, as they also had a very large interest in the property, and had every desire to prevent conflagrations; for although they might be recouped by insurance, the loss of time and interest on their capital would fall on them in the event of any accident of that kind taking place.

With regard to the scale of charges for licenses, he thought it was unnecessary and unfair to retain the present rates. The Calcutta Municipality had apparently proceeded, prior to 1872, almost entirely under the delusive hope that there were to be no fires in the city and no necessity for a fire-brigade. Suddenly when two or three jute warehouses were burnt down, the Justices immediately organized an expensive fire-brigade, and recouped themselves almost entirely from the jute trade. He thought it should be taken into consideration whether a fire-brigrade was not an absolute necessity in a large city like Calcutta, independently of the question of jute or cotton warehouses. There were stores of hay and straw and a variety of other combustible substances kept in native huts and warehouses, as well as in the open air, all liable to conflagration; and, admitting that every ounce of jute and cotton was kept beyond a distance, of ten or fifteen miles, from the town, there would still be the necessity for a fire-brigade. Why, therefore, should the proprietors of jute and cotton warehouses alone be taxed for the support of one? He thought it was most unfair and unreasonable that they should be taxed more than a very moderate proportion of the cost. He found from a letter of the Chairman of the Suburban Municipal Commissioners, under date of August 18th, 1873, that during the previous year the license fees and fines had contributed Rs. 20,473 towards the expense of maintaining a fire-brigade, which, from MR. ELDRIDGE'S knowledge of the increased number of jute warehouses and screwhouses now existing, had doubtless already been augmented very considerably, and would be still more increased in future years. It was a severe tax on a growing industry, which ought to be fostered as much as possible in these days of competition. He thought, therefore, it was but reasonable that the scale of these license fees should be reduced rather than be allowed to exist as it at present stood.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG said he was not at all prepared to admit that the principle of the Bill as regards shifting the responsibility from the Legislature to the Lieutenant-Governor was open to the objection which had been brought forward. As pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Eldridge, it was impossible in any Act to lay down hard and fast rules which should apply equally to the suburbs, where very stringent provisions were not necessary, and to the town of Calcutta, where the greatest possible care was necessary. Circumstances might arise from time to time which might require the rules to be altered; and if we were to lay down rules in the Act, it would require an alteration in the law whenever experience showed that the rules were not quite in accordance with the requirements of the safety of the public. As regards the reduction of the rates of fees for licenses, he thought they ought not in any great measure to be reduced, especially in the town of Calcutta. It was urged that there were many small houses in the town where jute was stored, and it was hard that owners of such warehouses should be called upon to pay a fee of Rs. 250. He submitted that it was these small warehouses which were most dangerous in town as regards conflagration, and that, as far as possible, it was expedient that such houses should be suppressed, and the trade in jute limited to large godowns belonging to persons who were in a position to carry out such precautions as would reduce to a minimum the risk to property in the neighbourhood.

As regards the suburbs of Calcutta, a reduction in the rates of license fees might well be made, and the lowest rate be reduced to Rs. 150; because the same arguments which applied to the storage of jute in the town did not apply to the suburbs. It was urged that the value of property in the town had of late very materially decreased, owing to the increase of municipal taxation and other causes. That statement was one which could not be allowed to pass unnoticed, as he submitted it was not correct. As a matter of fact, whenever, during the last ten years, the Justices had revised the assessment on house property, an increase to the municipal revenues had been obtained, thereby distinctly proving that the value of house property in the town was not decreasing, but increasing. It was apprehended that the opening of the Howrah bridge might lead to a reduction in the value of property in the town, but he was informed on the best authority that that was not the case; and that owing to a water-supply and other improvements in the town, persons formerly residing in Howrah were giving up their houses and living in Calcutta.

Much had been said about the inequitable distribution of the cost of the fire-brigade as between Calcutta and the suburbs, especially by the hon'ble member opposite (Baboo Juggadanand Mookerjee). Perhaps the hon'ble member was not aware that nearly all the present block of the fire-brigade had been paid for from the municipal revenue of Calcutta. It was true that by the Act the fire-brigade was placed under the control of the Justices, but as a matter of fact the Justices had delegated the complete control of the brigade to the Commissioner of Police, who was also in charge of the police of the suburbs. This was a reasonable arrangement, as it resulted in the police force being called into requisition whenever a fire occurred. He thought this was the most economical arrangement both for the town and the suburbs.

His hon'ble friend opposite (Mr. Eldridge), who remarked as to the inequitable arrangement by which the proprietors of jute warehouses were called upon to pay the whole cost of the fire-brigade, was slightly in error. He had forgotten that by the existing law insurance companies, who were most interested in the maintenance of a fire-brigade, had, by Section 26 of the Act, to contribute to the cost at the rate of one-half rupee for every ten thousand rupees value of property insured. Consequently, according to the existing arrangement, the cost of the fire-brigade was partly borne by the insurance companies. This he believed, nay he was certain, was the principle adopted in London, where insurance companies were compelled to contribute towards the maintenance of the fire-brigade. It was by following the English Act that this clause was introduced in Act II of 1872.

No doubt all the suggestions made by honourable members would be duly considered in Select Committee. He hoped therefore the Council would allow the Bill to be read, and then direct the Select Committee to consider its clauses, and also such other modifications of the Act as might be considered by them necessary.

The Hon'ble Mr Rivers Thompson said, with His Honor the President's permission he wished to make a few remarks. The hon'ble mover of the Bill scarcely anticipated, when he took charge of it for the purpose of relaxing one of the restrictions imposed on the grant of licenses to the owners of jute warehouses, that so many other points of discussion would arise. Most of the speakers who had addressed the Council had suggested different proposals regarding the amendment of Act II of 1872; and if the hon'ble member was to take all these proposals into consideration, and if all of them were, upon consideration by the Select Committee, likely to be carried, Mr. Thompson thought it would be advisable that the whole law on the subject should be included in one Act instead of two,—a course which would secure much greater convenience. And if, in the wisdom of the Committee, it should be determined that the suburbs should, for the purposes of the Act, be amalgamated, as now, with the town of Calcutta, he would suggest that it should also be considered whether the Howrah fire-brigade should not also be amalgamated with the suburbs and Calcutta, so as to have one fire-brigade for the whole. At present Howrah, to which Act II of 1872 was extendible, had a separate fire-brigade of its own, and that without the Act having been extended to that place. The expenses of the Howrah fire-brigade were paid out of the municipal fund of that place; and it had only lately come to the notice of the Government that they had a fire-brigade, the expenses of which were paid out of the funds of the municipality. MR. THOMPSON would suggest, therefore, that if the management of the fire-brigade for the joint use of Calcutta and the suburbs was to remain with the Justices of the Peace for Calcutta, the Howrah fire-brigade should be amalgamated with it.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT inquired whether it would be competent for the Select Committee to make such extensive changes as those suggested by the hon'ble member who had just spoken.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he did not think it would be within the competence of the Select Committee to take into their consideration such an enlargement of the Bill, unless the Council made it an instruction to the Committee to do so.

The HON'BLE THE ACTING ADVOCATE-GENERAL observed that it would be the duty of the Select Committee to consider the Bill which was referred to them. They could not go beyond the four corners of the Bill.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG said he understood the meaning of the Hon'ble Mr. Thompson to be that the Act of 1872 should be repealed and one Act passed, which should include the provisions of this Bill.

The HON'BLE MR. RIVERS THOMPSON explained that if all the suggestions that had been made were considered and approved by the Select Committee, it would make the Bill such a large Bill that he thought it would be better to consolidate the whole law on the subject.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT said he understood that this was a Bill to amend a particular Act. The Hon'ble Mr. Thompson proposed that the Select Committee who should be appointed to consider this Bill should include in it another Act, which was not now mentioned in the Bill at all. HIS HONOR ventured to doubt whether it was in the power of the Select Committee to alter the Bill referred to them for report in the way that had been suggested.

The HON'BLE MR. RIVERS THOMPSON observed that the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act was mentioned in Section 11 of the Bill before the Council.

The HON'BLE THE ACTING ADVOCATE-GENERAL thought that Act II of 1872 did not cover Howrah, unless it was extended to that place; therefore Howrah was at present out of the Act altogether.

The HON'BLE MR. ELDRIDGE inquired if the Hon'ble Mr. Thompson was sure that Act II of 1872 had not been extended to Howrah. MR. ELDRIDGE thought the hon'ble member must be mistaken in declaring that the Act was not in force there, as MR. ELDRIDGE had heard strong representations made from people who had jute warehouses and screwhouses in that town. In the very letter before the Council, sent up by Messrs. Ralli Brothers, and sixty others whose names were not printed, they said:—

"A native was recently fined heavily at Howrah (where the Act appears to have been carried out most stringently) for drying a cargo of jute, which had been wrecked, in an open garden belonging to an uninhabited house at Ghoosery, where, had it all gone on fire, no possible harm could have resulted to any one. In this case it was not the spirit of the law that was carried out, but the letter of it, and many other equally hard cases have occurred"

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he did not see why the Council was called upon to take any notice of Howrah. There was no mention of Howrah in the Act, except that as to the Municipality of Howrah the Act should commence and take effect from such date as the Lieutenant-Governor might direct by notification published in the Calcutta Gazette. If the Lieutenant-Governor thought that the Act ought to be brought into operation in Howrah, he had only to make an order extending the Act to that town, and thenceforth whatever was made applicable to Calcutta and the suburbs by the present Bill would become applicable to Howrah. Therefore he did not see why the Council were called upon to notice Howrah specially in the Bill.

The present motion was that the Bill should be read in Council. To that motion he supposed there would be no objection. Then, in the discussion of the Bill, several new points had arisen. The next motion would be to refer the Bill to a Select Committee. The discussion had brought out several points which, as the thing stood, it would not be within the competence of the Select Committee to take up; but it appeared to him that it would be within the competence of the Council to direct the Select Committee, in addition to the provisions contained in the Bill, to consider and report upon the points that had been raised in the discussion. He therefore begged to suggest that the motion now before the Council, that the Bill be read in Council, be put, and that the further progress be then deferred, in order that the suggestions that had been made might be well matured and put into form, with the view, at the next meeting, that the Council should lay down lines as to the point or points that should be taken into consideration by the Committee.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG suggested that it be an instruction to the Select Committee to consider the suggestions which had been made in Council, and the expediency of repealing Act II of 1872 and passing one consolidated Act. It seemed to him that most of the suggestions which had been made were of a technical character.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT said it appeared to him that the best course would be for the Hon'ble Mr. Thompson to move a specific amendment or amendments as soon as the Bill was read in Council. The subject of the amendment would be that this Bill and the existing law be incorporated and made into one consolidated Act relating to jute warehouses.

The HON'BLE MR. RIVERS THOMPSON said he thought the usual course was that, on the motion to read a Bill in Council, the principle of the Bill was discussed, and different suggestions were made as to various points in connection with it. Then, on the nomination of the Select Committee, it considered the Bill as it stood, and all the suggestions that had been made were brought to its notice. It might be made an instruction to the Select Committee to say whether, in the event of their adopting the suggestions that had been made, it would not be a good course to amalgamate all the amendments that were proposed and frame one consolidated Act on the subject. If it turned out that the Select Committee rejected the suggestions that had been made, and the Bill remained a small one, as it now was, there would be no necessity to amalgamate it with Act II of 1872. But if these suggestions were carried out, he thought it would be a wise course for the Select Committee to consider whether the law should be consolidated.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT said the question before the Council seemed to be a matter of form more than anything else. It appeared to him doubtful whether it was regular for the Council to instruct a Select Committee to alter the whole frame-work and substance of a Bill about to be read in Council.

THE ACTING ADVOCATE-GENERAL said he was not aware of what had been the practice of the Council. The difficulty he felt as to the Hon'ble Mr. Thompson's motion was this:—It was admitted that Act II of 1872 did not apply to Howrah, and a Select Committee had no power to consider any other proposals than what were contained in the Bill which was referred to them: those proposals did not form a part of the frame-work of the Bill.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT said he thought the more regular course would be for the Hon'ble Mr. Thompson to move an amendment, and after that the Select Committee could be instructed to consider the several suggestions that had been made. The present Bill was one of about ten sections. If the question of consolidation was raised, there would be at least thirty-five sections added to the Bill from Act II of 1872, and probably some others; so that what was now a Bill of small dimensions would become a Bill of very considerable magnitude, which was altogether a different thing from the proposal before the Council.

The HON'BLE THE ACTING ADVOCATE-GENERAL said that considering the urgency of the representation made by the owners of jute warehouses, he thought this Bill should be passed as expeditiously as possible, and that would be a reason for not entertaining at present the suggestion which had been made for the enlargement of the Bill.

The HON'BLE MR. ELDRIDGE said he thought it would be found that a great number of the suggestions which had arisen during the debate would not prove so formidable in the Select Committee as was anticipated by the hon'ble member on his left (Mr. Thompson). The hon'ble mover of the Bill had proposed that the conditions to be imposed on the granting of licenses for jute warehouses should not be contained in the law, but should be regulated by rules to be passed by the Lieutenant-Governor. The hon'ble member who spoke next thought that the conditions should be specified in the law. That would be a question for the consideration of the Select Committee. One other suggestion that had been made was as to the fees to be levied for the registration of the names of occupiers of jute warehouses. While supporting the hon'ble mover in his proposal to repeal the objectionable clauses in the present Act, the only suggestion that MR. ELDRIDGE had made was that the scale of fees for the licensing of jute warehouses should be reduced, as he thought that the rate at which the fees were now fixed was too high. There had been a great deal of discussion over other matters in connection with the Bill, which he thought it would perhaps have been better to have postponed till the Bill passed the Select Committee. His only reason for making the suggestion which he had mentioned was that he would not have another opportunity of speaking in the Council. His opinion was that the Select Committee might report on this Bill in such a way that the law might be passed very rapidly.

The HON'BLE MR. RIVERS THOMPSON said, if His Honor the President would allow the Bill to be read in Council, he did not think he should propose any amendment now, but would leave it to the sense of the Select Committee whether there should be any consolidation of the law. He was not prepared to propose any amendment which might cause delay.

The motion was then agreed to, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Schalch, the Hon'ble the Advocate-General, the Hon'ble Mr. Dampier, the Hon'ble Baboo Doorga Churn Law, and the mover.

REALIZATION OF GOVERNMENT ARREARS.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill for the realization of arrears in Government estates. The Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, had, he said, been for some time in hands of the members, and he proposed that the report of the Committee be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill. The object of the Bill was to make the procedure now applicable to the realization of arrears due from tenants who held transferable rights in Government estates also applicable to arrears due from tenants who had no such rights. The Select Committee had made two alterations in the Bill before the Council. In the description of arrears to which the certificate procedure was made applicable, they had included arrears due on account of "interests in pasturage, forest rights, fisheries and the like," as well as mere rent of land. The object of this was obvious. They had also divided the Bill into two clauses: the first related to the realization of arrears from tenants of Government estates proper, and in the second clause they had made separate provision for the realization of arrears due to the Collector on estates which he managed in trust for private individuals. As the Bill originally stood, it purported to make the certificate procedure applicable to arrears due to any manager appointed by the Government; but in Select Committee it was found that this would not be consistent with the existing law as regards arrears due from tenants with transferable rights. Under a section of the existing Ward's Act, tenants on Ward's estates were subject to similar procedure as those in Government estates; but it was specially provided that only in cases in which the Collector managed directly without the intervention of a manager, could he make use of the summary certificate procedure. Therefore the Committee simply followed the model of the existing law; and in estates managed under trust, they proposed that the summary procedure should only be applicable where the Collector himself managed the estates direct, and not where he appointed a manager. An appointed manager would have to sue for the recovery of arrears. MR. DAMPIER now moved that the Report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, and that the clauses of the Bill be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The motion was agreed to, and the clauses of the Bill were passed without amendment.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT observed that as the Bill would not be passed that day, there would be time for honourable members to give notice of any amendments which might occur to them.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 30th instant.

PRIMARY EDUCATION.

CALCUTTA, THE 26TH JANUARY 1875.

Minute by the Hon'ble SIR RICHARD TEMPLE, K.C.S.I., Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, dated 12*th January* 1875.

HAVING received many questions and representations from district officers and from natives regarding "primary education" in the provinces under the Government of Bengal, and having read various papers on the subject written by officers in the Educational Department, I deem it advisable to state my general views on this important subject. I understand the term primary education to include the village schools designated departmentally the "E schools," and the village schoolmasters styled locally as "gurumahashays," "abadhans," and other names.

2. I entirely share the views adopted by my predecessor, Sir George Campbell, regarding the extreme importance of doing all we can to foster this important part of the national education. In most of the districts which I have visited, a good beginning has been made under Sir George Campbell's auspices, which is appreciated by the natives, and is being still further advanced by the district officers There are probably few districts in which the number of these schools (aided and inspected) is less than two hundred, and in many districts the number is greater. But it will on all hands be admitted, that much persevering attention is still needed to give effect to the sound principles which have been established, to make good the ground that has been won, and to take further steps onwards.

3. It was, in my opinion, perfectly wise to place this numerous and scattered class of schools under the immediate and administrative orders of the ordinary civil authorities, that is, the Magistrate-Collectors and their subordinates. This was specially calculated to insure attention on the part of the people, and to invest the measure with importance in their eyes. For the present at least, the matter cannot be so well managed otherwise, and these schools must be kept under their present administrative direction. I am sure that the Magistrate-Collectors throughout Bengal, Behar, and Orissa, will ever be found willing to give some share of their heavily-taxed time and thoughts to the furtherance of an object of such vital consequence to the people.

4. On the other hand, though we must enlist all the influence of the Magistrate and his subordinates on behalf of this section of the national education, we must avoid unduly burdening these officers with additions to their already heavy duties. Any special assistance, therefore, which they may require in the shape of deputy inspectors and the like, should be conceded to them to the utmost limit of available funds. As yet the staff of subordinate inspectors is in most districts admitted to be too weak. The deficiency in this respect, indeed, is so considerable, despite our efforts, as to seriously affect the progress of the system. It is seldom difficult to distribute grants which are accepted for these village schools on conditions relating to curriculum, tests, and the like. The real difficulty lies in seeing that these conditions are acted up to. And this cannot be remedied without gradually, if not immediately, strengthening the staff of subordinate inspectors. I shall be happy to co-operate towards this end, so far as our means may admit.

5. But although the executive management of these schools remains in the hands of the Magistrate-Collector of the district, yet they must be under the general inspection of the inspector who belongs to the Educational Department, and whose duties comprise a circle of several districts. It is not to be supposed that the circle inspector can inspect more than a small portion of these schools. But as he visits each district once a year, he should inspect carefully a school here and there in various localities, with a view to forming an idea as to how far existing orders are being carried out. He should communicate to the Magistrate-Collector the impressions derived from his inspection in these instances. And the Magistrate-Collector would pay due attention to such communications. The inspector should fully instruct the schoolmaster of any village school thus inspected regarding any faults which might become apparent on such inspection, and should forward at once to the Magistrate-Collector copy of any instructions so given.

6. The circle inspector will naturally aim at something like uniformity of practice and standard among all the village schools in the several districts within his circle. But at the present stage of affairs there must needs be diversities among the various districts, and it is well to afford some scope for these, in order to encourage development according to local habits and customs, and according to the ability and success of the district officer. So long therefore as certain leading principles are followed, the circle inspector should not be too strict regarding uniformity in details. His observations ought, however, to prove most useful to the Magistrate-Collector, enabling that officer to profit by the experience of neighbouring districts, and to correct defects which might have appeared irremediable had not the fact of their having been remedied in neighbouring districts been made known.

7. Towards the end of each year the circle inspector should offer to the Divisional Commissioner the general results of the inspection of the village schools in the several districts of the division. I trust that the Commissioners will give to this particular branch of district work the same useful supervision which they give to all other branches.

8. The circle inspectors should also towards the end of the official year, send to the Director of Public Instruction copies of the reports which they may have made to the Divisional Commissioner. So that the Director may be able to take a comprehensive view of the progress of primary education throughout the country, and to offer valuable suggestions for the consideration of Government.

9. All civil officers may be sure that the interest of the Government of Bengal in this subject is strong, and that no effort will be spared within the limit of our available means. The interest which is attached in this direction is not at all antagonistic to what is termed "high education." It is by no means the wish of Government to do less than what is now done for the higher schools and colleges. On the contrary it is desirable to do more if possible, to make the average of such high education even higher than it now is, and to diffuse the highest education more broadly than ever.

10. The foundation of improvement in the village school must be the small grant-in-aid, which is not to be considered as a salary for the rustic schoolmaster, but as an addition to the fees obtained either from the scholars or by subscription among the villagers. At first there certainly was a tendency among the villagers to cease making the accustomed payments as soon as the Government money began to be paid. This tendency must of course be resisted. I hope that in many, if not in most, districts it has in a considerable degree been overcome, but it still exists, I fear, in many places. The villagers must be made to understand that the object of Government is not to supersede but to supplement their private efforts.

11. The next step is to bring every village schoolmaster under normal school instruction from time to time. In most, if not in all, districts such normal schools have been established, and their benefits have been already felt. The schoolmasters should in every district be put through a course of training for six months. When one set of men have been discharged, another set would come. If, say, fifty men were trained at a time, some two hundred would be trained in two years for a smaller district, or three hundred in three years for a larger district. When the whole had gone through one course, the process would be repeated. It is, of course, a great object to discharge, as just and reasonable opportunity may arise, those village schoolmasters who are too old to learn much, and to replace them by younger and better trained men. Every normal school, therefore, ought to receive not only those who actually are schoolmasters, but those who expect to become so. The bringing forward of such young men will doubtless lead to the establishment of additional schools of this class.

12. It is important that the amount of grant to each village school should be regulated, as nearly as possible, according to results. At first this may not be practicable with any precision. But in every case some test must be exacted, some examination enforced. A certain degree of latitude may be allowed in the various districts in respect to the prescribing and enforcing of these tests. The Magistrate-Collector must consider what test or tests he will fix. But having fixed that, he must make the people feel that the continuance of the grants is dependent on the test or tests being answered.

13. The usefulness of these schools is, of course, concerned in the due determination of the curriculum. At present we can hardly hope to do more than teach plain things—reading, writing, and simple arithmetic—suited to the concerns of rural life and to the affairs of an agricultural peasantry. I believe that in many districts a curriculum of this nature has been prescribed. Here, also, I would not insist upon absolute uniformity all over the country. I would let each Magistrate-Collector try to do the best he could in this respect. The result will probably be that some districts will do much better than others. The object, then, will be to bring the backward districts up to the mark of the forward. This, however, is just the sort of question in which the circle inspector as a professional man will be able to give good advice. The district authorities should receive, with every respect and consideration, the suggestions of the circle inspector on this point.

R. TEMPLE.

EXTENSION OF SANSKRIT TEACHING.

Minute by the HON'BLE SIR RICHARD TEMPLE, Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, dated 12th January 1875.

VARIOUS representations having been made to me by natives regarding the teaching of Sanskrit in Government schools, which I find on enquiry to be supported by the Director of Public Instruction and by the Registrar of the University, I have carefully examined the existing orders by the Government of Bengal on the subject, and I think that while the principles of these orders are fully maintained, some few rulings in detail may be given in order to meet the growing requirements of the time.

2. The permission given in the Government letter No. 1799, dated the 1st June 1872, for Sanskrit being taught in the first three classes of collegiate and zillah schools, may be extended to the 4th class, at the discretion of the Director of Public Instruction. This extension is necessary in reference to the present requirements of the University.

3. Also in reference to the Government letter No. 1075 of 22nd March 1872, prescribing that there must be at least ten applicants in each class for Sanskrit instruction before that language is taught, I agree that where the class itself does not contain so many as ten students, the prescribed number of applicants may include more than one class; in other words, the prescribed number of ten may be made up from the 1st and 2nd classes. It is found that sometimes an upper class contains eight or nine students, to each one of whom it may be important to learn Sanskrit. In such a case the students need not be debarred from such learning because their total number happens to be less than ten. On the other hand, we cannot undertake to afford this instruction unless a reasonably large number of students desire it. Therefore, subject to the above reservation, the order of Government letter No. 1075, must be acted up to; that is, where the class is a tolerably numerous one, there must be at least ten applicants before Sanskrit instruction is afforded.

4. Further, normal schools for training of "pundits" in the technical departmental phraseology may be excepted from the operation of the prohibitive order of Government letter No. 883 of 9th March 1873, which will continue to be held applicable to normal schools for training of "gooroos," that is, the masters of the primary schools; in other words although Sanskrit is not to be taught in normal schools for the masters of the lowest vernacular schools, it may be taught to the masters of the vernacular schools of the next higher grade.

5. With these reservations and interpretations, however, I desire that the orders in the two minutes of the Lieutenant-Governor, both dated 4th December 1871, against the pedantic and excessive use of Sanskrit in the vernacular, may be strictly acted up to. I believe that any tendency towards such unreasonable use which may have begun to spring up, will have been duly corrected by the instructions given in 1871-72. And I trust that Sanskrit will be taught either as a purely classical language, or as the means of attaining to the higher parts and to the more scholarlike uses of the Bengalee language.

R. TEMPLE.

THE PROGRESS REPORT OF THE FOREST ADMINISTRATION OF BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1873-74.

RESOLUTION.

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.—FOREST.

Calcutta, the 21st January 1875.

READ—

The Progress Report of the Forest Administration of Bengal for the year 1873-74.

THE formation of Assam, including the districts of Goalpara, Cachar, and Sylhet, into an independent administration, having relieved the Government of Bengal of the charge of those territories, the present is the last report that will deal with the management of the forests of that province. The work of the Bengal Forest Department relates to the charge of the forests of the Cooch Behar and Chittagong Divisions. Steps have also been taken to bring a very extensive tract of forest land, 178 square miles, in the Palamow sub-district of the Chota Nagpore Division, under management. Also the forests of the Soonderbuns will probably be made over to the administration of the Conservator.

Inspection.

The forest tracts of Bengal have as yet been inspected to so small an extent, that it will be some years before the "reserves," which it may be found desirable to take under State management, can possibly be determined. The work is meanwhile progressing steadily, if slowly; and the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that it has been arranged between the Deputy Commissioner of the Cooch Behar district and the Conservator of Forests, that the sâl tracts on the slopes east of the Teesta, which it has been intended for the last eight years to reserve, should be definitely marked off during the present cold season. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that this promise will be fulfilled, the more so as Dr. Schlich reports that joom cultivation has so rapidly increased of late years in parts of this district, that no time should be lost in rescuing the forest from the destruction that will otherwise overtake it.

The examination of the Soonderbuns, which was commenced in 1872-73, was completed in the year under notice by Mr. A. L. Home; the tracts examined by that officer covering an area of nearly 1,100 square miles in the Jessore district. The Soonderbun forests are situated on the almost numberless islands that lie within the tidal waters of the Bay. Their general level being but from 1 to 2 feet above high-water mark, the forests are inundated at spring tide only. The main rivers that flow through this low lying delta are connected by creeks that form the islands on which the forests grow. The soil is composed of sand and decaying vegetation; the climate pleasant from November to March; but the whole tract is very unhealthy at all times. The forests are closed during the monsoon, owing to the danger of the navigation, and would yield nothing but firewood, but that upon piercing the outer edge of the islands they are found to be covered with a valuable and quick-growing timber known as sundri, of which the supply appears to be inexhaustible. The sundri is estimated, it seems, to attain its full growth in 25 to 30 years. The trees grow up very close together to a height of 40 to 50 feet, with a straight bole of 18 to 30, and occasionally 35 feet, without a branch, and with a girth from 4½ to 6½ feet. The forests are extensively worked for firewood and timber by native boatmen, who carry the produce of their cuttings to numerous markets in the districts of Backergunge, Jessore, and the 24-Pergunnahs, where the timber is bought up by the mahajuns mainly for boat-building, the craft finding their way eventually to Calcutta. The question of deriving a revenue from these forests is beset with special difficulties. The subject is under consideration, however, but the final decision of Government will be postponed until the Conservator himself has inspected the tract in the present cold season. A trial is meanwhile being made of the sundri timber for railway sleepers on the North Bengal Railway, now under construction.

In Chittagong, the Assistant Conservator has inspected a fresh tract of forest on the Naaf, in the extreme south of the Division, where a very active trade in boat-building is carried on; but the Commissioner of the Division thinks that the proposals that have been made in connection with this inspection should stand over for the present, pending the proposed transfer of the Cox's Bazar sub-division to Arracan; and the Lieutenant-Governor approves of this suggestion. The Assistant Conservator has not attempted any inspection of the forests in the Lushai or Fenny country during the year, for fear of complications with the tribes; and in view of the Deputy Commissioner's report, that no trade in timber can reasonably be looked for therewith, His Honor directs that such inspection should be foregone for the present.

Reserves.

In Assam, 429 square miles of forest in the Eastern Dooars were declared "open forests" during the year. The general character of these forests was briefly described in the Government Resolution of 31st March last on the Forest Report of 1872-73; and paragraphs 30 to 39 of the present report furnish much interesting information concerning them, which more immediately interests, however, the administration of Assam. The same remark applies to the valuable and extensive forests described by Dr. Schlich (paragraphs 41 to 49) on the Garo Hills, and in the other districts of Assam referred to in paragraphs 51 to 56.

The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that steady progress has been made during the year in the formation of "reserves" in the Cooch Behar Division. The first steps in this direction were the surveying and mapping of the Mahanuddy terai range, to ascertain its probable yield of sâl, khair, and sissu timber; while an inspection of the Sivok Hill Tract has shown the existence of extensive slopes covered with a luxuriant growth of valuable and mature timber of several kinds. The Conservator remarks that the Ficus Elastica grows perhaps more luxuriantly in this tract than in any other part of the Darjeeling district; and if plantations of rubber are to be formed in Cooch Behar, the Sivok lower range should, it would seem, be chosen as their site. In the Western Dooars (Julpigoree), the Muraghat sâl forest, 12 square miles in extent, and the Dainah sissu forest, of nearly two, were declared reserved forests during the year; and in addition to these reserves, the Buxa plain forest, with an area of 158 square miles, of which about one-half is covered with sâl, was examined and mapped during the year. The two former tracts will require five to ten years' rest, and in the meantime must be protected from fire, cutting, grazing, and cultivation. The Buxa forest, on the other hand, is found capable of at once yielding 5,000 sâl trees a year—an outturn that may, it is affirmed, be doubled and trebled under proper conservancy in future years. Arrangements have been made for working this forest at once, and sanction has been accorded, since the present report was received, for the purchase of elephants for the purpose.

The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that the Palamow forests, comprising an area of 178 square miles, as already noticed, are to be brought under management. The necessary establishment has been sanctioned for the purpose, and the reserves will, it is hoped, be demarcated during the present cold season.

In the Chittagong Division, it is not yet decided whether reserves should be formed or not, some difficulties attending the question of their formation. The Conservator of Forests is to visit the Chittagong Division during the present season, and the Lieutenant-Governor defers the expression of any opinion upon the subject until Dr. Schlich's report is in his hands, the submission of which, he trusts, will not be delayed. The question of forest rules for this division is in the meantime also in abeyance.

His Honor notices with satisfaction Dr. Schlich's statement that in the course of another year or two measures for the protection and management of all the "reserves" above described will be in full working order, under the re-organization and enlargement of the establishments recently sanctioned by the Government of India.

Plantations.

In the way of plantations, the chief efforts of the department have been directed hitherto to the propagation of teak and India-rubber. Dr. Schlich asserts that we have been attempting to grow the former in cold and damp climates beyond the natural limits of its growth, and the latter in a manner different from that of nature; the result being that much money has been spent with very poor results. The question of the growth of rubber is practically transferred to the administration of Assam, as it is in the districts of that province that the caoutchouc tracts chiefly lie. Concerning the growth of teak, Dr. Schlich appears to be of the opinion that while the tree may be grown all over Bengal, it is doubtful whether the hope of obtaining fine teak even from the Sikkim Terai is well founded; and as to Upper Assam, he questions whether teak will thrive there at all. The last year has brought the department, he says, some new and discouraging experiences with reference to teak, in the appearance of a borer on the Kulsi plantations, and the total failure of the Burmah seed sown at Bamunpokree even to germinate. The experiment is of too much moment to be lightly abandoned, and must be persevered with under such changes as the Conservator deems necessary. Plantations of toon, it is satisfactory to note, are meanwhile reported to spring up like grass, and the young trees to stand transplanting well.

Dr. Schlich's report contains some interesting remarks (paragraphs 154 to 157) on the general question of the growth of rubber; but as His Honor has recently reviewed the subject in Resolution of 17th June 1874, he will not discuss it here.

A more important matter, in so far as Bengal is concerned, is the now acknowledged fact that mahogany grows well in the Bengal plains. Dr. Schlich tells us that during the rains of 1873 some seedlings were planted at Bamunpokree which grew very little during that year, but have made a wonderful start since the rains of the present season set in. The Lieutenant-Governor attaches much importance to the adoption of adequate measures for extending the growth of this valuable timber in the province, and commends the question to the Conservator's special attention. Mahogany, it is true, is a somewhat slow-growing tree, and we must be content to sow the seeds of a harvest to be reaped two generations hence.

Yield.

Concerning the yield of the forests in the Cooch Behar Division, the Conservator remarks that owing to large quantities of timber having been felled in former years and left lying in the forest, although shown in the books as lying in so-called depôts, the department is still occupied with the sale and clearance of these old cuttings, at prices generally much below the rates at which they are entered in the stock accounts. In Chittagong, the yield of the year was 2,759 tons of timber, against 2,164 tons in 1872-73 and 1,518 tons in 1871-72. A doubt is expressed, however, as to whether this increase is matter of congratulation or not; the increase consisting mainly of timber converted by scooping into dug-outs, causing, it is asserted, a wasteful expenditure of forest. His Honor has no doubt that the question will receive Dr. Schlich's attention on his visit to the district.

Revenue.

The revenue and expenditure of the year having been already reviewed by His Honor in Resolution of 17th November 1874, on the forest estimates of the year, it is sufficient simply to remark in this place that the total revenue of the year 1873-74 amounted to Rs. 1,79,366, against an expenditure of Rs. 1,37,498. The figures, of course, show that this important department is as yet in its infancy; but the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to recognise the earnestness of purpose and the great professional skill with which it is superintended by Dr. Schlich and Mr. Mann (Assam), to whom, and to the general staff of the department, the thanks of the Government are due for their labours in the past year.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

R. KNIGHT,
Asst. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

APPOINTMENT OF MR. H. RIVETT-CARNAC TO ACT AS OPIUM AGENT OF BENARES.

No. 206CS, dated Calcutta, the 25th January 1875.

From—Rivers Thompson, Esq., Secretary to the Government of Bengal,
To—H. Rivett-Carnac, Esq.

I am directed by the Lieutenant-Governor to send you the accompanying copy of a letter,* from the Secretary to the Government of India, in the Home Department, placing your services at the disposal of this Government, and to inform you that the Lieutenant-Governor has been pleased to appoint you to act as Opium Agent, Benares, during the absence, on furlough, of Mr. C. F. Carnac, or until further orders.

* No. 27, dated 13th January 1875.

2. It is understood that Mr. C. F. Carnac wishes to avail himself of his leave from about the 10th March next. You are requested to place yourself in communication with that officer, with the view of ascertaining the exact date on which he wishes to be relieved, and to arrange to join the appointment accordingly.

No. 27, dated Fort William, the 13th January 1875.

From—Arthur Howell, Esq., Offg. Secy. to the Government of India, Home Dept.,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

With reference to Resolution of the Revenue, Agriculture, and Commerce Department, No. $\frac{3}{10\,5}$, of the 11th November last, published in the Gazette of India, relative to the abolition of the appointment of Commissioner of Cotton and Commerce with the Government of India, from the commencement of the ensuing financial year, I am directed to inform you that the present incumbent of that appointment, Mr. H. Rivett-Carnac, was originally appointed to the Government of Bengal, from which he was transferred, in 1862,* to an appointment in the Commission of the Central Provinces under the Government of India, to which Commission officers of the Bengal establishment, in common with officers of the Covenanted Civil Service in other provinces, are alike eligible without losing their lien upon the province to which they were originally attached. Under the principles which guide the employment of the Civil Service, Mr. Carnac would therefore revert to the Government of Bengal on the abolition of his appointment.

* 25th April.

2. Mr. Carnac has served under the Government of India for about fourteen years, and his services have been acknowledged in the Resolution above quoted; and although the Government of India would be glad to find suitable appointment in which he could be placed, they regret that there appears to be very little probability of an occasion arising in which his services can be made available. I am therefore to request that the Government of Bengal will take advantage of the first favorable opportunity for appointing Mr. Carnac to such office as he may be considered qualified to hold.

CENSUS OF THE THANA MANJHEE.

No. 516F., dated Bankipore, the 7th January 1875.

Memo. by—S. C. Bayley, Esq., Commissioner of the Patna Division.

Copy forwarded to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal in the Statistical Department.

No. 262, dated Chupra, the 31st December 1874.

From—J. S. Drummond, Esq, Collector and Magistrate of Sarun,
To—The Commissioner of the Patna Division.

I have the honor to report, for the information of Government, that under my directions Mr. C. F. Tonnerre, while employed in making grain advances to ryots in the jurisdiction of thana Manjhee, caused the group superintendents under him to take a census of that thana. The result, as compared with the figures obtained by the late Government census, is given below :—

	Figures as given in previous census.	Figures as given in recent census.
1. Men	39,964	44,215
2 Boys	25,216	25,378
Total	65,180	69,596
3. Women	49,019	49,099
4. Girls	21,864	21,979
Total ...	70,883	71,078
Grand Total ...	1,36,063	1,40,674
Incidence of population to the square mile ..	901	932

2. This result tends to show the accuracy of the previous census, the increase in the number of men being probably due to the circumstance that by the recent computation all members of families, whether resident or non-resident at their homes, have been included, while the former census excluded persons absent in other districts at the period of such census.

DURBHUNGA CENSUS.

No. 556F, dated Bankipore, the 14th December 1874.

From—S. C. Bayley, Esq, Commissioner of the Patna Division,

To—The Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Scarcity and Relief Dept.

In forwarding herewith copy of a letter, No. 1508 of 9th ultimo, with enclosures in original, from the Additional Commissioner, I have the honor to state that the idea of a fresh census of the Durbhunga sub-division, as therein reported upon, originated with Mr. MacDonnell, owing to his missing in the census registers of 1872 the names of several villages which yet were found to be component parts of the groups and centres formed for relief purposes; while at the same time a ready organised machinery was at hand for testing the actual nature of the discovery.

2. Mr. MacDonnell gives two possible explanations of this fact; namely, either that the villages now discovered to be existing were omitted to be numbered in 1872, or that they formed parts of the villages which were then taken as units. The results obtained by the present census partially support both these suppositions; showing that some of the missing villages were included in the previous census as tolahs of other villages, but also that some villages were omitted altogether. This is deduced from the facts that the numbers of houses and of the villages per square mile, as compared with those found in 1872, are respectively 118 against 94, and 1·53 against ·96, or, in other words, the houses are more numerous by 25 per cent., and the villages are more numerous by 60 per cent.; while the numbers of inhabitants per village are shown as 483 against 672.

3. The modus operandi was as follows:—The actual enumerators were the putwarees and jeyt ryots, assisted by the group inspectors and their mohurirs. They collected the figures for their respective divisions. A few days before their work was done, the circle officers, with their chief assistants, paid a visit to every group within their respective limits, and tested the accuracy of the figures. This tour of inspection ended on the 14th October. A simultaneous census was then taken of the whole sub-division on the 15th idem, when the figures previously obtained were checked by the results of that day's enumeration, and separate entries were made of all non-resident persons found on land or on the rivers, consisting of guests, traders, travellers, &c. These results were afterwards marshalled and compiled in the offices of the circle officers, and finally in that of the sub-divisional officer under his personal superintendence.

4. This plan was conceived and drawn out by Mr. MacDonnell; and great credit is due to him and his officers for the care and skill with which it has been carried out.

5. At first the result of the census—an increase of 25 per cent,—made me doubtful of its accuracy; but considering the stronger machinery that was employed this time than in 1872, and the more complete supervision, I see reason for deeming this to be the more correct, and that the difference is attributable to errors in that of 1872. At the same time, I must observe that I cannot understand how there could be an increase of 26 per cent. in the number of houses, when the increase to the population was only 15 per cent., and the average of people to a house, i.e. 6·3, remains almost unchanged. This cannot be worked out from the data furnished by the census, and must, supposing the figures to be correct, be attributable to differences in estimating what constitutes a house.

6. I now proceed to give the chief facts elicited by the census. The present census is more elaborate than the one taken in 1872. The results are divided into four heads, viz. (1) enumerational, (2) educational, (3) agricultural, (4) physical. Under these several heads they embody a mass of useful and interesting statistics regarding the country and its inhabitants. The following distinctions were observed with respect to the population:—

1.	Age (below 12 years and above)	Form No. 1.
2	Sex
3	Religion
4.	Insanes and idiots	Form No. 4.
5	Deaf and dumb
6.	Blind
7.	Lepers
8.	Beggars (Hindoos and Mahomedans)
9.	Number of persons who died while in receipt of relief, &c., &c.

ltural census gives the names of the maliks of villages, of the jeyt of the putwarees, and furnishes information about the areas of land ence to the principal staples, pasturage, groves, bamboos, indigo- culturable or marshy land, village sites, &c.

The educational census gives the numbers of literate and illiterate nale and female, of the prevailing creeds.

The omission of the trades and professions is a defect in the foregoing ent. The addition of a fifth form, industrial, would have made the n, otherwise comprehensive enough, more complete.

The annexed tabulated statement shows at a glance the results of the der all the four heads.

I would draw special attention to the following points in Donnell's report:—

—Mr. MacDonnell observes that, considering the difference between the figures obtained in 1872 and those of the present census, in respect to population and number of houses, as also the character of the agencies employed on the two occasions, the accuracy and reliableness of the census results of 1872, particularly of those of Bengal, where existed no such ready-made native agency as that of Behar, become very questionable.

I think these deductions are a little too wide. What the present census proves is that the Durbhunga figures were inaccurate; but considering the uneducated, backward, and obstinate nature of the people, I see no reason for arguing that the whole census of 1872 was equally inaccurate.

—The explanation given in paragraph 11, of the apparently undue proportion of adult females, is doubtless correct, and has been already noticed before.

—The small number of persons who can both read and write, or compared with those who are illiterate, shows the backwardness of the sub-division in point of education.

—The following ratios are striking:—

Hindoos = 855,476, of whom 35 per cent. are under twelve years.
Mahomedans = 148,883, of whom 46 per cent. are under twelve years.

—Mr. MacDonnell remarks that the agricultural statistics, indicating as they do that no more than two roods of land are left to every individual to raise his food-crops, yielding him no more than 10 maunds, or about a seer per day, challenge grave attention to the position of Durbhunga.

not convinced that Mr. MacDonnell's estimate of area of culturable and of its outturn are quite correct. Doubtless the proportions of rice and correct; but it is quite certain that the average rents are untrustworthy. Seeing that there is at least a certain export from Durbhunga, it difficult to believe that the entire produce of the sub-division leaves practically no margin over the minimum requirements of the population. If it were true that with a full crop there is practically no surplus, not only would famine be out of the question, but it is quite certain that after the bad and complete failure of the rice crop of 1873, there could not have been a stock of food in hand sufficient to feed the people for six months; and yet practically showed that there was such a stock. I expect the outturn of bigha is under-estimated, and perhaps the total average under food-crops, but whether the error be these, or an over-estimating the people, I am certain that in a good year there is a larger margin between production and minimum consumption than Mr. MacDonnell's figures indicate.

Lastly I would call attention to the latter part of paragraph 18 of Mr. MacDonnell's report, which shows the mortality among persons receiving relief. This does not include persons on roads. The mortality, amounting to 15 is for six months. The largest daily average (shown for any one fortnight) of people receiving relief was 166,142. The percentage on this would be 30 per annum, or 15 per thousand for those six months; but obviously the largest daily average should not have been accepted as the standard of the persons receiving relief, and the real percentage would stand much higher, (say 20) per mille, which, for people reduced by scarcity before they came for relief, cannot be deemed a high mortality.

11. Mr. Metcalfe has sent a bill for Rs. 751-9-6 on account of expenses incurred in taking the census. I request that the amount may be sanctioned. I also beg that the papers may be printed and spare copies (20) be sent to this office.

The result of the present enumeration shows that the former census of this sub-division was not an accurate one.

The proposition to enumerate arose from the absence in the former village list of mention of villages which had been either altogether omitted or treated as outlying places when their size justified their being treated as important places.

The following statement may not be without interest :—

These figures are to my mind the most important result of the census. I have taken the maximum figures of persons who at my time came both on charitable relief and for labor. The fluctuations were all below these figures: at any rate, it is clear that 364,055 of the population never came on our hands, and among these the Brahmins were in the greatest [illegible] and to these advances were made.

Educational.—The result shows very badly that [illegible] persons, only 21,344 Hindoos can read and write [illegible] Mahomedans can read and write, and 272 read. T[illegible] tion is here very apparent, and for strenuous ex[illegible] schools.

To—The Additional Commissioner of the Patn[illegible]

In the course of our investigations in c[illegible] operations, we have found that several villag[illegible] appear on the census registers. It may be th[illegible] for the purposes of the census, regarded as p[illegible] villages; but on this point no records exist t[illegible]

Independently of the existence of [illegible] registers, the result of our village-to-villa[illegible] myself, and most of the circle officers with [illegible] ing, that the last census was not, as far as this sub-[illegible] accurate one. We believe that the population of Du[illegible] is supposed to be.

3. The advantages of a full and accurate enum[illegible] people are too obvious to need further note here. Any circumstan[illegible] calculated to ensure accuracy in such an enumeration we ought to [illegible] ves of. I beg to submit to you, and through you to Government, that [illegible] have now existing in this sub-division, in a degree never equalled before, and which, perhaps, never will be equalled again, all the means calculated to ensure such an accurate enumeration.

4. I refer to our relief establishment. In the months of September and October, we may fairly hope that the heaviest portion of the relief operations will have come to an end. We shall then, in all likelihood, have spare time on our hands. I beg to propose that this time should be utilised in making a new census. I have spoken to several of my circle officers on this point. They agree with me in thinking the project quite practicable; and if it be the pleasure of Government that it should be undertaken, and if its management in this sub-division be entrusted to us, I think we can promise to bring it to a successful conclusion.

5. I purposely omit all reference to details in this letter, which is intended merely to place the proposition formally before you and before the Government.

No. 1193, dated Durbhunga, the 30th October 1874.

From—A. P. MacDonnell, Esq., Sub-divisional Officer of Durbhunga,
To—The Additional Commissioner of the Patna Division.

In continuation of my letter No. 797 of the 8th of August last, I have now the honor to inform you that the census of the Durbhunga sub-division has been satisfactorily taken. I forward herewith four tabular statements, which show the condition of the sub-division from the point of which they treat.

2. More detailed statistical tables will be hereafter prepared. From the copies of the enumerators' forms which have been used, and which I beg to send for your inspection, you will, I think, find that in these census returns are to be found adequate materials for the compilation of whatever statistics that may be required regarding the condition of the inhabitants of Durbhunga.

6. But it [illegible] "house" as wa[illegible] sub-division 32,[illegible] It is unreasonab[illegible] the totals given in 1872—were built since then. It is very unlikely that 26 per cent. of the houses in each village, which in 1872 came within the enumerators' cognizance, were omitted from the registers. I believe the true explanation to be that a certain number of villages were altogether omitted from enumeration. As the average number of houses in a Durbhunga rural village is a fraction over 75, this would give 434 villages as the number so omitted; and this calculation makes due allowance for the partial explanation noticed in the preceding paragraph.

7. One cannot fail observing that these figures are of grave import. At the census of 1872, nowhere in the territory subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal was the census said to have been taken with so much accuracy as in Behar; for nowhere else was there any indigenous native agency ready made to the Collector's hand. I gather also in the resolution of Government on the census report that the plans of the then sub-divisional officer of Durbhunga were so well matured as to entitle him to appreciative mention. If, then, with such advantages turned to good use, it was not possible to obviate a very large percentage of error, what must this percentage be in Bengal districts, where no putwaries exist, and where the agency employed, though the best available, was far from trustworthy?

8. In the last census the population per square mile was given at 645; it now turns out to be somewhat at 747. It is a fact, which will not surprise you, that the population is densest in those tracts where the scarcity has been most severe. From the form of agricultural statistics (on which I shall have some remarks to make later on), the area of each relief circle can be calculated with some approximation to correctness. It appears, then, that in the Mahomedpore circle there are 1,048 [illegible] It is true that in this circle actual famine [illegible] due to the strenuous exertions [illegible] Mr. Paul, and to the large sales [illegible] circle, where distress was so pro[illegible] mile; in Hyaghât 850; in Daso[illegible]

10. The last census showe[illegible] females; the female Mahomedan[illegible] number the males. Now female[illegible] though the excess is not very gre[illegible]

[illegible] ons in addition [illegible] le have had any [illegible] ndoos (70 being females), and 2,476 are Mahomedans (33 being females). There are in the whole sub-division only 82 schools supervised by the Educational Department; that is, one school to every 26 villages and to every 12,240 people. The great Durbhunga estate supports eight rural schools subject to inspection. The difficulty we, in the commencement of the relief operations, experienced in procuring locally intelligent and even moderately well educated native agency illustrates this backward state of education in Durbhunga.

13. In this office letter of the 8th August I represented to you the disadvantages I laboured under owing to the want of anything like trustworthy agricultural statistics. Although it was too much to hope we could make the census do the work of a survey, it seemed advisable to avail ourselves of the opportunity to supply, even approximately, a very palpable want. You will now be glad to hear that the effort has been attended with a very fair measure of success.

14. The Boundary Commissioner's report gives the sum of areas of the three thanas composing the sub-division at 860,691 acres. The area shown in table No. 3 is 884,428 beeghas. Reducing this quantity to acres on the basis of the six-and-half-hath luggee, which is the prevailing standard, the result is 770,504 acres. If you take into consideration the fact that the putwaries' papers do not show the area occupied by high roads and navigable streams by which the sub-division is intersected, a total of not less than 5 per cent. on the gross area, the result shows a divergence of less than 6 per cent. from the figures given by the Boundary Commissioner in 1848. I should also mention, in this connection, that I have excluded from this census those villages in the south-east of the division which, though criminally within this jurisdiction, are fiscally included in Monghyr.

15. You will observe that the gross rental of the sub-division is returned at Rs. 17,13,210. This gives an average of Rs. 2-7-4 per beegha on the gross area, and of Rs. 2-8-5 per beegha on the ordinary rent-paying land, excluding groves, &c. This average is altogether under the mark; rice, rubbee, and bhadoi land not letting for less than from Rs. 3-8 to Rs. 4-8 per beegha. In this point the results of our inquiries are unsatisfactory, but this was anticipated. The land appropriated to rice cultivation is shown to be far more than half the total area, and greater than the area given up to all other kinds of food-producing crops put together. The total rice area is beeghas 414,734, and the total rubbee and bhadoi area beeghas 183,842. From these figures, taken in connection with the total population, it results that there are now only 12 cottahs; that is, a fraction over half an acre of food-producing land to every individual of the population in the sub-division of Durbhunga. If we make five per cent. allowance for roads and rivers as stated in the last paragraph, and then class as food-producing land the six per cent., &c., difference between my areas and the Boundary Commissioner's, we shall, dividing this difference proportionately among dhán and rubbee land, have a gross area of 455,882 beeghas dhân and 197,674 beeghas rubbee. This gives an area of 13 cottahs food-producing land per individual.

16. If we take 15 maunds of rice to be a full 16-anna yield per beegha, it follows that the gross produce of the rice crop, in an unusually favorable year, would be about 62 lakhs of maunds. If we take 12 maunds to be a full yield of rubbee or bhadoi per beegha, the outturn in a similarly favorable year of this crop would be as nearly as possible 22 lakhs of maunds; that is, the total aughani and bhadoi outturn of the sub-division, in an unusually good year, is 84 lakhs of maunds; and on the supposition noted in the last paragraph, the quantity would be increased to a total outturn of about 92 lakhs of maunds.

17. It will be observed that the above remarks are not exhaustive as to the possible outturn, inasmuch as they make no allowance for that portion of the bhadoi land on which the cold-weather or rubbee crops are grown. It may be assumed, as a proposition generally true, that the rubbee crops are grown on bhadoi lands only. It may also be assumed as true that the bhadoi crop in this sub-division is a much larger one than the rubbee. In estimating the outturn of the rubbee from the point of view of the sustenance of the people, it would be necessary for me to determine what portion of such outturn is food-grain and what portion non-food-grain, such as oil-seeds; and then it would be necessary to determine the value in money or food-grain of such seeds. This is a question the terms of which vary every year, and which here I hesitate to consider. Roughly, I believe, I shall not be far wrong if to the sum of produce of the aughani and bhadoi crops we add for the rubbee 15 lakhs of maunds; that would bring the gross outturn of the sub-division to about 107 lakhs of maunds. This gives 10½ maunds per annum, and a fraction over 1¼ seers per day per individual.

18. In face of these figures, which represent a year of more than average prosperity, the position of this sub-division as regards food-supply over population, and provision for bad years, challenges attention. The food-producing area cannot be enlarged to any considerable extent; for putting aside the consideration that any extension in this way would diminish the already scanty pasturage available for cattle, the uncultivated land seems uncultivable in the absence of means for artificial irrigation. The most obvious way in which the pressure of natural forces can extend the food-producing area here is by the absorption in the latter of indigo lands, which, however, being less than 3 per cent. on the food-producing area, would not afford food for more than 30,000 people a year, and would be merely a drop in the ocean.

19. In conclusion, I request you will be so good as to permit me to incur a further expenditure of Rs. 50 in having the registers completed. I am anxious to have, in a handy form, the information regarding every village which I now furnish you regarding every thana. I should like to have the results of the census printed for use in my office. The pamphlet containing, as it would against each village, the name of the putwarie, jeyt ryot, and zemindar, with all the other information now before you in gross, would not cost much to print at one of the Government presses, and would, I venture to assert, be found of much value to those whose duty it will be to administer this sub-division.

20. I attach a memorandum of the total cost of the census.

Extract, paragraphs 4 to 14, from the Durbhunga Sub-divisional Officer's letter to the Additional Commissioner of the Patna Division,—No. 797, dated the 8*th August* 1874.

PARA. 4.—Retaining the thana as the unit under which village returns are to be totalled, our relief organization enables us to sub-divide it for enumeration purposes as far as the sub-division was carried in 1871, and at the same time to provide more efficient and comprehensive supervision.

5. As you are aware, each thana contains one or more whole relief circles, each circle several groups, and each group an ascertained number of villages and hamlets. Over each circle presides an officer of tried capacity. Each group is provided with an inspector and mohurir the best local ability can afford, and in each village the jeyt ryots and putwaries may be assumed, from four months' constant dealing with relief returns, to have acquired a facility in preparing and submitting such. We have thus ready to hand a more efficient organization than existed in 1874.

6. It will not be possible to proceed on the basis of the list of villages extracted from the census, registered and furnished to each circle officer at the commencement of relief operations. These lists, whether it be from the omission of whole villages, or the entry of several villages under one name, are imperfect and calculated to mislead. I propose, therefore, to base our operations on the exhaustive list of villages and tolahs which exist in every circle officer's sherista, taking due precautions that ultimately the tolahs will be grouped under the village to which they belong.

7. This being agreed to, I propose to ask each circle officer to assemble his inspectors on the 1st of September, and explain to them fully the manner in which the enumeration is to be made. The inspectors are then to take away, each for his own group, a sufficient number of enumerators' forms, and to distribute them, as may be necessary, among the jeyt ryots and putwaries who are to make the actual enumeration. The inspectors and mohurirs are to explain the forms to the jeyt ryots and putwaries, and assist them in filling up the several columns. When the jeyt ryots and putwaries have had the forms explained to them, they are to set to work, each man in his own "puttee" or recognized division of the village, filling in the prescribed columns; and it is to be hoped that this work will be concluded by the 25th September.

8. Between the 20th September and the 14th October, the circle officer and his chief assistants shall visit every group in his circle, and satisfy himself, by a personal inspection of the village forms, that the work has been properly done. As there are on an average not more than ten villages in each group, it may be confidently expected, from the tried zeal of the circle officers and their assistants, that not only will this be done, but that also the correctness of the entries in a large percentage of the village returns will be tested by actual comparison with the number of homesteads, &c., in the village.

9. An incidental advantage, from a famine relief point of view, will accrue from this inspection; for, as in October, we hope to make large strides towards winding up our relief operations; it will give the Superintendent an opportunity of seeing for himself the state of his circle.

10. On the 15th October, I propose to take the census simultaneously over the whole sub-division. The enumerators will only have on that day to make a note in the remark column opposite the name of any person who, since the date of compilation of the returns, may have died or gone elsewhere, and insert, in a space left blank for the purpose, the names of any guests that may on the 15th be in his house.

11. On this day also must be made the entries referring to travellers by land or water. Regarding such, the census must be taken in the evening, when land travellers halt and boats moor for the night. The same organization will suffice for this purpose, the house-to-house enumeration being made earlier in the day, and the group organization being so interwoven as to afford a reasonable assurance that no boat will escape notice. To ensure a boat not being counted more than once, a ticket should be given to the manjee by the enumerator who takes the census of the boat.

12. The enumeration having been made, the books for each hamlet and putty are to be made up into a village bundle, and the village bundles thus formed and duly labelled are to be made up into group bundles and deposited in the Circle Superintendent's office. Here the returns for the circle are to be compiled, each inspector and mohurir, who by October will doubtless have ample time to spare for this work, being employed on the returns for their own group. The circle returns will then be sent to my office, where they will be thrown into a tabulated form under my own superintendence.

13. It only remains for me to offer a few observations on the form of enumerators' return we should adopt. Bearing in mind Mr. Bayley's idea of the object of this census, I think the enumerators' village form of the last census should be adopted with, however, some amplifications. That form does not contemplate the collection of any statistics regarding the educational conditions of the people, or the prevalence of those mental and bodily infirmities which usually find a place in census returns. The propriety of eliciting trustworthy information on these two heads being, I believe, unquestionable, I have amplified the form for that purpose.

14. Since my arrival in Durbhunga, I have frequently found myself at a disadvantage, owing to the want in my office of anything like reliable agricultural statistics. We can scarcely make a census do the work of a survey, and it would be unwise to hope for perfect accuracy in results which, to be accurate, should be elicited by a far different process; still I think something might be done towards supplying a very palpable want, especially as information, even approximately correct, regarding the area under cultivation and the nature of the produce, would form a valuable supplement to the actual census of the people.

No. 969, dated Durbhunga, the 12th September 1874.

Memo. by—A. P. MacDonnell, Esq., Sub-divisional Officer, Durbhunga.

Forwarded to the Superintendent of all relief circles, with the census forms Nos. 1 to 4. Books are being sent by a special messenger. I request that the Superintendent will forthwith carry out the instructions given in paragraph 7 within. I request also that the Superintendent, having explained the forms to his assembled inspectors, will give them a practical illustration of the work by himself, having the entries made in the registers for one village as a specimen. The utmost care should be taken that only the number of females in a house (column 6, register I) should be required. Any attempt to obtain their names will utterly frustrate our efforts. Only numbers, not names, should also be entered in columns 7 and 8. In fine, only in column 2 are names to be entered. It is needless to observe that the total figures in the sub-columns of column 11 must agree with column 9. In forms 2, 3, and 4 one line for the whole village, or where there are several tolahs in a village, a line for each tolah with a total, is all that is required. Therefore one page is sufficient for each of these returns, and for this purpose three last pages of the book I forward should be given up.

No. 1031, dated Durbhunga, the 22nd September 1874.

From—A. P. MacDonnell, Esq., Sub-divisional Officer, Durbhunga,
To—All Circle Officers.

I have the honor to forward you herewith four forms in English, into which your census statistics should be thrown after the final enumeration has been taken. You will observe that in compiling the third and fourth of these forms, you will have no difficulty further than that of totalling your group figures in the physical and agricultural statement forms already in your hands.

2. For the returns 1 and 2 now sent, you have the figures in columns 2, 6, 7, and 10 of the enumerators' form No. 1 in your hands. There will be some trouble to distinguish Mahomedans from Hindoos, but the information to enable you to do this will be given in column 3 of the enumerational form.

3. I also send a form for European census, and request you will send it to each European, Eurasian, &c., gentleman residing in your circle, with a request to fill it in for himself, his family, household (servants residing in the house included), on the evening of the day when the census is to be taken. This date stands at present on 15th October.

The mean barometer as likewise the dry and wet bulb thermometer means are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants. The figures in column 10 represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity. The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

Calcutta Canals.

NOTICE.

DURING the period the lock-gates of the Calcutta Canals at Chitpore are kept open, which is generally from November 1st to June 30th, there is at times a strong current; and boats proceeding in or out may be of any length, but their extreme breadth, including chuppers, should not exceed 21 feet, or 14 haths.

During the rainy season, or from July to October, the lock-gates are closed; and as there is no current in the Canal, boats may be of 22 feet, or 14½ haths extreme breadth, including chuppers, and 58 feet from stem to stern.

Boats entering at Bamunghatta with tickets "Bamunghatta and Return," may be of any dimensions; but as the water in the Canal decreases daily until the rains set in, heavy-laden boats should discharge, if possible, west of the Dhappa Pass Station. Boats with the above tickets, after discharging in the old Canal, may proceed to the Hooghly by confining to the above orders; but if they cause an obstruction to navigation, they will be detained at Chitpore, and the manjees will be liable to punishment under the Canal Rules.

J. F. GALIFFE, Collector and Supervisor, Calcutta Canals.

NOTICE.

By order of the Commissioners,
